BETTER PROJECTION

THROUGH PRINT PROTECTION

A Message of interest to:

Motion Picture Producers,
Distributors, Advertising Agencies,
Sponsors, Film Libraries,
TV Film Producers and Distributors . . .

Without exception, ALL film should be treated, if you are to get maximum results in terms of good projection and number of showings. Without treatment, your film—from initial release to the last booking—is much more susceptible to damage. And damaged film can result in an indifferent audience.

Peerless Treatment is only one of the services we offer to users of film. But we feel it is the most important, because its objective is to start prints off right and keep them in good condition longer. It is the finishing touch and the least expensive item in the whole process o picture-making. Yet it safeguards millions of dollars invested in film. When you order prints, don't forget to include "PEERLESS TREATMENT" in your purchase order.

And, if you have film that has become "hurt" or "tired" —scratched, edge-nicked, brittle, warped, or just dirty and oily, call on Peerless service to salvage it—not only your prints, but also your negatives and originals.

Peerless Services include:

Peerless Protective and Preservative Film Treatments

Release Prints, Trailers, Television Shows on Film, Kinescopes, TV Commercials, Theatre Screen Advertising, Prints for Continuous Projection Negatives, Masters, Originals, Filmstrips, Transparency Slides, Microfilm

TV'S THRESHOLD YEAR

By DONALD LA BADIE

FILM DAILY Staff Writer

YOU COULD HARDLY have caught the industry napping during 1954. But while there were no recess calls, neither were there any major changes in the way the mass video public got its entertainment. Color, which some of the less conservative prophets thought might be keeping entertainment shoppers home from the theaters before the end of the year, was still brightening less than 10,861 receivers at last count; theater television, in the area of public events at least, seemed to stand still and, though there were a spate of developments in the toll TV field, both opponents and proponents of the penny-for-the-peep-show systems finally had to look toward 1955 when it was hoped the Federal Communications Commission would take decisive action on the matter. In these important regions, 1954 was something of a threshold year, replete with signs that more important changes in the theatrical and television picture were on the way.

LA BADIE

COLOR TELEVISION

It was a fine year for the good old-fashioned black-and-white receivers. More of the duo-tone sets were sold last year than in any year except 1950, the 1954 figures placed at 7,346,715 as against 7,463,800 four years ago and 7,215,827 in 1953. Total number of b-and-w receivers now stands at 32,531,000.

The high price of color sets, from $895 to $1000, did not result in a buyer's rush and such plans as leasing the receivers, tried out by the Emerson Radio and Phonograph Co., failed and were abandoned. Nonetheless, some network executives estimated that at least two million persons watched color shows on color sets during the Fall and early Winter, neighbors sharing with neighbors and dealers with potential customers, as they had in television's early days.

More shows were presented in color than ever before, with the house specialty all-star extravaganzas. NBC had its color "spectaculars" and CBS went into tints with, among others, "Best of Broadway," "Climax" and "Shower of Stars." While the first NBC entries were less than spectacular; the initial presentation, "Satins and Spurs," caused leading star Betty Hutton to announce that she would desert show business altogther; they got better with time and by Dec. 17 Max Liebman's "Babes in Toyland" had a top Nielsen rating. The CBS attempts also have varied in quality, but there seems no doubt that, no matter what the network, these circus-size shows have stirred public interest in color, and, ironically enough, have been one of the main factors in getting the still-unsold consumer to purchase a standard receiver.

All of which pointed to the fact that there was gestation in colorland, if not explosion, a gestation which might end in a loud payoff bang late in 1956. With color still such a negligible video factor, many in the film industry tended to forget that it had ever been regarded as a potential threat, but Dore Schary, M-G-M executive producer, warned at the year end that color TV, at least immediately, would result in a slump at the box office, an opinion with which those who have been watching small screen color during the last year probably will agree.

THEATER TELEVISION

On the closed circuit front, entertainment events utilizing theaters decreased while business and industry made increasing use of the medium, operating, in the main via hotels. Among the firms traveling the closed circuit route, to name only a few, were Kaiser-Willys, Dodge, International Business Machines, Ford, Chrysler and the Dow Chemical Co., utilizing the facilities of both BOTV and TNT.

In the Fall, another major closed circuit organization came onto the scene with the formation of Irving Suld's Tel-Com, Inc. Suld's company, while mainly devoted to business presentations, also made plans to enter the entertainment division, specializing possibly in ballet and opera shows presented for two days running.

The only theater TV showmanship events, all carried by TNT, were the two Marciano-Charles heavyweight championship fights and the Metropolitan Opera's opening night, for which the Halpern organization has a three year contract. Sixty-one theaters in 45 cities carried the first version of the M-C tussle on June 17 while the Sept. 20 rematch upped that number to 71 houses in 50 towns. According to AT & T, the opera variety program went into 25 theaters in 23 cities.

Toward the end of 1954, plans were laid for a Mar. 28 theater telecast of the annual "ANTA Album," an event interesting in several respects. For one thing, the projected show will be the first legitimate theater presentation carried via theater TV. Both BOTV and TNT had been negotiating during the year to tie up a show, and at several points it appeared that finalizing announcements were to be made, but troubles over union wages and difficulty in finding the proper vehicles to launch the venture put these projects in the background.

The other interesting factor involved in the telecast, sponsored as a benefit by CARE and ANTA, is that it will be handled and produced by the sponsoring organizations without benefit of a theater TV firm. Last November, the H and E Balaban circuit in Chicago presented through its own organization a closed circuit telecast of a Notre Dame-Iowa football game to three of its houses in Omaha, Des Moines and Indianapolis and judged the project so successful that more programs of the same kind were said to be in the making. Together, these independent attempts suggest that there may be a trend to bypass the theater TV outfits, a group which naturally resents being called "middleman."

A possible impetus to the presentation of more theater events this year would be the introduction of large-screen color facilities. RCA and General Precision Equipment announced last year that they had developed equipment of this type and on Dec. 29, in keeping with the look-ahead picture, Spyros P. Skouras, president of 20th-Fox, saw his studio's Eidophor, the Swiss system, available in CinemaScope dimensions by the end of 1955, or at the latest, in 1956.

SUBSCRIPTION TELEVISION

The TOA television report published Nov. 1 indicated something not only about the future of theater TV but about toll TV as well, at least from the exhibitor point of view, for the Fabian-Wolfson view suggested using the former as a means to combat the latter. Exhibitor hostility to fee TV had been formally expressed earlier on Oct. 19 when exhibition leaders formed a committee to fight the new medium, and was seen again later on Dec. 17 in a request to the FCC by Marks & Cohn, counsel for the Joint Committee on Toll TV, asking that body to defer any action on a Nov. 30 petition by the Zenith Corp. to expedite the toll TV hearings until the Committee could file its opposing comments.

Events tending toward the establishment of toll TV were evident throughout the year. In late March Arthur Levey licensed world rights to Skiatron's pay-as-you-see system to Matty Fox for a 99-year period and Fox organized Skiatron TV. In late September the firm petitioned the FCC to consider its system requesting that authorization be limited to UHF stations for a three-year period.

The UHF plight and the urgent need to do something about it were brought into clearer focus during 1954. In view of the fact that a large number of applications for subscription TV service from UHF stations were still pending, it seemed probable that the FCC might be put into a favorable frame of mind to act on the Skiatron petition. Commissioner Hennock, who, in an interview with the press here last October, contended that it was "high time" hearings were held on toll TV, has been active on behalf of UHF broadcasters.

At present, UHF stations cannot be received on millions of sets without adapters and new antennas, and in markets where VHF stations are already operating, the consumer is unwilling to make the investment. Thus a vicious circle is traced out: the UHF broadcaster cannot get the network shows which attract audiences and make them willing to convert to UHF since he has no audiences to begin with. Obviously, toll TV and its special fare looms as one solution to his problem. The possibility of such a solution was at least one of the factors which prompted the government in December to announce plans for an investigation of the toll medium.

Zenith, too, attempted to push the issue to a head. Apart from its Nov. 30 petition, the firm last spring received FCC permission to conduct field tests of its Phonevision system in New York City. The tests were completed in June ahead of schedule and that same month Zenith filed a statement with the Commission, declaring that "as long as the networks remain the only prime source of good programming, there will never be a nation-wide competitive system of TV broadcasting in this country, regardless of the number of networks in operation."

Looking out to the international scene, Zenith revealed in November that it had signed a franchise contract for Phonevision covering Australia and New Zealand with Rola, a leading Australian electronics manufacturer.

While exhibitors were opposing these moves to establish toll TV, the rest of the industry seemed divided on the matter. Paramount, which owns a major part of the Telemeter system, conducted tests at Palm Springs early in 1954. The tests were ended, it was announced, because of a lack of first-run features, indicating that Paramount itself might have some conflicting feelings on tolling or not tolling. However, Paul MacNamara, Telemeter's vice-president, continued active in the cause, suggesting to the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in an address in Houston, Texas Nov. 30 that toll TV might be an answer to their financial troubles.

As for the other major companies, it was reported that before Arthur Levey consigned the Subscriber-Vision system to Matty Fox, he was approached by Warners and several other studios interested in making investments. In December, 20th-Fox declared itself opposed to the medium unless forced into it by government decree.

Among the producers, Sam Goldwyn and Walter Wanger expressed favorable sentiments on the matter while Julien Blaustein in a Nov. 8 interview saw 85 per cent of the Screen Producers Guild favoring fee television.

NARROWING GAP

The film industry became more closely connected with standard home television in a number of ways during the last year, with the narrowing gap bridged most outstandingly by Walt Disney whose hour-long ABC-TV series, "Disneyland," very quickly became one of the most popular shows on the channels following a fall introduction. "Disneyland" not only copped a Sylvania ward after only a month and a half on television, but the producer was reported so pleased with the results that he was planning to film an afternoon group for ABC. United Productions or America, the Columbia cartooning outfit, also was reported coming on to the small screens.

Another notable movie figure, David O. Selznick made his video debut Oct. 24 as producer of General Electric's "Diamond Jubilee of light."

More important than individual figures were the number of deals made in which feature films came to television or by which the way was prepared.

Vital in the sale of old films to TV was the Oct. 18 decision of the Supreme Court to refuse to consider an appeal by cowboy stars Roy Rogers and Gene Autry to prevent television exhibition of 138 of their old Republic pictures. The stars had carried their attempts for writs through a number of courts, contending that their contracts with the studios did not permit the showing of the old features for commercial purposes on television. Had Autry and Rogers won the decision, it was expected that there would have resulted a flood of similar court actions by other players whose pictures are up for TV sale as well as damage actions by still others whose films were already in video release.

Thirty feature films, generally superior to theatrical product previously screened on TV, also found their way to the home front when General Teleradio, Inc. leased the group from the Bank of America for four years at a rental of more than $1,250,000. Bank had acquired the movies from producers who had failed to meet loans.

Other theatrical films were sold to stations by Eliot Hyman's Associated Artists Productions, including a batch of new British films contracted for with the understanding that they would be played theatrically for a year or more before they got video showings. Columbia also sold rights to a group of Westerns and a number of cartoon series to the Hygo Corp., with President Jack Cohn issuing a statement to the effect that this did not alter the studio's policy on releasing for TV, since the particular group had lost its theater value.

AROUND THE WORLD

In the wide world, there was no doubt that the U. S. was the television leader with its 439 stations and some 32,531,000 sets, but while no one stepped up to challenge the record, there were signs that a lot more people around the globe would soon have something to watch while they listened to the radio. As of Oct. 18, according to Henry Cassirer, UNESCO's television expert, 60 countries had TV facilities or had imminent plans for putting them in, with public telecasts on the air in 20 nations, experiments underway in 8 others and 17 taking active steps to introduce the medium.

Next to us in number of receivers was England with some 3,500,000 sets, while France had 108,000; Germany, 80,000; and Italy, 50 000. In an Oct. 28 interview, Ernst A. Marx, director of the International Division of Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, predicted that the latter two countries would assume increasing importance in the TV area during the next few years.

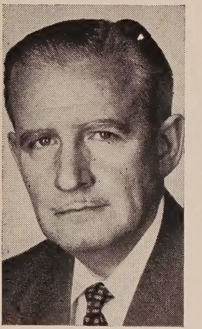
MORE THAN A TRADE SHOW

By MERLIN LEWIS

Executive Secretary, Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers' Association, Inc.

THERE IS an erroneous impression that TESMA is an organization of manufacturers banded together simply to produce a trade show each year. While it is true, of course, that TESMA does produce a gigantic trade show annually, and lately in cooperation with one of the two major theater exhibitor organizations, and more lately with the cooperation of the International Popcorn Association, the trade show is only one of the association's functions.

TESMA originally was founded in 1933 with the simple purpose of improving relations with equipment manufacturers and the dealers and theater owners of the United States and Canada. The first few trade shows were held simply to permit dealers in theater equipment and supplies to see what was new or going to be new in the field and for the manufacturers to make deals for distribution of their product with the dealers operating in various sections of the country.



LEWIS

If theater owners in the vicinity of the trade show wanted to look over the manufacturers' products, that was so much frosting on the cake, but there was no concerted effort on the part of TESMA or TEDA (Theatre Equipment Dealers' Association) to bring the theater owners into the exhibition hall of the trade show. There even have been recorded some instances where theater owners have found it quite difficult to gain entrance, much to their expressed indignation.

Back in 1933 during a convention of the then Independent Dealers' Association at the Hotel Stevens (now the Conrad Hilton) Oscar F. Neu, later president of TESMA, conceived an idea, at that time a most revolutionary one, for the manufacturers present to organize as an association. An impromptu meeting held in an anteroom heard Neu's suggestion which met with such immediate approval and approbation that the association was formed on the spot.

Present at the first meeting, according to the recollection of Oscar Neu were E. Allen Williford, National Carbon Co.; Neu, Neumade Products Corp.; Harry Strong, Strong Electric Corp.; Earl J. Vallen, Vallen, Inc.; Karl Brenkert, Brenkert Light & Projector Corp.; Joe Robin, Robin, Inc.; William Gedris, Ideal Seating Co.; and Clarence and Mary Ashcraft, Ashcraft Manufacturing Co. At Neu's suggestion Williford was elected the association's first president. Neu was elected secretary-treasurer.

A series of meetings finally brought forth the constitution and by-laws of the association, dated Nov. 7, 1934 which stated as the objects and purposes of the association:

"The objects of this association shall be to protect, promote, foster and advance the interests of the members, as manufacturers and distributors of theatrical equipment and supplies; to increase the use of their products; to improve the conditions under which the industry is carried on; to develop fair and just competitive methods; to perfect machinery for the peaceful settlement of disputes between members, or between them and their customers; to collect and disseminate pertinent data relating to the industry; and generally to do such things authorized by the certificate of incorporation, as may be necessary for the foregoing results.

The second section of "objects and purposes" reads,

"The association is not organized for pecuniary profit and shall not declare dividends or other financial distribution to members."

It is interesting to note that the "Objects and Purposes" of the Constitution and By-Laws of TESMA, under its reorganization in 1945 were exactly the same as in the original constitution in 1934. They were laudable, they made and still make sense—and the Association carries on under the directives in that section of the Constitution today.

It happened that the early days of TESMA were not as successful as they are today, with some of the early members failing to pay dues and that, with other factors caused the organization to disintegrate slowly but surely. It ceased to exist for a while—and what with the war and the impossibility of holding Trade Shows during that long and arduous period it was not reorganized until 1945, when again, Oscar Neu felt that the industry was again ready to accept and support an organization such as TESMA.

At the Hotel Stevens that year, during one of the dealers' conventions, Neu called another meeting of manufacturers which was attended by 25 to 30 representatives. TESMA as it exists today was the result of that meeting. Neu was elected its first president. He was succeeded by J. Robert Hoff. Fred C. Matthews, incumbent president, took office in 1953.

The first convention and Trade Show of the reorganized and re-vitalized group was held in Toledo in 1946 under the direction of Harry Strong, Strong Electric Corp., with 40 to 45 companies participating. The show was so successful that it has been repeated every year with increasing success.

Roy Boomer, lately retired as secretary-treasurer of TESMA was appointed in 1946 as full time executive for the association. He held this post until late 1954, most successfully until ill health dictated his retirement. The writer was elected to succeed Boomer late the same year.

Another section of the TESMA constitution states, "The principal office of the association shall be located in the city in which the secretary resides." And since the present secretary resides in the City of New York, offices of TESMA have been opened in the Times Tower Building, 1475 Broadway, New York 36, N. Y.

As an additional service to members the TESMA office may be used as New York headquarters for visiting members, with the services of the office's secretarial staff available to them for minor letters, etc., and for the receipt of telephone calls, telegrams and meetings with customers, etc.

Credit information to members is another service of the association. Such credit information is compiled at least twice yearly and sent to all members. Specific credit information also is made available at any given time when such immediate information is necessary.

TESMA's annual trade show in 1955 will be held at the Hotel Morrison, Chicago, with Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, Theatre Equipment Dealers Association (TEDA) and International Popcorn Association (IPA) as joint participants.

Two entire exhibit floors at the Hotel Morrison have been engaged to house the total of 253 booths, more than ever have been available at any exhibition of TESMA trade show with or without the participation of other organizations at any time. It is expected that this 1955 trade show will exceed in booth spaces occupied and in exhibitor attendance anything ever achieved before.

The first exhibit floor of the Morrison will house exhibits of equipment such as projection, sound and other heavy equipment with the third floor exhibit hall housing exhibits relating to the concessions field.

The entire trade show, including the first and third floor exhibits will be under the direction of the TESMA executive secretary, with the third floor managed by the executive secretary of the International Popcorn Association.

Invitations to exhibit at this gigantic show will go forward to members of TESMA, IPA and others early in the year with the expectation of an early sell-out of booth space.

One more word about forthcoming trade shows for 1956, 1957 and later years. It is TESMA's intention to work toward bringing both great exhibitor associations together to participate in a trade show that should dwarf anything ever attempted in any field.

Minor differences between TOA and National Allied have prevented this accomplishment heretofore. The differences are minor, however, and it is hoped that they can be ironed out to accomplish this result sometime within the next two years. Otherwise, TESMA might decide to hold its own trade show without exhibitor organization participation.

Since TESMA's purpose is not to make money on these trade shows, but to further the best interests of its members and to acquaint theater owners and operators with the equipment available for them to permit the best presentation of films to their audiences, it is felt that a trade show that would encompass all fields of exhibition is the only way to accomplish that objective.

Alternate year trade shows with one of the big exhibitor organizations only partially accomplishes TESMA's objective, and while the partial accomplishments are worth while, they might be just as well done, without direct exhibitor participation.

In any event the goal is there and if personal animosity on the part of the two exhibitor organizations can be allayed, and it might, the goal may be reached in 1956 or 1957. It's worth trying for.

THE DRIVE-IN THEATER

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Equipment News Editor, The Film Daily

THE STORY OF THE DRIVE-IN in the United States is the sensational tale of the greatest structural growth and economic progress of any segment of exhibition in the history of the motion picture industry. The drive-in now is an undisputably permanent and highly important part of our industry, belying some pessimistic predictions about its future made by crystal ball gazers a few years ago.

CUNNINGHAM

The drive-in numerically has multiplied 13 times in eight years! It has spiraled from the rather dubious position of exhibition's "step-child," scattered thinly and inexpensively through some 300 operations over the land in 1946, to 4,100 full-scale "ozoners" dotting the highways and hillsides at the turn of this year, many of them representing investments running as high as $500,000.

The drive-in has by no means even approached its saturation point, conservative estimates placing the total at around 4,700 by the yearend. Parts of the South, Midwest and West are among the more prosperous operating areas for the outdoor theater, due in large measure to weather suitability for longer periods than elsewhere. But, like the old Post Office motto, "Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat," etc., the engineers of industry equipment manufacturers are fast mastering the elements by portable mechanical means to bring comfort to the occupants of drive-in customers elsewhere whose cars are now serviced with hot air in cold weather and cool air in the heat. Word of successful year-round operations is now heard frequently from places where heretofore a solid six months of operation for a drive-in was considered to be the maximum.

The Equipment News Section of THE FILM DAILY continually reports these and other mechanical advancements created expressly for this comparatively new multi-million-dollar market for theater supplies of all kinds and description, many of a type peculiar alone to the drive-in.

Reliable estimates appearing in the Equipment News Section in mid-Winter counted some 400 new drive-ins already in view for this country this year, either set for Spring opening, ready for construction, or well advanced on drawing boards for an early construction start. Sponsors of another 200 projects will in all probability be heard from before the year is over. The 400 new projects will create a market for equipment sales of at least $10,000,000 on the basis of a conservative arbitrary estimate of $25,000 per installation for projection and related operating equipment alone. Sales of towers, vending, food, playground and other equipment will reach additional millions.

What all of this structural upbuilding means dollar-wise to the theater equipment manufacturer, to the distributor of his products and to the scores of Film Row supply dealers can best be attested by the fact that the drive-in stands today as the customer responsible for bulging the order books of many equipment purveyors as they have never bulged before. Excluded, of course, are the tremendous expenditures made by the conventional theater during the past two years for equipment required for new media. The over all extent of new equipment creations and the new designs for new functions of old equipment caused one of the country's top authorities on industry technical matters to observe, "We haven't had such a taste of change in theater equipment in many years. The outlook is very, very good."

Principal items headed for high ground in drive-in equipment sales are projectors, lenses, speakers, in-car heaters, projection lamps, screens and towers, rectifiers, rewinders, sound systems, film cabinets, generators, sign letters, ticket machines, playground equipment, vending machines, food and drink dispensers, etc.

The growth of the drive-in theater in this country over the past eight years in its relation to the narrowing number of indoor theaters was summarized by the Council of Motion Picture Organizations as follows:

ENGINEERING PRODUCTS DIVISION, CAMDEN, N.J.

mates the average per-person capacity of a drive-in theater at 700. Uncle Sam's estimate appears to be based on two persons per car in an average 350-car drive-in. That seems to be ultra conservative, when consideration is given to these facts: (1) Stronger projection light and larger screens are enlarging the car capacities of the older, smaller operations; (2) Both of these technical advancements allow for the construction of much larger drive-ins, and, (3) The growth of the drive-in as a brand new recreational facility for the family trade—the youngsters and mom and pop—has about trebled the in-car capacity of the per-car unit. One-thousand-car drive-ins are no longer exceptions, and a few builders have already achieved "audience" space for 2,000 cars.

What started out a few short years ago to be a place to see a movie in the cool of the countryside away from the heat of town has grown to be an amusement center with playgrounds and swimming pools, bowling alleys, golf driving ranges, archery courts, snack bars, cafeterias and smart restaurants, trails for horseback riders, picnic areas, concession stands of fantastic proportions and content and all of the attractions which so many exhibitors once viewed ominously as strong competition from outdoor amusements operated elsewhere by others. This places the drive-in theater operator in a newly-developing money-making amusement park position in the daytime while he awaits dusk to engage in the business of showing motion pictures, which he started out to do in the first place.

The present 4,100 drive-ins gross more from concession sales generally than all of the 15,000 indoor theaters combined; their bulk soft drink sales are four times greater than the beverage sales of all conventional houses.

The expanding drive-in activity in exhibition is a magnet drawing scores of new enterprising businessmen to the motion picture industry. Some mighty big local investors are becoming interested in these sprawling drive-in ventures. This "new blood" is vitalizing exhibition.

Not in decades has exhibition been so decentralized, ownership-wise, as it exists today in the field of the "ozoner." Only recently did the old established nationally-operated major circuit interests give any tangible evidence of looking into the economic potentialities of this great new field. Loew's acquired the Twin Drive-In Theater at Oak Lawn, Chicago, in February. The expansion restrictions imposed upon the majors by the United States Government's theater divorcement court proceedings have been a restraining factor, of course.

In injecting new blood into exhibition, many new builders of drive-ins have brought a fresh operational and showmanship approach and, gradually, gain a sharper knowledge of theater mechanics than that possessed by so many operators of conventional theaters who have depended almost entirely for so long upon their theater projectionists, electricians, et al., for practically all of the answers concerning the mechanical problems of their theaters.

Drive-in theaters' film buying is said to already represent some 22 per cent of the gross rental dollar accruing during the late Spring, Summer and early Fall operating period.

Drive-in operators with their own varied assortment of film buying and booking problems have finally made their combined voices heard in protest against certain distributor practices which they charge are discriminatory. They have their own national exhibitor organization—now two years young—National Allied Drive-in Theater Association. At a film clinic held during the group's second annual convention in St. Louis in February, the outdoor operators made distributors the targets of attack for percentage rental demands, for print shortages, clearances and other practices which operators of indoor theaters have long complained are a plague to them.

Full recognition of the drive-ins' purchasing power in the vending and concession product field was in great evidence at the drive-in convention in St. Louis where by far the largest number of the 73 display booths featured items for concession consumption by outdoor showmen.

The widespread interest of drive-in exhibitors in vending equipment and concession products was in evidence to an even greater extent when some 500 operators of drive-ins crowded the first concession clinic to be arranged for a national exhibitor convention, staged by Allied during the St. Louis meeting.

To the millions of dollars in potential purchases of regular theater equipment, more can be added to the purchasing power of the drive-ins in playground and other equipment and in food and confection products vended at their concession stands.

The growth of the drive-in has been a more or less natural growth without the shot-in-the-arm stimulants which have on occasion given new economic life to the indoor operation. No big hullabaloo touting 3-D pictures, or CinemaScope, VistaVision, stereophonic sound, high fidelity of this or that, widescreen or any other related mechanical or merchandising factor can be credited with creating the present and ever-growing drive-in public.

Ironically, the drive-in theater has some advantage over the indoor operation in presenting to the moviegoer the broad scope of widescreen media. For one thing, the drive-in has acreage, and none of the screen-surface limitations of the four-waller. Widths of drive-in screens are calculated these days in sizes of from 100 to 140 feet! A screen running 50 feet high by 100 feet wide is a comparatively common ratio.

The drive-in's growth in the past few years can be tied directly to the phenomenal sales of the automobile and the related appeal of the outdoors, to the public's urge to get out into the open, to the unsurmountable parking problems of congested areas, to the informality of dress permissible at drive-ins in comparison to the conventional attire required for attendance at the theater in town.

Abram F. Myers, board chairman of National Allied, remarked recently, "Drive-in theaters constitute one of the most interesting and colorful and certainly one of the most diversified branches of show business. Their capacity to purchase, use and consume all manner of equipment, gadgets and supplies is astounding."

THERE'S MORE THAN MEETS THE EYE (AND EAR)TO SOUND SERVICE

By BERT ENNIS

Altec Service Corp.

AN EXHIBITOR signs a contract with an organization that specializes in inspecting, maintaining and repairing, when necessary, the vitally important and costly equipment in his booth which reproduces dialog, music and effects. For the purposes of this dissertation the organization, naturally enough, is Altec Service Corp. In almost all cases of record he finds the service satisfactory, and in many instances, discovers that the proper administration of this service is reflected in increased box-office receipts.

What thousands of exhibitors are unaware of is what makes a service organization of repute and experience tick. We who use the mails take almost entirely for granted the small miracles performed every day in the year by the men in grey and the organization behind them. Quite a few of us can stumble through the first few words chiseled in stone across the facade of the post office. "Neither snow, nor rain, nor sleet, nor gloom of night . . . " The writer pauses here, not even certain he has quoted the saying correctly.

ENNIS

The analogy we strive for here is not far-fetched. Far from it. The man in grey with his sack of mail and the Altec field engineer with his precious bag have many things in common. They perform a necessary service, they both save the day on numerous occasions, and they both brave the elements so eloquently described by the Frenchman whose words stand as an etrenal tribute to those who serve.

True it is that the sound equipment engineer represents formal education, training, and technical skills unnecessary in the tasks performed by those who deliver the mail. True it is that at times the problems encountered call upon all the ingenuity, technical knowledge and experience possessed by that same engineer.

But both are engaged in the enormously important field of service, and both must "deliver the mail," come what may. To reduce proof of this to cold statistics, it has been estimated that the 200 field engineers who yearly travel from coast to coast in behalf of Altec, cover 4,000,000 miles, use up well over 250,000 gallons of gas, and wear out uncountable sets of tires on the company cars that carry them to their appointed tasks.

Behind these trained service men stands an organization which has invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in research, experiment and development to keep them abreast of the latest knowledge dealing with theater sound techniques both new and old, plus many more hundreds of thousands of dollars to devise and manufacture the precise and delicate instruments, tools and test films which form a part of the equipment of every man in the field.

The carrier who delivers the mail to the exhibitor performs a necessary and vital service; the Altec field engineer delivers a service equally vital and important so that the show may go on day after day, week after week and that so the sound that emanates from the speakers may alternately amuse, entertain and startle those who sit, and watch, and listen.

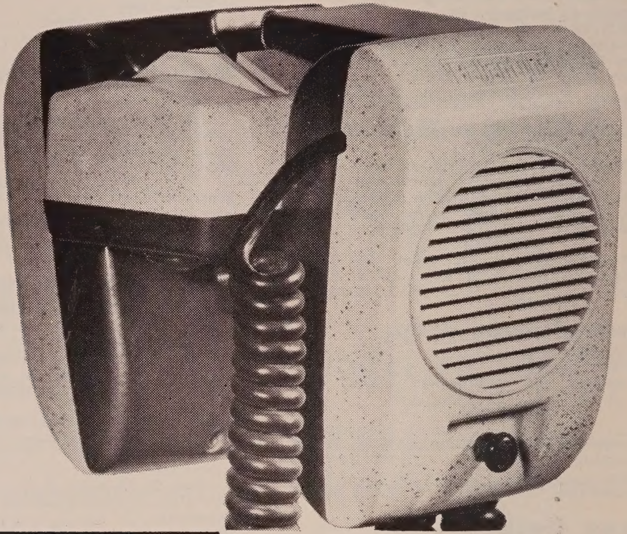
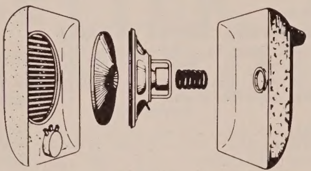
NEW BALLANTYNE Dub'l-Cone



An Entirely New Idea!

Change Cones in Seconds



It's faster and eaiser than ever before. You merely open the case, lift out the damaged or weathered cone and drop in a new one. No gluing, no screws. It's designed so that the new cone aligns itself perfectly. And best of all, new cones are less expensive than ever before.

The new double cone speaker brings a new standard to drive-in sound. Lower speaker resonance gives greatly improved reproduction to more nearly equal the quality of much larger speakers. A great new development in design allows you to change outer cones in seconds, by merely dropping a new one in place without special glue or tools. An entirely new cone assembly that is reinforced with a metal ring and spider completely eliminates rattles. Cone is absolutely non-collapsing. New strength, new sound and great durability in a die cast aluminum case make the new Double Cone second to none.

"A" Series. Deluxe model in handsome blue and white baked on undercoat and finish coat.

"Q" Series. Exactly the same as the "A" Series except for handsome two-tone gray hammerloid finish.

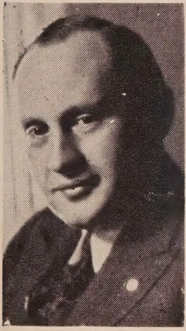
LEGISLATIVE RESTRICTIONS IN FOREIGN FILM MARKETS

By NATHAN D. GOLDEN

Director, Scientific, Motion Picture & Photographic Products Division
Business and Defense Services Administration
U. S. Department of Commerce

REMITTANCES of film earnings in 1954 from exhibition of United States films in the international market were estimated at $180,000,000 to $185,000,000, exceeding the record of $170,000,000 estimated for 1953. This increase in remittances is generally attributable to larger gross receipts for United States films shown abroad as well as the stronger foreign exchange position in a number of countries which has led to a gradual decline in the pool of blocked film earnings.



GOLDEN

Probably the most important factor in the growth of foreign business for United States films is the increasing number of high quality productions which are being exported. Film company officials returning from trips abroad have commented on the very good attendance at showings of United States films in practically all foreign markets. New projection techniques, which are now being introduced in foreign countries at a much accelerated rate, certainly have been a contributing factor in the larger business for United States film companies abroad. It is even more evident today that United States films, with their appeal to audiences in all walks of life, and their greater entertainment value, are the favorites with movie-goers throughout the free world.

The foreign market for United States films has become increasingly important to the economy of the American industry. A recent industry estimate stated that approximately 42 per cent of the total income of the United States film industry is accounted for by foreign revenues. In view of its tremendous export business, probably the largest export industry of any size in the United States, the maintenance of vital foreign markets for United States films is imperative. This requires constant negotiations with foreign governments and national film industries.

The outlook for the future is difficult to forecast. While at one time the major concern of United States film companies operating in the foreign market was one of foreign exchange with which to make remittances, during the past few years they have been faced with increasing legislative activity designed to protect and promote national film industries. This legislation may be in the form of limitations placed on the number of United States films to be imported or it may guarantee the national film industry playing time for its product regardless of its quality or appeal to the audience. Financial assistance is also given to national film industries, and in a number of countries the revenue for this subsidy is derived mainly from taxes levied on United States films.

There follows a country-by-country resume of the various legislative restrictions affecting the distribution and exhibition of United States films throughout the world:

EUROPE

ALBANIA—All motion picture theaters in Albania have been nationalized and the importation, distribution, and exhibition of films is entirely in the hands of the Albanian government which has shown no desire to import any films except those of Soviet production.

AUSTRIA — No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Austria which might reduce or prevent the distribution of United States motion pictures. While there were reports that the Austrian Government was placing limitations on the number of United States films imported during 1953, no difficulty was reported in importing films during 1954. Import licenses are required. Transfer of dollar exchange for film remittances is prohibited except in occasional individual cases when limited transfers of foreign exchange may be obtained through the Austrian National Bank. An agreement was reached in 1950 between the United States and Soviet elements in Austria whereby exhibition of United States films in the Soviet Zone of Austria would be permitted. The agreement provided that the same number of United States films are to be shown in the Soviet Zone as Soviet films in the United States Zone.

BELGIUM—In 1953, the United States film industry reached an agreement with the Belgian Government covering imports and remittances of dollar earnings during the two-year period beginning March 1, 1953. This agreement is reported to provide for the entry of about the same number of United States feature films (approximately 250) as during the year 1952 and provides for the remittance in dollars of 65 per cent of current film earnings. It was also agreed that practically all prints of black and white films distributed in Belgium would be printed in Belgian film laboratories. Import licenses are required and are granted without undue delay.

The Belgian Government provides for the payment of a subsidy to producers of Belgian newsreels, short subjects, and full-length entertainment films. The subsidy to be paid to producers of full-length films is established as an amount equal to 70 per cent of the exhibition tax collected on the movie programs of which the domestic film forms a part. For documentary and short films this percentage is 25 per cent.

BULGARIA—All theaters in Bulgaria are nationalized and the importation and distribution of motion pictures is controlled by the state monopoly.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA—The Government of Czechoslovakia has established a State monopoly that controls the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures. No imports may be made without a license; an allocation of foreign exchange automatically follows issuance of the import license. While there are no regulations restricting the distribution of foreign films, measures controlling the distribution of films are implied in the institution of the monopoly. No new United States films are known to have been released in Czechoslovakia in recent years.

DENMARK—The Danish Government allocated 3,950,000 crowns for dollar remittances for film revenues during 1953. This was a 23 per cent increase over the 1952 allotment and reflected Denmark's improved dollar situation. (One Danish crown equals U. S. $0.1447.) Film rental receipts due United States producers in excess of this allocation were blocked and no proposal has been made for the use of these blocked funds. The foreign exchange allocation for 1954 is not known, however, restrictions on film remittances have been liberalized and no difficulty has been reported in completing the usual type of remittances for film earnings during 1954. It is reported that all of the net earnings received from exhibition of United States films in Denmark are now eligible for remittance. Danish legislation provides financial assistance to Danish film producers. The law provides for 25 per cent of the entertainments tax receipts from exhibition of Danish films to be remitted to the producer of the film. Ceiling prices on theater tickets were abolished in 1952.

FINLAND—There are no quotas limiting the number of films which may be imported into Finland, however, restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange may tend to reduce the distribution of imported films. Import licenses are required but carry no title to foreign exchange, for which a separate application is required.

FRANCE—In November 1953, a film agreement between the French Government and the United States motion picture industry was worked out and signed, however, it took almost continuous negotiations during the first half of 1954 before the agreement was activated. The agreement covers the two-year period, July 1953 to June 1955, and provides for a basic quota of 90 import permits for United States films during each year. Supplementary authorizations may be granted not to exceed 20 permits each year. Assurance is offered that at least 109 permits will be granted during each year. During the period of the agreement, United States film companies as a group are authorized to convert their franc earnings into dollars at the official rate of exchange up to $200,000 per month. Franc earnings in excess of this amount are blocked and may be employed for a number of specified purposes. The new agreement also is reported to provide for the franc equivalent of about $350,000, which has been held in France in a reserve fund, to be turned over to the French Government to be used by the French motion picture industry.

Playing time regulations require French films to be exhibited five weeks out of each thirteen. In September 1948 the French Government created a temporary fund for the subsidy of the French film industry. Revenue for this fund was supplied by taxes on theater admissions and on a meterage tax based on the length of the film. The bulk of the revenue for this subsidy was derived from taxes levied on United States films. In August 1953 these taxes were increased when a new film assistance law was enacted making the film fund a more or less permanent subsidy for the French industry.

GERMANY—No import quota regulations are in effect which would reduce or prevent distribution of United States films in Western Germany. There is a so-called "Gentlemen's Agreement" between the United States film industry and the West German film industry which limits the United States feature film imports into that country to 240. This agreement was extended to cover the 1954-55 distribution year. Import licenses are required for the importation of motion pictures. Despite the absence of any laws requiring a percentage of German films to be exhibited, screen time for German films has been increasing. German productions occupied approximately 36 per cent of total screen time during the 1952-53 distribution year compared to about 31 per cent in 1951-52.

On September 16, 1954, the German Government virtually abolished the system of blocked accounts. On that date all blocked accounts were to be transferable to any country with which Germany had a payment agreement or might be credited to so-called liberalized capital accounts. Balances in the liberalized capital accounts could be used for any purpose within Germany. While direct transfers of such accounts to dollars is not yet possible, transfers can be made indirectly through any European Payments Union currency at a small discount. United States film companies have no difficulty in transferring their film earnings from Germany under this arrangement.

GIBRALTAR—All booking of films into Gibraltar is done through London. Applications for dollars are made to the Financial Secretary of the Colony, and dollars can be had for the purchase of United States films only if the British Financial Secretary in England approves. A Gibraltar Ordinance provides that all U. S. dollars acquired must be surrendered to the Government. It is unlikely that permit to import films and export currency from Gibraltar would be granted.

GREECE—The Bank of Greece issued a resolution dated July 14, 1953 authorizing an allocation of $600,000 for importing United States films during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954. The $600,000 was to be made available in four quarterly installments of $150,000 each. United States feature productions of the eight major film companies in the United States could be imported only on a percentage royalty basis. Foreign exchange was authorized at the time of import to cover print costs of United States films, the value of pertinent advertising materials, and transportation charges. Any balance left over after these initial payments were to be used for payment of film royalties.

On March 17, 1954, the Greek Government issued a revised set of import regulations which authorized importation both on a percentage and on a flat royalty basis from all sources. There were two general limitations, the amount of flat royalties could not exceed $4,000 per feature film and remittance of flat royalties could not be effected until the picture involved had been released for exhibition in a first-run theater in Greece, but could be remitted within 60 days of such exhibition. Inasmuch as nearly all United States films are imported on a percentage royalty basis, this has little effect on the distribution of United States films.

In the case of films imported for distribution on a percentage royalty basis, the foreign producer's share may not exceed 60 per cent of gross royalty earnings. The foreign producer's share of royalty earnings must be deposited with the Bank of Greece within 60 days from the close of the calendar month during which earnings were realized. Foreign exchange required for the payment of United States producers' share of percentage royalties up to June 30, 1954 were to be made available from the $600,000 authorized for that fiscal year. While no foreign exchange authorization was made for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955, no difficulty with respect to royalty remittances were expected and no problems along this line had been reported at the end of 1954.

On April 2, 1954, a general regulation was issued requiring Greek importers to obtain an import approval certificate from Greek authorities prior to contracting with a foreign supplier and before effecting shipment of films. United States motion picture exporters were warned against making shipment before the necessary import approval had been granted in Greece as authorized shipments are subject to heavy penalties.

There is still the problem of accumulated blocked film earnings on deposit in the bank of Greece. The Ministry of Commerce agreed in principle in March 1954 to authorize the transfer of the entire balance standing on the books of the Bank of Greece to the credit of United States film companies as of September 30, 1953. However, final arrangements for the clearance of these accumulated funds had not been made at the end of 1954.

HUNGARY—Production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures in Hungary have been nationalized and are completely under Government control. A contract which was signed with the Motion Picture Export Association in 1948 was never honored and the films under the contract were never released in Hungary. No new U. S. films are known to have been released in Hungary in recent years. MPEA reported that in March 1950 the Hungarian Government issued an order requiring it to surrender all motion picture prints of member companies on hand in Hungary to the Ministry of Education.

ICELAND—Imports of motion pictures into Iceland have been curtailed since the beginning of 1948 because of shortage of foreign currencies, especially dollars. Import and currency licenses are required. The currency permit does not guarantee foreign exchange which is dependent upon exchange available and a priority determined by a foreign exchange committee.

IRELAND—The importation of motion pictures into Ireland continues to be handled from the United Kingdom. All United States films that are exhibited are obtained from the British subsidiaries of United States film companies and payment is made in sterling. No quotas or other import regulations are in effect in Ireland that restrict importation and exhibition of United States films.

ITALY—Under the terms of the Italian film agreement, covering the two-year period from September 1, 1954 to August 31, 1956, United States film companies are permitted to remit a reported $3,000,000 at the official rate of exchange, plus the transfer of the equivalent of their payments for dubbing fees and 5 per cent of any balance remaining in their blocked accounts at the end of each calendar year. It is expected that United States film companies will be permitted to remit annually about $4,200,000 under this agreement. Utilization of blocked United States film earnings in Italy was to be further liberalized to permit compensation deals and it is believed that at the end of 1954 United States film companies had very little blocked funds in Italy. One notable change in the new agreement was the elimination of the payment to the Italians by United States film companies of 12½ percent of United States film earnings in Italy. This payment was required under previous agreements and the funds were used to promote the export of Italian films.

The Italian film law requires Italian exhibitors to reserve a portion of their screen time, a minimum of 80 days a year, for the showing of Italian films. The law establishes a contribution to Italian feature film producers based on a percentage of gross receipts, and provides a tax rebate to exhibitors showing Italian films. Italian exhibitors must show either an Italian produced newsreel or short subject at each theater program.

LUXEMBOURG—There are no trade restrictions which might prevent, retard, or hinder United States films being shown in Luxembourg and no such measures are contemplated. Import permits are not required. Films rented by the Luxembourg theaters are paid for through Belgium and adequate foreign exchange has been available for this purpose.

MALTA—All United States and British films entering Malta are brought into the country through London and are distributed by the Malta United Film Corporation, a subsidiary of the Kinematograph Renters Society in London.

NETHERLANDS—The Netherlands Motion Picture Association in its annual report states that the Netherlands Bank late in 1953 decided to rescind the transfer and licensing permit granted to the Association after the liberation of the Netherlands. The Netherlands Bank retains its controlling responsibility for and authority over foreign exchange expended for the importation of motion pictures. In place of the old arrangement, whereby import licenses were obtained from the Association, the Bank has granted film distributors permission to negotiate licensing contracts and to settle payment obligations with foreigners without previous approval by the Bank. This permission has been granted because the general foreign exchange position of the Netherlands has become much more favorable and foreign exchange transactions are gradually becoming easier. At the end of 1954 no difficulties were being encounted in the allocation of foreign exchange for United States films.

Regulations governing playing time of films provide that exhibitors should show for at least 12 weeks each year feature films that had not been made in the United States and for which no dollars were to be paid, or from which no dollar debt would arise. Negotiations were carried on during 1954 between the United States film industry and the Netherlands Motion Picture Association in an attempt to remove the ceiling placed on film rentals in the Netherlands. At the end of 1954, however, while wide-screen and three-dimensional pictures were subject to free negotiations between distributors and exhibitors, the rental of all other feature films must be within a sliding scale from 22½ percent to 40 percent.

NORWAY—There are no pertinent quota or contingent measures in effect in Norway for the importation of United States films. Import permits are required. Arrangements for the transfer of film earnings has remained the same during the past few years. In 1951 a total of 4,000,000 crowns was allocated for film earnings, and it is believed that since that year the allocation has remained at about the same level. (7.135 crowns equal U. S. $1.00) Of the foreign exchange allocated for film earnings, 35 percent could be transferred in dollars, 35 percent was blocked for transfer in equal parts during each of the four following years, and 30 percent was to be made available to Norwegian distributors for operating expenses in Norway. Considerable negotiation has gone on during recent years in an effort to increase the rental ceiling for exhibition of United States films. In June 1953 an agreement was reported which provided for an increase from 30 percent to 40 percent in basic rentals for United States films distributed in Norway and that five super productions could be released at special rental rates. During the last half of 1954, the question of film rentals came up again and at the close of 1954 was still under discussion and no new agreement had been announced.

POLAND—Government owned "Film Polski" has a monopoly of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures for the entire country of Poland. All transfers of foreign exchange are subject to the approval of the Polish Government. Due to the serious shortage of foreign exchange in this country, the obtaining of such permits is extremely difficult. To date no foreign exchange has been secured for U. S. films. Import permits are required.

PORTUGAL—Remittance of United States film royalties has been free of complications during recent years, however, they are subject to prior sanction of the Bank of Portugal. Theaters must exhibit Portuguese films one week to every five weeks of foreign films, except when national productions are not available. Licenses are required for all imports, however, distributors have not experienced any difficulty in obtaining licenses for films. During the years 1948 through 1951 a total of $600,000 annually was allocated for motion picture films. In 1952 this amount was reduced to $450,000, however, upon protests of the United States film distributors in Portugal the amount was again raised to $600,000 for 1953 and 1954.

RUMANIA—On November 2, 1948, a decree was approved nationalizing all motion picture enterprises in Rumania, which covered all studios, laboratories, import, export, rental and marketing concerns with all their properties, equipment, furnishing and inventories. Foreign exchange may be transferred only upon approval by the National Bank of Rumania and as far as is known no transfers for U. S. films have been made during the past year.

SPAIN—On November 21, 1953, representatives of the Spanish Government and the Uniited States film industry signed a new agreement covering the importation of United States films during the period June 1, 1953 to May 30, 1954. This agreement provided for a total of 100 full-length United States feature films to be imported, 60 to be distributed by the seven United States film distributors in Spain and 40 by Spanish distributors. Also 100 motion picture short subjects may be imported. Prior to December 1954, an additional small quota of films may be authorized for the remainder of the 1954-55 period. The agreement also states that the Spanish Film Service each quarter will request approval for the remittance in dollars of 40 per cent of the accumulated peseta balances of the United States distributors in Spain. If dollars are not available, the authorities may grant approval for the transfer of the pesetas. The remaining 60 per cent of income accruing to the distributors may be spent for specified purposes, including production of United States films in Spain.

The Spanish Film Service also agreed that it would do everything possible to arrange for the temporary importation of movies so that customs duties will not have to be paid until the film has been cleared for exhibition in Spain and dubbing completed. Dubbing charges are 600,000 pesetas for black and white feature films and 700,000 pesetas for color films. Short subject dubbing charges are 12,500 pesetas for black and white and 14,000 pesetas for color films.

Spanish theaters must show Spanish films one week out of six unless the film industry cannot provide the exhibitor with a Spanish production in which case he may continue to show foreign films. This is often the case. A newsreel must be shown on each theater program and the only newsreel permitted in Spain is the nationally produced "NO-DO."

SWEDEN—While the importation of motion picture films was liberalized in October 1954 and import licenses are no longer required by the Swedish authorities, the transfer of film earnings is still subject to rigid control. All transfer of foreign exchange requires authorization of the Swedish foreign exchange authorities. The transfer of film rentals and royalties is subject to a special agreement between the Swedish Riksbank and the United States film companies. In renewing the annual agreement in 1952, it was reported that the Swedish Government somewhat liberalized its restrictions on the transfer of current film royalties. Blocked film earnings may be liquidated by way of special compensation transactions. At the present time it is possible to obtain rawstock film, negatives, and prints as needed to maintain normal distribution in Sweden of United States films and no problems have been encountered with regard to foreign exchange.

SWITZERLAND—Imports of films are controlled by the quasi-official Swiss Film Chamber in Bern, which issues import permits to holders of quotas. Quotas for the importation of films into Switzerland are based on the Federal Decree of July 7, 1939, which granted distributors the right to import feature films to the same extent as imported during the 4-year period January 1935 through December 1938. The usual quota assigned to an importer is equal to at least 50 per cent and at most 70 per cent of the average number of 35 mm. features he imported during this four-year period. During 1949 and 1950, the import quota was fixed at 70 per cent of the base period, however, for 1951 and 1952 it was reduced to 60 per cent. Provision is made for special cases, both for extra quotas for established importers and for assignment of quotas to importers who did not exist in the market in 1938. Contingents are based on titles and are allotted to individual importers and not to countries. There are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange.

TURKEY — No quota or contingent measures which might reduce or prevent the distribution of United States motion pictures are in effect in Turkey. An import and foreign exchange permit must be obtained from the Turkish authorities. This permit can be obtained only after the motion picture has been approved by the Turkish Censorship Board. In past years there has been no difficulty in securing dollar exchange for United States films. However, early in 1954 the Turkish Bank in order to control dollar exchange, which was in extremely short supply, issued an order that Turkish distributors of United States films would have to deposit their payments in the Bank and the Bank would make payment to the United States companies. Since that time, United States film companies have not received payments for their films and their credits are accumulating into a sizeable sum. United States film companies have no distribution set-up in Turkey and sell their films to independent Turkish distributors. Although both Turkish distributors and United States film companies have appealed to the Turkish Government for some solution to this problem at the end of 1954 no relief was in sight.

Motion picture imports are subject to a transaction tax, which is assessed on most types of processed and semi-processed goods, imported into Turkey at a rate of 18 per cent of landed cost (which is defined to include customs duties and various miscellaneous taxes). In March 1948, the Turkish fiscal authorities ruled that not only was the motion picture films (imported copies) subject to this tax but that the royalties or their equivalent were to be included in calculating the basis of the tax. In spite of strong protests by importers and distributors, since that date the 18 per cent transaction tax has been levied on the royalty as well as the cost of the films used in imported copies.

There is also a substantial admission tax differential in favor of Turkish films which gives a strong impetus to the domestic industry. All efforts to have this differential reduced or removed have failed.

U.S.S.R.—The Soviet film industry is a Government monopoly under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of the Motion Picture Industry, and both domestic production and importation of foreign films are subject to the regulations of this ministry. In September 1948 an agreement was negotiated providing for the purchase of United States feature films for showing in Russia with payment to be made in dollars. However, delays were encountered in obtaining final Soviet approval of the agreement and no United States films were released in Russia.

UNITED KINGDOM—The new Anglo-American film agreement to cover the year beginning October 1, 1954, again provides for the transfer of $17,000,000 and contains provisions permitting convertibility of certain amounts of United States production investments in Britain. One notable change was made in the new agreement, United States film companies may now remit a portion of the United States distributors' share of the Eady Tax Plan money, not to exceed $2,250,000. The Eady Tax Plan provides for subsidies to the British film industries and in previous years the United States film companies have waived their rights to convert and remit their share of this subsidy. Annual remittances under this agreement are estimated at from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Government trade restrictions on the showing of foreign films have been in effect in the United Kingdom since 1927. At present 30 per cent of the first feature films exhibited in British theaters and 25 per cent of the supporting films (second features and shorts) must be British productions. The so-called Eady Plan to assist the British film industry was put into operation in September 1950 and in November 1953 was extended for another three years to the end of July 1957. This plan calls for an increase in the entertainment tax to establish a subsidy to be used by British film producers, distributors, and exhibitors.

Separate import licenses have been required for all motion picture films except newsreels since May 1948.

The National Film Finance Corporation was established in March 1949 with an initial grant of 5,000,000 pounds sterling as an operating fund from which loans could be made during a five-year period to assist British producers. In 1950 an additional 1,000,000 pounds sterling was made available to the Corporation and in 1954 the life of the Corporation was extended for an additional three year period.

YUGOSLAVIA—The motion picture industry in Yugoslavia is nationalized and all phases of the industry are entirely controlled by the Government. In October 1948 an agreement was signed with the Yugoslav Government providing for the purchase of a number of United States films with payments to be made in dollars. This agreement was significant in that United States films again entered this market and also it represented a reversal in the film policy of the Yugoslav Government. Prior to the agreement the official attitude was one of hostility to U.S. films and to encourage showing of Soviet pictures. At the present time about half of the pictures exhibited in Yugoslavia are United States productions. The chief problem in connection with the importation of United States films is that of foreign exchange for film payments.

In March 1952 the Information Media Guaranty Program of the United States Government allocated $300,000 to enable Yugoslavia to purchase or lease United States films. United States distributors after signing contracts with the U.S. Government would accept payment in the currency of Yugoslavia with the U.S. Government guaranteeing conversion to dollars where necessary. In 1953, under this program Yugoslavia purchased some 60 U.S. films for which the U.S. Government guaranteed conversion in the amount of $270,000. In 1954, the Information Media Guaranty contract for Yugoslavia was in the amount of $365,000, however, at the end of 1954 the Yugoslav Government had not approved the contract and it had not been finalized with the U.S. film companies.

CANADA

On December 14, 1951 the permit requirements for foreign exchange remittances were removed. The Canadian distributor is permitted to remit, at the going, or current, rate of exchange, to the United States producer the net profits on rentals and royalties, less a withholding tax of 10 per cent. United States motion pictures enter and are distributed freely throughout Canada without quota or exhibition restrictions.

SOUTH AMERICA

ARGENTINA—After not granting import permits for United States films from March 1949 through June 1951, the Argentine Government in recent years has granted import and exhibition permits for United States films. The transfer of film earnings, however, has not been authorized for a number of years. In December 1953, the Argentine Government changed its position and agreed to permit normal imports of films, including newsreels which had not been imported since 1952. Since that time exhibition permits have been issued at a normal rate and the backlog of films held for release has been greatly reduced.

A five-year agreement signed in May 1950 provided that American film earnings were to be remitted at the rate of 100,000,000 pesos annually during the life of the agreement. Implementation of the agreement was not wholly satisfactory for although U.S. films were permitted to be imported into Argentina no arrangements were made for the transfer of film earnings. By the end of 1953 it was reported that the Argentine Government had agreed to permit U.S. film distributors to remit $500,000 of their accumulated earnings, and early in 1954 it was reported that another $500,000 had been remitted. Also blocked film earnings were reportedly made available for transfer through compensation deals.

The Argentine Government issued a decree dated September 28, 1949 establishing a percentage of a film's earnings to be paid as a minimum rental to producer and distributor. At the present time, first-run theaters must pay a minimum of 60 per cent of gross earnings (less taxes) to the producer and distributor of Argentine films. Second-run theaters must pay a 45 per cent minimum rental and all other theaters 40 per cent for the first week and 30 per cent thereafter. There are no similar regulations applicable to distributors of imported films.

The Argentine Government also seeks to protect the local producer by restricting the exhibitions of his foreign competitor. Under existing regulations, all first-run theaters must show Argentine pictures one week out of every month, while all others must exhibit Argentine films three weeks out of every six. In addition, each Argentine film must remain in first-run theaters for a minimum of one week. If box-office receipts surpass 60 per cent of the figure established by that theater to justify the holding over of a foreign film, the Argentine film will continue for another week. This reduces the playing time available for foreign films.

BOLIVIA—Import permits are required for motion pictures and are granted on the basis of the amount of foreign exchange allocated by the Ministry of Finance. Provisions were made in the 1954 foreign exchange budget for a quota of $110,000 for the importation of films. However, only $55,000 was made available, as the import program only became effective during the second half of 1954. Official exchange was to be granted to film importers and distributors at the rate of $200 for each feature film imported. Any higher rental or sales price would have to be met by the importer through the purchase of exchange in the open market.

On May 27, 1954, a Bolivian decree gave authority to the Subsecretary of Press, Information and Culture to control the exhibition of all films imported into Bolivia to assure cultural and artistic quality of the product. Each distributor would be required to submit a list of films which he desired to import, giving the title, producer, names of stars, dates of release in the country of origin, whether black and white or color, and the reviews given the film by United States or Argentine trade papers. The Subsecretary was to select its program from the above list and allocate foreign exchange for its importation. However, negotiations between the U.S. film companies and the Bolivian Government resulted in an agreement whereby U.S. film producers would be allowed to supply programs without the condition of prior selection and tentatively fixed the amount to be paid for each film at $300 for which official exchange would be supplied.

BRAZIL — United States film companies have encountered considerable difficulty during the past several years in their efforts to distribute their products in the Brazilian market. These problems have included playing time quotas for Brazilian films, regulations requiring copies of imported films to be printed in Brazil, and difficulties in obtaining import licenses and transferring film earnings. The situation in Brazil during 1953 steadily improved and in July 1953 an agreement was reached whereby remittance of United States blocked film earnings were to be accomplished. At the end of 1953 it was reported that some $15,000,000 had been remitted from this market, and arrangements were made for the regular remittance of current film earnings. However, at the end of 1954 it was reported that some difficulty may be encountered in securing foreign exchange during 1955. Import license problems have been reduced and normal trade relations between United States film companies and Brazil were carried on during 1954.

Playing time regulations require that Brazilian films must be shown in the ratio of one Brazilian film program to every 8 foreign film programs. The Brazilian press reported in October 1952 that the Bank of Brazil had issued new regulations which would require importers to have foreign films copied in Brazilian laboratories beginning January 1, 1953. These new regulations stated that import licenses would be granted for only one copy of black and white 35-mm. pictures, either positive or negative. These regulations were not enforced in 1953 and it was reported in March 1954 that a compromise had been reached on this question of making prints in Brazil.

BRITISH GUIANA—Other than the regulation that 10 per cent British feature films and 50 per cent British newsreels must be shown annually, there are no quota measures which might reduce or prevent distribution of U. S. films. All film revenue from British Guiana is remitted to the film distributors who maintain head offices in Trinidad.

CHILE — No special restrictions are imposed on the entry of United States motion pictures into Chile. For the past several years United States film distributors have encountered difficulty in obtaining foreign exchange to remit to their principals. Since 1951 there has been no official allocation of dollars for motion pictures. In November 1954, distributors of U.S. films in Chile suffered another blow when the Government devaluated the official peso rate from 110 to the dollar to 200 to the dollar. Normal remittances are based on company earnings and are at the official rate as dollar exchange becomes available. Remittances were reported to be running about a year behind, with the lag being chiefly due to the reluctance of U.S. film distributors to make remittance at the free market rate because of the gap separating the official and free market rate. The free market rate of exchange at the end of 1954 was about 300 pesos to the dollar. Import permits are required for United States films.

COLOMBIA—There are no quota contingent measures in effect at the present time which reduce or prevent distribution of United States pictures in Colombia. Import permits are required for all merchandise brought into the country. Distributors of United States films have encountered no difficulty in obtaining import permits. The problem of remittance of film royalties on foreign films has largely disappeared. Royalty remittances are almost up to date and there seems to be little reason to expect that remittances will again be held up.

ECUADOR — There are no trade restrictions which prevent or restrict distribution of United States films in Ecuador. Motion picture films imported into Ecuador are included in List II, and foreign exchange for film remittances must be obtained in the legal free market. It is reported that dollar exchange is available for such remittances.

PARAGUAY — The only restrictions imposed on the importation of motion picture films are those arising from the severe shortage of foreign exchange available for items classified by the Bank of Paraguay as non-essential for import purposes. Agents representing United States producers feel that the Bank is relatively free in granting foreign exchange for film importation. The foreign exchange situation, however, has probably caused exhibitors to turn more and more to Argentine films which are more readily available. Import permits are issued by the Bank of Paraguay on the basis of monetary expenditure per program.

PERU—Motion pictures may be entered without license or authorization of any kind. The status of remittances of film earnings remains unchanged. Applications for the revalidation of official exchange purchase permits granted through August 1948 are still pending action. Foreign exchange for remittance of film earnings since August 1948 must be obtained in the free market.

SURINAM—In Surinam each exhibitor of films is limited in his exhibition by currency exchange restrictions. Each exhibitor is allowed exchange for U.S. currency in proportion to his volume of business and it is reported that 75 per cent of the allowed quota may be remitted in dollars and the remaining 25 per cent in pounds sterling. Import licenses are required and are granted only by permission of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

URUGUAY—Import permits are required and applications must be made to the office of the Contralor de Exportaciones e Importaciones for both an import license and the necessary foreign exchange. While no quantitative restrictions are imposed on the importation of motion pictures, United States distributors encounter difficulties on account of the strictness of the exchange control authorities in the allocation of dollars for imports. Film imports are included in the list of non-essential or luxury items (Category 3) for the purpose of allocation of exchange. This means that exchange will be granted after all items in Categories one and two are given full consideration. Remittances of film royalties is effected at the free market rate.

VENEZUELA—No permits are required for the importation of motion pictures nor the the purchase of exchange in payment of such imports. There are at present no import or foreign exchange restrictions which would serve to restrict the showing of U. S. films in Venezuela.

MEXICO AND CENTRAL AMERICA

MEXICO — Since February 1949 an import permit has been required for motion picture films. There are no quantitative restrictions on the importation of motion pictures and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of dollar exchange. However, early in 1954 the Mexican peso was devalued from 8.65 pesos to the dollar to 12.50 pesos to the dollar and this will undoubtedly affect the amount remitted from this market. It is not believed that there will be notable increases in theater admissions that might offset the loss by devaluation, as the Mexican Government imposes a ceiling on theater admission prices.

A new tariff, representing a 60 per cent increase on positive prints of motion pictures imported into Mexico was put into effect on October 11, 1952. The duty, which was formerly 25 pesos per legal kilogram plus 10 per cent ad valorem was raised to 40 pesos per legal kilogram plus 10 per cent ad valorem.

COSTA RICA—No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Costa Rica that might interfere with the showing of United States films. There are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of foreign exchange, however, all exchange required for the payment of rentals must be obtained in the free makret at rates somewhat higher than the official rate.

EL SALVADOR — There are no trade restrictions designed to reduce or prevent the distribution of United States films in El Salvador. Import permits are not required and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of foreign exchange. Practically all distribution of films is handled by the Circuito de Teatros Nacionales, a government monopoly. The Circuito is exempted from payment of customs duties and all direct and indirect taxes, excepting a benefic levy, and therefore has an exceptional advantage over other 35-mm. exhibitors. This explains the reluctance of private capital to construct and operate theaters in El Salvador. The Circuito operates 35 of the 37 theaters in El Salvador.

GUATEMALA — Import permits are not required and there are no foreign exchange restrictions in Guatemala. In June 1953 a new tax, amounting to 20 per cent of the receipts of film distributors, was authorized in the City of Guatemala. Distributors of United States films protested against this tax and withheld their films from this market. The tax was cancelled in its entirety effective July 11, 1954 and normal importation of United States films was resumed.

HONDURAS—Import permits are not required, and while foreign exchange for films, as well as all other foreign exchange transactions, must be cleared by the Foreign Exchange Control Commission, no difficulty has been encountered.

NICARAGUA—Importation of motion pictures into Nicaragua has remained unrestricted and import permits are not required. The banks, however, do not authorize foreign exchange at the official rate for the importation of motion pictures and distributors are forced to procure necessary dollars at the curb exchange rate which is somewhat higher.

PANAMA—Import permits are not required. United States currency is the medium of exchange in Panama and there are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of funds.

CUBA—There are no laws in effect in Cuba that restrict the importation or exhibition of United States motion pictures; neither are there any exchange controls or quota restrictions which might hamper the marketing of pictures. In an effort to stimulate production of films in Cuba, in 1952 a decree-law authorized an Executive Commission for the Film Industry to advance producers up to 33 per cent of the production costs of a film against subsequent repayment from receipts. The law also empowered the Commission to acquire studios and production equipment to lease these facilities to private producers at low cost, to hire studio personnel as necessary, and to promote the film industry's development in other respects with the funds at the Commission's disposal. However, production of motion pictures in Cuba has not expanded greatly as Cuban producers are hesitant to undertake feature-length productions in the face of indifferent box-office returns of Cuban films.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC — No restrictions on importation of films or transfer of foreign exchange.

AFRICA

ALGERIA—The agreement between the United States film industry and the French Government also applies to Algeria and regulations concerning the importation of films are similar to those in France. The direct importation of films from foreign countries has practically ceased and normally all films are sent first to Paris for dubbing and then brought into Algeria. Import permits are not required for films imported from France but would be required for films from outside the franc zone in the event such films were to be paid for out of officially allocated foreign exchange funds. Playing time regulations reserve a portion of the screen time to the showing of French films. United States film earnings are either deposited locally or remitted to Paris.

ANGOLA—There are no governmental regulations in Angola tending to restrict or even hinder the presentation of American motion pictures in favor of those of other countries. Films are brought in and shown throughout the country irrespective of origin, and while permits are required for the importation of films, the distributors state that no difficulties are encountered in obtaining permits for their requirements. Since the great majority of imported films are received from Lisbon film distributors, foreign exchange presents no problem, as all payments are made in Portuguesse escudos. A few films are received from South Africa.

BELGIAN CONGO—Import permits are not required for motion pictures and although licenses are required for the transfer of foreign exchange, no difficulties have been experienced in securing dollars to pay for U. S. films

BRITISH EAST AFRICA—There are no legal restrictions placed on United States films entering British East Africa for exhibition. All films exhibited are received from South Africa for which sterling is paid and there is no problem of the shortage of dollars. United States films continue to dominate the market and it seems unlikely that any measures are contemplated to reduce the number of films imported. An estimate is made to the Government as to the number of films expected to be imported from South Africa and permits are freely granted by the imports controller.

EGYPT — The Egyptian Government has no quotas or contingent measures limiting the number of foreign films which may be imported and exhibited. The Government has an agreement with Egyptian exhibitors whereby a small percentage of their screen time is reserved for the showing of Egyptian films. Importers of United States films must apply to the Exchange Control for import permits and the necessary dollar allocations. No permits are required for films from soft currency countries. United States film companies are still operating under a provisional agreement whereby 35 per cent of their earnings are eligible for remittance in dollars and another 35 per cent is transferable in pounds sterling. There is no objection to United States films dubbed in Arabic, however, each company distributing United States films has agreed to limit the number of dubbed features it releases. A new Egyptian law effective April 4, 1954, levied a supplementary tax of five milliemes (about 1½ cents) on each admission ticket to a movie theater. The proceeds of the tax are to be devoted to development of the Egyptian motion picture industry and to the production of films. Blocked U.S. film earnings may be used for the purchase of Egyptian products for export either to the United States or to some other country.

ETHIOPIA—The only trade restrictions on the importation and distribution of United States films in Ethiopia are the customs duties levied on them. Although exchange control measures are in effect, all United States films are obtained from Middle East distributors and are paid for in pounds sterling and to date the Exchange Controller has granted all requests for exchange to finance their importation.

FRENCH MOROCCO—Import permits are required for films which are imported from outside the French zone in the event such films are paid for out of officially allocated foreign exchange funds. Since almost all United States films are brought in from distribution offices in Paris, films usually enter without formalities. United States film companies usually send their franc profits to their head offices in Paris.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA—All foreign films are imported from France and may be freely imported without quota restrictions or import licenses. Film distributors handle their revenues in French colonial francs. There is a requirement that reserves a portion of the screen time to the showing of French films.

GOLD COAST—An import permit must be secured before goods can be imported into the Gold Coast and imports from the United States are allowed only if the item is essential and cannot be secured from the sterling area. All films, including those originating in the United States, are imported from the United Kingdom or from Nigeria.

LIBERIA—Import permits are not required and there are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange. No 35mm. films are exhibited in Liberia, only 16mm. films being shown in the three theaters in operation. There is one 35mm. theater in Sierra Leone which imports all of its films through the United Kingdom.

MADAGASCAR—Import licenses are required for motion pictures imported from countries other than France and for which officially allocated foreign exchange is required for payment. Films are usually imported from France and are paid for in francs. This does not mean that all films are of French production, about 60 per cent of the films received are of United States origin, but all films are dubbed in the French language before being imported. Regulations require that a portion of the theaters' screen time must be reserved for the showing of French films.

MOZAMBIQUE—Import permits are required, but film exhibitors have not had any difficulty obtaining films since most South African distributors have found it possible to accept payment for their rental fees in South African pounds. In those few cases where dollar payments were required, the exchange has been made available.

NIGERIA—The Government of Nigeria and the Gold Coast have agreed to a consolidated dollar allocation for both colonies for the purchase of United States motion picture films. Films imported into one colony are also shown in the other. Practically all films exhibited are brought in from agents in the United Kingdom. Import permits are required.

TANGIER AND SPANISH MOROCCO—Import permits into Tangier are not required. Tangier is a free money market and foreign exchange is available, though expensive. Most Tangier exhibitors pay for film rental in either Moroccan francs or Spanish pesetas. In Spanish Morocco exhibitors customarily show only Spanish films, although there is no requirement to do so. Spanish Moroccan exhibitors obtain their films from Spain and import permits are not required and foreign exchange is made available only through Madrid.

TUNISIA—Import permits are required for all importations involving foreign currency. Practically all of the United States films shown in Tunisia are imported from France, and enter Tunisia without import permit. Foreign exchange offers no immediate problem since films are usually paid for in francs. Trade sources state that there are no limitations on distribution of foreign films that have been dubbed into the French language. Playing time regulations reserve a portion of the theaters' screen time to the showing of French films.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—In November 1948 the South African Government announced new exchange and import controls which subsequently affected imports from the United States and other non-sterling countries. Importers of United States motion picture films were permitted to remit in dollars only 50 per cent of the total amount they remitted to the United States companies in the calendar year 1947. This exchange control scheme was replaced by a comprehensive import licensing system effective July 1, 1949, governing all imports from all countries including the sterling area. Under this new system, importers of United States films are permitted freely to import their product under open licenses, but are allowed to remit only a portion of their film earnings. Money which cannot be remitted is being held in blocked accounts and no indications have been given for its eventual release. There has been no notable decline in the number of United States films shown in South Africa since the introduction of these import controls.

SOUTH PACIFIC, ASIA, AND THE EAST

AUSTRALIA—The most serious restriction imposed on the distribution of United States films is that covering remittances to the United States of film royalties earned in Australia. From 1948 through 1950 payments of film royalties were restricted to 50 per cent of earnings returned in the base year 1946, however, the trade papers reported that in 1951 the Australian Government permitted the U. S. film companies to remit a larger percentage of their current earnings and permitted the transfer of some of the blocked funds. Import permits are required but there are no restrictions on the number of films to be imported. In the states of New South Wales and Victoria there are quota laws, determined yearly, which govern the percentage of Australian and British films to be shown. In New South Wales distributors are required to distribute a number of Australian films equal to three per cent of the total number of films distributed, and exhibitors are required to exhibit 2.5 per cent Australian films and 15 per cent British films. In Victoria the law provides a quota for Australian films which is the same as in New South Wales, but does not require the showing of British films. When it is not economically feasible to maintain this quota the restriction is waived and in practice the quotas are seldom adhered to.

BURMA—There are no quota or contingent measures which might restrict or prevent the distribution of United States films in Burma. Import licenses are required but are generally issued without much difficulty. In 1953 because of a 400 per cent increase in import duties for films, United States film companies withheld their films from the Burma market. In June 1954 when the Burma Government reduced the import duty and removed the sales tax on films, United States distributors resumed shipments of films into Burma. Then on October 1, 1954, the Burma Government, in an effort to assist the Burmese film industry, increased the taxes on admissions to foreign films from 33-1/3 to 40 per cent, at the same time reducing taxes to Burmese films from 25 to 20 per cent. At the close of 1954, there was pending a bill, which had been passed by the Chamber of Deputies and was virtually certain to be enacted, which authorized the President of Burma to require theaters to exhibit Burmese films for a minimum period and for a maximum charge or rate to the producer. The stated objective of the bill was to assist Burmese producers compete with imported films. Should this bill be implemented and screen quotas established for Burmese films, it would greatly affect the distribution of United States films in Burma.

The scarcity of dollar exchange and the difficulty in remitting film earnings is another major problem encountered in Burma. In principle no importation of any article is permitted unless foreign exchange for the payment is available. However, while little restrictions are imposed on the issuance of import licenses for motion pictures, earnings derived from the exhibition of these films are blocked.

CEYLON—United States films have been placed under an open general license in Ceylon and may be imported without an individual license. Exchange controls which came into effect in June 1948 have not seriously hampered the importation of films. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Controller of Exchange. The annual quota for motion pictures is about $200,000 established on a historical basis, using the year 1946 as the base period.

CHINA—The communist regime has taken over over complete control of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion picture films in all areas of China under their control and so far as is known, United States films are not being exhibited.

FIJI ISLANDS—Most films shown in the Fiji Islands are imported from New Zealand and payments is made in New Zealand pounds. Films imported directly from the United States would be subject to license requirements applicable to imports from hard currency areas.

FORMOSA (TAIWAN) — Formosa, which heretofore had unrestricted importation of motion pictures, established an import quota system effective July 1, 1954. The Chinese Film Censorship Board announced that the quota for the period July 1, 1954 to June 30, 1955 would be the same as the number of pictures imported and passed by the censors during the base period July 1, 1952 to June 30, 1953, when a total of 444 pictures were imported. This total is broken down as follows: 349 for United States films, 43 for British, 24 for Japanese, 16 French, and 12 for all other countries. Only earnings based on a percentage of the net theater receipts may be remitted through the Bank of Taiwan and earnings from flat rentals or under minimum guarantee are not legally remittable. Since June 1, 1954, foreign exchange remittances from Formosa have been subject to a 20 per cent Defense Tax based on the amount of foreign exchange applied for and approved.

HONG KONG—Import permits are not required for motion pictures but after delivery has been taken the motion pictures must be declared to the government for censorship purposes. A quota has been set up whereby theaters are required to show 7 days of British films for every 70 days of United States pictures. This has not been strictly adhered to because of the insufficient supply of British films. There are no measures making it mandatory to show Hong Kong produced films. No limitations are placed on the amount of foreign exchange transferred for motion pictures.

INDIA—Imports of motion pictures into India are regulated by licenses issued by Governmental import control authorities. Licenses are granted against quotas prescribed for individual importers on the basis of their past imports. The ultimate object in restricting imports is to conserve foreign exchange. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Reserve Bank of India and is automatically limited by restricting imports.

INDONESIA — The principal difficulty encountered in distributing United States films in Indonesia is that of securing foreign exchange with which to remit film earnings. Negotiations have been carried on almost continuously during the past several years in Indonesia seeking to solve some of the problems there with regard to censorship, taxation, and remittance of film earnings. It was reported that some progress had been made during the summer of 1953 in an agreement for the remittance of blocked accounts from this important market. However, a new Government came into office and the United States film companies were faced with a doubling in the foreign exchange rate for film remittances. At the end of 1953 it was reported that a new agreement had been reached providing for the remittance at the official rate of exchange of $1,700,000 of film earnings accrued during 1953 with the balance of 1953 earnings, about $400,000, to be invested in Indonesia.

Although negotiations were carried on during 1954 trying to arrange a remittance agreement covering 1954, at the end of the year nothing had been reported along this line. U.S. film companies were also being faced with the problem of obtaining permanent residence for their foreign managers in Indonesia. The Government claims that the move is to provide more employment for Indonesians, however, United States film companies have been unable to find qualified Indonesians for the jobs. There are no quantitative restrictions placed on the imports of films into Indonesia, such as import quotas or playing time restrictions. United States film distributors have encountered difficulty in getting their pictures cleared by the Indonesian film censors.

JAPAN — Under date of April 26, 1954, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Japan announced the plan for the import of foreign films in the 1954 fiscal year, which included the following preface: "As a result of the budget retrenchment under stringency of the foreign currency exchange situation, it is necessary to curtail considerably the import of foreign films in 1954 with respect to number and foreign currency remittances." The basic quota for 1954-55, beginning April 1, 1954, was fixed at 160 films to be allocated as follows: 121 to the dollar area, 15 to the sterling area, and 24 to the open account area. In addition to the basic quota the following will be put aside as a special quota: 4 to traders with records of allocation in 1951 or 1952 but not in 1953; 6 as a bonus for superior foreign films; and 10 as a reserve quota. The 10 reserve licenses will be used for the promotion of the export of Japanese films. In 1953-54 there were 146 licenses allocated to the dollar area.

Remittances of royalties in foreign currency shall be permitted within the following limits: (1) For films imported under a percentage rental system, the remittance shall be limited to 25 per cent of distribution income when the non-resident's share of the receipts is not more than 60 per cent and to 20 per cent when more than 60 per cent. (2) For films imported under a flat rental system, allocations of foreign currency will be approved at the time permission is given to the import contract. Accumulated yen earnings in excess of that allowed to be remitted shall be deposited in the Non-Resident's Film Account of a foreign exchange bank and may be used only on a permission basis.

NEW CALEDONIA—Import permits for foreign films are not required, however, special authorization is needed to purchase foreign exchange. There is strict Government control of all transactions which require the transfer of foreign exchange. Permits for the use of foreign exchange are issued theoretically only for items considered of prime necessity. However, in actual practice it has been possible for film importers to obtain the foreign exchange required to fill most of their needs.

NEW ZEALAND—New Zealand law makes it mandatory for film distributors to acquire British films to the extent of not less than 20 per cent of the number of foreign feature films exhibited.

There are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of foreign exchange for films. Import permits are required but are freely granted. There is no customs duty, as such, on imported films, however, there is a Film Hire Tax which is assessed on the net receipts derived from the exhibition of foreign films in New Zealand. With respect to United States films imported into New Zealand the Film Hire Tax is levied at the rate of 25 per cent of such net receipts.

PAKISTAN — Import permits are required for motion picture films. The transfer of foreign exchange is limited by the Foreign Exchange Regulations Act of 1947, however, until the beginning of 1953 the Government's dollar position was such that the Act was rather liberally administered. Early in 1953 all licenses for the importation of films were cancelled to conform with the Pakistan general policy to reduce foreign exchange outlays to a minimum. In April 1953 the Government again authorized the importation of films from all sources to the extent of 50 per cent of imports in 1952. During the first few months of 1954 no import permits were granted for United States films, however, in May 1954 it was announced that the Government of Pakistan had reached an agreement with the Motion Picture Export Association covering both import licenses and remittance of film earnings. This agreement provides that no quantitative restrictions will be imposed by the Government of Pakistan on the importation into Pakistan of all categories of films and accessories of MPEA member companies during the period January 1, 1954 to June 30, 1955. Earnings and dividends due up through June 30, 1954 may be remitted in full within a reasonable time thereafter. In the July 1, 1954 to June 30, 1955 period up to 850,000 rupees, if earned, will be promptly remittable to the United States on a monthly basis. Any earnings in excess of 850,000 rupees will be blocked and the Government of Pakistan agreed to consider their transfer after July 1, 1955. (The Pakistan rupee is worth 30 cents.)

PHILIPPINES—In June 1949 an Act was passed requiring theaters to exhibit pictures made in the Philippines to the extent of 10 per cent of their annual exhibitions. However, the playing time requirements of this Act have not been strictly enforced. Import licenses are not required for motion picture films. There are no quantitative restrictions placed on the imports of motion pictures, however there are limitations on the remittance of film earnings. Licenses are granted to remit an amount equivalent to 72 per cent of the producer's share of current earnings, using the year 1949 as the base year. Importers of films must pay a 17 per cent remittance tax on all dollar exchange transferred.

SINGAPORE AND MALAYA—An import permit is required for the purchase and importation of motion pictures into Singapore. In considering an application for an import permit the Controller of Imports and Exports is guided by the advice and recommendation of the Official Film Censor. According to the Foreign Exchange Regulations, the purchase of foreign exchange for outward remittances is prohibited except with special permission of the Controller of Foreign Exchange. Each of the major U. S. film companies operating in Singapore has its own agreement with the Controller of Foreign Exchange. Ten per cent of the playing time, specifically 7 days out of each 70-day period, must be devoted to British films.

THAILAND (SIAM)—Import permits are not required for films imported into Thailand. The Foreign Exchange Board which had authority over the transfer of foreign exchange was dissolved at the beginning of 1948. There are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange covering importation of films, however, such exchange must be obtained at the open market rate.

ADEN—Import permits are required for all goods originating outside the sterling area. Aden, as a British Crown Colony, has regulations which state that no import permits will be granted for goods from Western Hemisphere countries except for articles which cannot be obtained from the sterling area or from European sources and the purchase of which cannot be deferred without serious loss to the community.

AFGHANISTAN—There are no trade restrictions of any type imposed by the Afghan Government on motion pictures, and no such measures appear to be contemplated for the future. No import or quota regulations are in force and, sinec there is no domestic production of films, no playing time restrictions. The problem of transferring foreign exchange does not arise because all films exhibited are obtained through distributors in India, Pakistan, and Egypt and are paid for in the currency of the country from which they are imported.

IRAN—The market for United States films is not restricted in Iran by any laws or regulations. The importation of films is subject to annual import quotas which are fixed in rials. The quota for the year ending March 1954 is 5,000,000 rials compared with 9,000,000 rials for the previous year. However, the quota is not hard and fast and is frequently increased when exhausted. Films are classified as non-restricted goods and no import permits are required. United States film companies usually sell the distribution rights to their films to an Iranian distributor for a specified period of time, the films to be destroyed at the end of that period. Films are classified as import goods of Category II. (semi-essential). (In December 1953 90 rials equalled U. S. $1.00).

IRAQ—Since 1947, the Directorate General of Imports has allocated the sum of nearly $200,000 yearly for the importation of United States motion pictures. For the past few years this amount has been divided among 8 firms to purchase U. S. films and each firm was authorized to enter into a contract with one of eight specified United States producers. Permits are required to import films into Iraq, however, importers experience no difficulty in obtaining import licenses for any films covered by their exchange allocations.

ISRAEL — The scarcity of dollar exchange may tend to restrict the volume of business of United States film distributors in Israel. In principle, no importation of any article is permitted unless foreign exchange for payment of such article is available. For United States motion pictures, however, an agreement has been made whereby the importation of film prints is permitted leaving the question of dollar transfers for later negotiations. No dollar remittances are officially granted for film royalties. The Israel Government passed a law in July 1954 requiring that all movie showings of 90 minutes or longer in length shall include an Israel produced newsreel, and that all exhibitors must show a minimum of 4 hours of other types of Israel produced films each week. Israel now has two domestic newsreel companies. Exhibitors are presumably free to schedule the showing of two newsreels — one Israel produced and one foreign — if they so desire.

LEBANON—Import permits are required for motion picture films. Foreign exchange is available to remit film earnings, however, it must be obtained in the open or free market at rates considerably higher than the official rate of exchange.

SYRIA—The dissolution of the Syro-Lebanese Customs Union in March 1950 created some problems relative to film imports. Since the break, the Government's policy has been "Syrian trade by Syrians." To carry out this policy the Government generally grants import licenses only to firms established in Syria. In addition it requires foreign firms having a direct or agency representation in Syria to be represented by a Syrian national. The result is that Lebanese distributors who were receiving films first and then distributing them in Syria, must now sell or distribute them directly to a Syrian firm or exhibitor which in turn distributes the film throughout Syria. It is believed that practically all U. S. film companies now have representation in Syria. Foreign exchange for the importation of films must be bought at import exchange rates.

THE CHANGING PATTERN

By BERNARD CHARMAN
Managing Editor, Daily Film Renter

LONDON

BOOKING OF MOTION PICTURES throughout the 4,600 theaters of the United Kingdom has in the course of many years developed into a well-defined pattern. Not one easily recognizable perhaps by American exhibitors, whose nineteen thousand halls are spread over 48 states and a territory so vast that the whole of Britain could be swallowed up within it many times over. As distinct from theirs, the British system grew by evolutionary process into a national system of distribution whereby the history of a picture could accurately be pre-determined from the moment of its acceptance by one of the three major circuits, Associated British Cinemas (ABC), Odeon or Gaumont.

In broad principle, the method, if not ideal, has worked. It has proved acceptable to a major part of the trade, if not to all. It had seemed to have stabilized itself into a permanent institution.

CHARMAN

Was it a fallacy to regard it so? That is a problem to which the year of grace 1955 may provide an answer. Because, in fact, the established order has come under the strongest challenge it has had to face. A new style of distribution has come about that may undermine both the three-circuit pattern of the UK industry and the rigid system of playdates limited to six days, three days and so on, according to immemorial custom.

The major chains have not today the same automatic prior claim to new product which they formerly enjoyed; moveover they see the danger of independent theaters which once played second fiddle to them blossoming instead into formidable opposition, sometimes tempting their own one-time regular patrons with features denied to them and which sometimes, even against the power of the circuit house, can hold up that one feature to a two, three and four week season or longer.

The first, obvious reason for this break in the pattern is, as hardly needs to be stated, the impact of CinemaScope. Despite the formidable strength arrayed against it and the congenital resistance offered by independent exhibitors, the 20th Century-Fox process has steamrollered through, if not as spectacularly as in the United States, at least as certainly.

Its gains in its first year were relatively modest, but sufficient to permit it to consolidate its position and prepare for the landslide which has followed. By its second anniversary in Britain, 'Scope will have conquered at least 1,500 indie theaters in the UK, apart from similar installations in approximately 1,000 chain houses. This represents close to the maximum potential of halls which can be equipped without major structural alteration.

With the revolutionary anamorphic process came, of course, 20th's policy of demanding holdovers and extended playing time. This it was which, probably more than the company's primary insistence on the adoption of multiple track stereophonic sound, brought about a clash between Spyros P. Skouras on the one hand, and J. Arthur Rank, controlling the dominant booking group known as Circuits Management Association (CMA), on the other.

As the latter concern operates both the Odeon and Gaumont chains, aggregating better than 550 theaters (by far the largest combination in the UK territory), 20th was given the choice of modifying its policy or offering its CinemaScope product away from Rank and using it as a magnet to attract independents as converts to its new system. Choosing the latter alternative, Skouras added as an extra inducement a guarantee not to sell future programs against exhibitors who went along with him. That promise both the 20th-Fox president and production boss Darryl F. Zanuck have reiterated on numerous occasions.

Once a firm friend and close business associate of Rank, and still a partner in the Gaumont chain, Skouras is now in the paradoxical position of being shut off, even if of his own volition, from the circuit outlets which other major distributors have regarded as Britain's booking plum. Instead, he is selling his greatest and best features in an independent market spearheaded by the subsidiary chains ranging from the 170-strong Essoldo bloc to the 50-theater Granada group and lower. At this time (January, 1955) 20th's best box office features can sell to more than 500 independent situations, many of them on extended playing time or repeat dates. This fact is the basis of the company's claim that during this year UK earnings will be restored to their former high level.

As evidence that this is no idle boast, reports are current in the trade that other major renters with CinemaScope product have been tempted to offer it to this so-called "fourth circuit" rather than to the great chains. In this eventuality, independent exhibitors, both with and without panoramic screens, in all parts of Britain would feel the impact of the changed pattern. Their booking processes would become more complex and the traditional policy of "following" one or other of the principal circuits might no longer prove practicable.

Beyond CinemaScope, a factor which has materially weakened the old triangular setup is the emergence of the Essoldo group as a circuit of major proportions. Numbering 170 theaters, extending from the extreme north of England, through the industrial belt and the midlands, to London and the south coast, it holds competitive situations in many key cities and towns. Controlled by Sol Sheckman, this impressive consolidation of theaters made its greatest leap near the end of 1954 by buying outright control of an influential chain stretching over the center of England and known as Southan Morris Associated Cinemas.

Aided by the enthusiastic conversion of Sheckman to CinemaScope, 20th has been able to create a nominal booking bloc at least as big in numbers if not necessarily in potential as Rank's Odeon circuit of around 420 halls. Participating in this are independent chains such as Star Cinemas, the A. B. King Scottish circuit, both nearly 100 strong, and especially Granada Theaters, controlled by Sidney and Cecil Bernstein, which, although totalling about 50, boasts some of the biggest and finest theaters in the country, many of them situated in valuable districts of Greater London.

Some observers still cling to the belief that sooner or later Skouras and Rank will come to terms, predicating such belief on the view that, in this era of lower outputs, no leading circuit can afford indefinitely to be shut off from a major source of product nor can a distributor afford to stay out of an important section of the market. This might appear sound in theory, but there are no signs to suggest even in the vaguest manner that the rift between the two concerns is in any way being narrowed.

On the contrary, in fact, 20th-Fox leaders will emphatically assert that they are so deeply committed to their growing "circuit" of independent customers that they could not return to CMA even if they so wished—which, they aver, they do not. Too much significance ought not to be read into the fact that some 20th Scopers are playing in certain ABC situations. This would merely seem to be a happy circumstance that in some localities where the circuit's theaters are duplicated there is no leading indie to command first call on the anamorphic product.

ENGLAND—A SURVEY

BESIDES ITS INFLUENCE on the pattern of distribution discussed above, CinemaScope continued to dominate much of the British scene through 1954, as it had done during the previous period. By the opening of the current year its hold had become so strong as to make its capture of the market a matter of fact rather than of conjecture. Despite the Rank Group's official refusal to recognize the process, its Odeon and Gaumont chains already have 450 theaters equipped to play pictures up to the extreme anamorphic width.

Only in relation to stereophonic sound has the Rank attitude appeared to have colored the picture. The two CMA circuits have refused to install multiple channel amplification in any houses beyond the original 75 to which they committed themselves two years or more back. Not even their allegiance to VistaVision has persuaded them to compromise with Perspecta, although at least one of their major suppliers, Paramount, is geared to that system. It would appear to be the unshakable conviction of J. Arthur Rank and John Davis that distributed sound is still not worth its cost.

The view is one largely shared by their principal competitor, ABC, and by the major proportion of those independents to a total of a thousand or more who have "gone CinemaScope." An authoritative opinion recently put the ratio of stereo to conventional single-track optical at 2:1 in favor of the latter. It is urged, however, even if with a degree of propaganda bias, that increasingly the exhibitors are adding multi-channel wiring to their installations to secure the added entertainment value of either magnetic tracks or Perspecta. Certain it is that ABC are using the latter system in a percentage of their circuit.

A factor which assisted to limit the speed of CinemaScope development was a bottleneck in supply of anamorphic lenses. Because no British optical concern had entered the manufacturing field, all units had necessarily for a long period to be imported. In the first instance the Board of Trade was reluctant to grant licenses for supply from the dollar area, and not until well into 1954 were imports from European sources such as Germany, Italy and the Netherlands permitted with any measure of freedom. The Rank Group's manufacturing subsidiary, British Optical and Precision Engineers (BOPE), was in the meantime grappling with the situation. Its world renowned lens company, Taylor, Taylor and Hobsen, stepped into the arena, first with cylindrical anamorphics, and then with variables, the manufacture of which has been set in top gear in order to equip the CMA circuits.

In September RKO had attempted to get into the act with Superscope. A demonstration led by Joseph Tushinsky evoked interest and inquiries from numerous exhibitors, but supply difficulties eventually led the company to renounce its intention of directly trading in lenses and to toss the ball to the established equipment concerns such as RCA, Westrex and the Rank-BOPE subsidiary, GB-Kalee. The latter is strongly identified, however, with the BOPE all-purpose lenses, known as Varamorph.

Sparked, of course, by 20th Century-Fox, a determined drive to insure importation of the well-known European makes succeeded virtually to the point of open licenses. The flow of imports has consequently been able more or less to keep pace with the demand. By early 1955 the situation had been controlled and in the course of the year will be completely neutralized.

With the position regarding CinemaScope and similar methods becoming stabilized, the UK industry is waiting with some apprehension the advent of commercial television. This is officially due to bow in September, but the confusion existing among the authorities and corporations involved in it suggests that little impact will be made before 1956.

The immediate plan for Britain is to launch three main transmitters, one for London and its densely populated environs containing perhaps 10,000,000 people in all, another for Birmingham and the concentrated industrial population of the midlands, and the third for Manchester, center of the dense industrial northern belt. These between them will bring commercial TV within range of at least half the entire population of England and Wales, but without the more rural south-west, the again industrialized north-east, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Each station is intended to provide a maximum of eight hours service daily, including morning and afternoon sessions for housewives, and a peak entertainment period through the evening.

The pattern will be vastly different from that with which the United States is familiar. The Independent Television Authority (ITA), which will govern operations, is restricted by law to non-sponsored programs interspersed by brief commercials. Nevertheless, commerce and industry are geared to invade the new advertising field, and the program contracting concerns are roping in top talent and material to insure the popular impact of the new stations.

Theater operators, meanwhile, show their anxiety for the future in a stubborn resistance to TV, reflected by reiteration of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association resolutions barring distributors who trade with video and limiting movie footage offered for publicity purposes to the BBC to a maximum of 5 minutes a picture. In this regard, the distribs are currently making hay, and have caught the BBC in a mood to go a long way with them in permitting promotional programs presented in the guise of entertainment. Movies get for free from the BBC more than ITA can ever hope to be able to present through commercial deals.

Movie interests such as the J. Arthur Rank Organization, Granada Theaters and others are naturally getting into the act, perceiving that the better part is to cash in on the inevitability of TV rather than to attempt a futile resistance to it. The Rank Group in particular is in deep, with substantial interest in manufacture of equipment and provision of facilities. Sidney Bernstein's Granada outfit, on the other hand, is directly concerned as a producer and supplier of entertainment, as it has the contract to service the Manchester transmitter with its weekday programs, Monday through Friday.

On the whole, the movie trade in the UK, other than those interests mentioned, is in a fog over the prospective effect of commercial TV. Thought ranges from fear, prompted by those who see the BBC programs as a present menace to their operations, to complacency on the part of those who believe that the stimulus of CinemaScope et al, already effective in the U. S., plus the determination of major producers to concentrate on quality pictures will have saved the day—and that, in any event, "it can't happen here."

Domestically, the industry won a small victory in 1954 in its continuing warfare against the entertainments duty, or seat tax. The British Treasury, in a Budget which otherwise gave no concessions whatever, permitted an adjustment of the scale calculated to give back to the trade a relief calculated at £3,500,000, or close to $10,000,000, in a year. Because this had to be shared between producers, distribs and exhibs, it satisfied nobody, and led to violent recriminations which split the industry all ways.

Through the British Film Producers Association (BFPA), the studio companies considered themselves gyped of their fair share by the exhibs, while the latter, through the CEA, embarked on a headlong battle with the Kinematograph Renters Society (KRS), representing the distribs, when it moved to protect what they considered the rake-off due to them. These quarrels were themselves cut in a four-way pact (involving also producers of shorts and documentaries), and a patchwork compromise was reached. This permitted the trade to close its ranks, so that a united front could be presented to the Treasury in an effort to gain further seat tax concessions this year.

As an incidental to the bitterness with which the quarrels raged, the Rank Group withdrew its two powerful circuits, Odeon and Gaumont, from the CEA, so precipitating a financial crisis for that association. The CEA is now struggling to blueprint a reorganization plan predicated on the continued abstention of the Rank theaters.

British films consolidated their position in the UK market in 1954. Official statistics of the Board of Trade showed that they occupied 29.4% of the first feature bracket and 23.7% of the supporting program sector. The major circuits played a substantially higher proportion, the combined Odeon-Gaumont chains (CMA), scoring 36%, and Associated British Cinemas 34% of British first features. Notable is that in each instance these figures represent a substantial improvement on the legally imposed quotas. Independent ballots and appraisals agreed that three British productions—"Doctor in the House," "Trouble in Store" and "The Belles of St. Trinian's"—outstripped all competitors at the box office, and that locally made films held six of the twelve top positions in the grossing leagues.

Theater attendances took an upward turn in 1954, although a severe recession between October and December prevented the improvement from reaching the substantial point which had been expected after the July-September returns had shown the highest figure, 337 millions, on record. Sparking the summer and fall figures were the impetus given by CinemaScope followed by one of the wettest seasons in memory. Reflecting the more cheerful tone, the figures of dollar expenditure on American films in 1954 were, at $25.2 millions, better than the previous year by $2.5 millions.

CENSORSHIP

AN ORGANIZATION established by the trade years ago, the British Board of Film Censors, deals with the censorship of films in Great Britain. It is not a statutory body, and whether a film is accepted or rejected, the final decision rests with the local licensing authorities throughout the country—about 1,000 in number—but almost universal acceptance is given to the decisions and control exercised by the Board, and generally the situation is considered satisfactory.

In connection with the power of local authorities, it should be noted that when a film is rejected by the Board of Film Censors, an application for special review can be made to local authorities, and a few notable instances have occured where the procedure has resulted in local exhibition of the rejected film.

It might be mentioned that there are three grades of certificates issued; "U" relating to a film which has been passed for universal exhibition; "A" is recommended more especially for adult audiences, and under most licensing authorities, children must be accompanied by adults when attending.

The third category, formerly known as "H" (meaning horrific), was replaced in 1951 by a new "X" certificate. This legally limits the showing of pictures so labelled to persons of over 16 years old. Neither an "adults only" or "horrific" classification, it serves for both, but also permits exhibition of sophisticated, adult entertainment, chiefly French, which a grandmotherly Censor Board formerly rejected. The "X" certificate has survived the early danger of being regarded by patrons as the hallmark of lurid entertainment, but has caused concern to American distributors who have found their more brutal pictures put into this group instead of the more acceptable "A" category.

Some dissatisfaction has been expressed over the effect of the "X" certificate. On one hand, some distributors have exploited it on "adults only" promotion lines. On the other, the Censor Board has been held as obstructive for classifying in the category certain motion pictures considered suitable for the "A" category. All major circuits are reluctant to book "X" pictures, which they believe inimical to the family trade on which they depend.

EDUCATION

IN 1946 EDUCATION AUTHORITIES and teachers, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, set up an organization named the National Committee for Visual Aids in Education. One of the Committee's main functions is to collate the views of education authorities, teachers and bodies concerned with education. Other functions include the consideration of the production, assessment and distribution of visual material.

An important link in the organization of production is the Scrutiny Committee, which views the completed film and has the power to accept it on behalf of the National Committee. The Educational Foundation for Visual Aids then receives the film. This organization was set up to ensure the production of the films planned by the National Committee and their distribution throughout the schools. Where local authorities are considering setting up a visual aids library a local joint visual aids committee is usually also set up to advise on the choice of material.

TAXES

IN ADDITION to the national Entertainments Tax which is specific in amount for each price category of tickets, there are income taxes and local rates which are applicable to kinemas.

While not considered in the direct category of taxation there is a special related feature worthy of note under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, which gave local authorities permission to open and regulate cinematograph theaters on Sunday. The local authorities alone have the power to give such permission and it is estimated that nearly 70 per cent of the approximate 5,000 theaters in England are now permitted Sunday opening.

It is provided under this Act that the local authority shall demand from the theater a proportion of the profits for that day, part of which sums collected shall be used for local charitable purposes and another proportion paid into the Cinematograph Fund. Under the direction and control of the Privy Council for the purpose of encouraging the use and development of the cinematograph as a means of entertainment and instruction. Something like nine or 10 thousand pounds sterling is now received into this central fund annually and the principal use for it has been in supporting the British Film Institute, which is active in the promotion of the use of motion pictures for educational purposes.

The amount paid into the national "Cinematograph Fund" is only equal to about five per cent of the total collected by the various local authorities, the balance collected under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, being devoted to local charitable purposes. Last year £438,900 was paid in Sunday tax by theaters.

In order to provide facilities for the troops to see films on Sundays, an emergency law regulation was passed in 1939 whereby, on application from local councils, licenses to open on Sundays were granted to 290 kinemas which ordinarily did not open on that day. The Act empowering this came to an end in February, 1946, but it was open to local councils to put in force the Sunday Entertainments Act of 1932, or apply for a draft order, so that the Sunday opening of kinemas can continue without interruption. Most of the local authorities of areas where Sunday opening was permitted have now applied for permanent powers to grant Sunday opening.

An important point in regard to Sunday kinema performances, was brought into prominence in 1954 by a High Court decision that licensing authorities could impose a condition excluding children under 16. Later it was decided not to ban children under 16.

In 1954 the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association had discussions with officials representing the Secretary of State for Home Affairs, who, although sympathetic, offered little hope of obtaining Parliamentary support for any legislation to amend or modify the 1932 Act.

COPYRIGHT RELATIONS

UNDER BRITISH LAW and practice the interest of the author and producer are fully protected. The ordinary legal reference is the Copyright Act of 1911 as amended. Great Britain entered into copyright relations with the United States on July 1, 1891; extended April 9, 1910; further extended January 1, 1915. Great Britain is a member of the International Copyright Union at Berne.

Remittances to America in respect to films before the war were estimated at about £7,000,000 annually. During the war they had been; to October, 1940 — 4.8 millions sterling; 1941—5.7 millions sterling; 1943—26.5 millions; 1944—15.6 millions; for the five months to July, 1945—13.3 millions. Estimated remittance in 1951 under the Anglo-U.S. agreement was between eight and nine million pounds. In 1952-53 and 1953-54 the figure has remained very much the same.

CANADA IN 1954

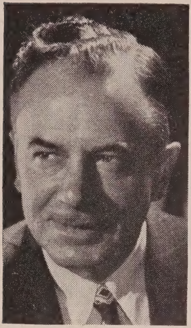
By CLARE J. APPEL

Executive Director, Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association
TORONTO

IF THE DEVELOPMENT of Canada's new resources and industries are to continue, the next logical step, in the opinion of some business leaders, is to step up immigration in the belief that new citizens will create employment and allow the country to not only make adequate use of her material resources, but to process them, not only in part, but up to the end product rather than sell them as raw material. More and more each year it becomes evident that an ever-increasing number of jobs must be created for her people and more mass production industries must arise to provide employment for a larger population, the suggested objective being 30 million by 1975. Canada's population (over 15 million) is presently increasing at an annual rate of slightly over three per cent, a rate that seems insignificant, but over a 10-year period the population will rise to more than 20 million with the present immigration policy.

While there were a number of soft spots in Canadian industry during 1954 there were other sources of major strength. There is still an underlying buoyancy in capital expansion though it is less pronounced than in recent years. For three consecutive years Canada's dollar is quoted highest in the world even in face of a drop in external trade which has been more than offset by a continued volume of international investment.

In spits of a poor wheat crop and several major strikes, some of which have been prolonged, the average income has broadened and reached 76 per cent above the 1946 average of $34.25 to $59.27 by October, 1954 according to Government statistics. The number of people on payroll however, are below last year's October figure.



APPEL

There have been choppy waters in 1954 in many areas. Retail sales are below 1953 but bank savings up 7½ per cent from a year ago at $1.2 billion, are at an all-time high. So is credit buying. But Canadian business knows that in order to offset higher wages, higher productivity must be attained and markets found for its goods.

Canada's foreign trade was again at an unfavourable balance and its exchange of tourist's dollars with the U. S. was likewise. Travellers among Canada's 15 million population spent $307 million in visiting our neighbor while Americans visiting Canada left $282 million tourist dollars in the cash registers of the country.

1954 saw some industries badly hit and this applied particularly to the textile industry, the retail sales of autos and to theater business in subsequent runs, theaters in larger cities and in small towns in areas which had become saturated with TV sets.

Theaters

In all Canada there were 1,906 standard theaters operating in 1953 compared with 1,843 in 1952. Theater admissions were lower by 6,549,991 than those reported in 1952. Receipts for all of Canada in 1953 were up $2,038,012 over the 1952 figure; the total for standard houses being $100,889,361.

Ontario and Quebec, two provinces where TV became firmly established and in which the textile industries are located, showed major losses in theater admissions below the 1952 record attendance figures. Ontario was down more than 6½ million and Quebec was off the 1952 figure by slightly over three million.

All other provinces reported an increase in the number of admissions over 1952 but these were not sufficient to make up for the big drop in Ontario and Quebec which combined produce almost 65 per cent of the theater box office receipts ofr the entire country.

Drive-ins

One hundred and seventy four drive-ins were in operation in 1953 compared with 104 in 1952. The Dominion Bureau of statistics report for 1953 (latest available) shows receipts from drive-ins in 1953 as $5,862,920 as compared with $4,409,406 in 1952, an increase of $1,453,494 mainly accounted for by the additions of 70 open air operations.

Theater Construction

There were only 63 standard theaters built in 1953 and these mainly in the Western Provinces and Quebec. Theater construction is practically at a standstill in Ontario where approximately 35 per cent of the seats in all Canada are located. New residential districts and industrial areas have sprung up in the suburban districts of the larger cities of the province but theaters, which a few years ago would have become a part of these communities, are noticeably missing. The reason —for the time being at least—TV. 1954 will see additional new standard theaters but the total in operation will be offset by the increasing number of theaters which have closed in the past two years. Most of the closures are in Ontario and small subsequent run houses are the chief casualties.

Television

As new TV broadcasting outlets come into operation accross Canada with a resultant increase in sales of receiving sets, theaters have, in these past two years, begun to feel the real impact of television on the box office and as noted previously, it has had its effect on theater construction. At the end of 1953 it was reported that approximately 575 thousand sets had been sold in Canada. 1954 has provided record production and sales for the TV industry. The Radio-Television Manufacturers' Association predicts that close to a million sets will be in operation in Canada by the end of the year—a tremendous record in a country where the metropolitan centers are separated from one another by vast distances and in which television has been a factor for only three years outside the southern part of Ontario. There are seven Government-owned TV outlets in operation, 12 privately owned being operated and 10 private stations have been recommended for the approval of CBC governors.

Distribution

Distribution of films continues from six exchange centers namely; Saint John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics does not break down income from film rentals according to the exchange center. Based on theater receipts from the various provinces, it may be said that each distribution point can be rated percentagewise approximately as follows: Saint John 7.8 per cent; Montreal 24.2 per cent; Ontario 39.9 per cent; Winnipeg 9.6 per cent; Calgary 8.3 per cent and Vancouver 10.2 per cent.

St. John

theaters in the four Maritime Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. Theater receipts, excluding taxes in each province for 1953 were: New Brunswick, $2,724,148 for 63 theaters; Nova Scotia, $4,177,407 for 86 theaters; Prince Edward Island, $347,294 for 12 theaters and $1,174,724 from 44 theaters in Newfoundland.

Montreal

The exchange center of Montreal serves the predominately French speaking province of Quebec which had 462 theaters operating in 1953 with total theater admissions of $25,405,212 exclusive of tax. This represents approximately 24 per cent of the national income from standard theaters.

Many native French dialogue pictures are imported into Quebec and these account for a considerable portion of the box office receipts in the province.

Quebec theaters operate seven days weekly but no children under 16 years of age are permitted to attend. Many youngsters throughout the province see motion pictures in parish halls.

Less than one-half of Quebec's theaters use an entire program of English dialogue pictures. The dubbed version usually follows the exhibition of the English film by a year and more than a third of all theaters use French dubbed features after the run of the English version.

There are about 72 theaters in the province which use an all French movie program. Many of these films are made in France. Government regulations prohibit drive-ins in Quebec.

Toronto

Ontario's 485 standard theaters reported receipts of $39,570,781 excluding taxes in 1953. Toronto is the busiest of all exchange centers. Ontario theaters provide 37 per cent of the total seating capacity of all Canada's standard theaters and they supplied 39.9 per cent of the total box office receipts in such theaters. Sixty six of the 174 drive-ins operated in Canada in 1953 are in Ontario.

Winnipeg

Winnipeg in Manitoba serves all of the theaters in that province, 29 in North Western Ontario and the balance in Southern and Eastern Saskatchewan for a total of 404, which includes many community enterprises which operate one or two days a week only.

Both Manitoba and Saskatchewan censor boards function at Winnipeg.

Manitoba's 154 standard theaters had admissions of $5,030,045 in 1953. Inasmuch as theater receipts are reported provincially, it is impossible to give an accurate breakdown of the receipts which might be credited to the exchange centers of Winnipeg or Calgary because both offices supply films to theaters in Saskatchewan.

Calgary

Calgary serves 191 standard theaters in Alberta, 11 in Eastern British Columbia and 53 in Northwestern Saskatchewan as well as drive-ins in all three areas. Receipts in 1953 were $7,676,634.

Alberta with its rich oil and gas fields has been attracting attention of capital investments from both sides of the border and England. Its ever-expanding areas in which oil and natural gas have been discovered has brought new industry into what was, a few years ago, a wheat growing and mixed farming province. Gas pipe lines are now being laid to thickly populated Ontario and the U. S. and with new fields being proved for oil in this province, as well as in Sascathewan, a continued prosperous future is assured for the Canadian West.

Vancouver

There were 152 standard theaters operating in British Columbia in 1953 in addition to 31 drive-ins erected in the past three years. These are serviced from the exchange center of Vancouver and the standard theaters reported receipts of $10,200,043. This figure, reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, includes receipts from 21 theaters scattered throughout the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Federal and Provincial Taxes

Amusement taxes collected in all Canada in 1,906 standard theaters in 1953 was $12,720,235. The tax on drive-ins fed another $685,389 into provincial coffers, while approximately $325,000 was collected by eight provinces for censorship fees of films. Added to this is a seat tax collected by the provincial governments from theaters in most provinces. The amount is unknown but estimated at close to half a million dollars across Canada. This adds up to almost $1.00 a head for every man, woman and child in Canada.

A panel of economists drawn from banks, business, government and universities recently were asked to express opinions of Canada's business for 1955. They gave a composite view that the country's economy would remain at the 1954 level or a little better. While this holds encouragement for business after the recessionist tendencies of the past year, it indicates that '55 will not be a year of great growth. Shifting demands and foreign competition will continue to hit some industries, particularly the Maritime and Quebec textile industries and the Ontario metal manufacturing centers. However it is predicted that resource development and capital investment may set a new record in '55.

Personal income is expected to rise as will personal expenditures. Above all else the growth potential of Canada and an improved tooled-up development of industry could make new records if a slight strengthening of demand occurs. Such strengthening could happen if U. S. tariffs drop for such a favourable turn would take Canadian exports upwards.

While the general economy of the country may hold to 1954 levels or a little better, it would be a rash person indeed who would forecast what will happen to theater receipts in 1955. It is not known what the 1954 totals are at this writing, but a reasonable guess would be that they will remain at the 1953 level. Total theater admission, however, may show a further drop beyond the decrease previously reported for 1953. Many new areas are now experiencing, or will soon get their first television programs, and the now familiar pattern of a recession in admissions will appear in all of them.

Credit buying has loaded the moderate and low wage earner to a point where patrons of subsequent run houses and smaller town theaters are not buying amusement as frequently as in former years. Whether or not they regain the habit of theater-going when they get the books balanced is anybody's guess. In the meantime the small operator is marking time and hoping that they will.

Taking the longer view, there must be continued growth and development in all parts of Canada. With a variety of resources in abundance, a growing population with its labour force can only result in more consumers within the country and compel industry to find new markets for its products abroad. And Canada will meet the challenge.

JAPAN IN 1954

By GLENN F. IRETON

Far East Bureau, THE FILM DAILY

TOKYO

ONE OF THE LAST OLIOS to rise in Japan in late 1953 revealed the initial CinemaScope film, 20th Century-Fox' "The Robe." Now, almost to the day, credits for one of the latest local releases start out with "Paramount proudly presents the first picture in VistaVision," and another opening frame proclaims "This Is Cinerama."

Within those mileposts lie the people and pictures and processes and the other events that comprise cinematic Japan in 1954. The time lag between their originals in New York and their carbon copies in Tokyo creates a convenient thematic opening for this annual review.

IRETON

There will be few to contest the contention that the development of CinemaScope has been the subject which has elecited the greatest interest during the past 12 months. It was not simply a matter of selling theater owners on switching to the new process. That, of course, was part of the job, here as everywhere, but it was the minor part of a big chore. Hardly had C'Scope been announced that it became well nigh impossible to import the equipment, due to dollar and sterling pausity.

That meant starting from the ground up with local manufacturers.

Slowly, desire became deals and deals produced prototypes and finally theaters got equipment—screens, anamorphic lenses, four-track magnetic sound systems and new projectors. Phase Number One of a new manufacturing industry was born in Japan.

Some idea of the size of this industry can be seen from the fact that as of Jan. 1 roughly 90 installations of CinemaScope equipment had been made, with about 50 more in process or pending. With each complete unit costing about 5 million yen, that means a potential production gross of upwards of a half billion yen (almost $1.5 million). And, that's just the start.

Phase Number Two: Between the exclusive announcement of Metro's Perspecta Sound in The Film Daily in mid-January and its demonstration in Tokyo in late April, contracts and blueprints were prepared for the manufacture by the Victor Co. of Japan of this system's essential unit, the integrator. Final approval of the pilot model and an okay by the Government of the manufacturing agreement came in July, and was fully exploited by the MGM PEP Sales Conference in October (in Tokyo). Victor reports that the integratro, being manufactured to sell here for the equivalent of $650, is enjoying a steady sale throughout Japan and that an increasing number of foreign orders are being received.

As of the end of the year, it is estimated that about 100 integraters (serving principal roadshow houses in keys) will have been produced and another 64 firm orders on hand. Announcements that Paramount, Universal and Warners, will import their pictures into Japan with Perspecta Sound tracks are expected to accelerate the production of this item.

No plans have been announced by Paramount for manufacturing supports for VistaVision. In fact, VV has been heavily sold on the basis that no extra equipment is needed to play such pictures.

Two Top Events

Two other newsworthy events of '54 were the Film Festival staged by the Federation of Motion Picture Producers in Southeast Asia (Tokyo, May 8-20), and the first visit in November to this country of Eric A. Johnston, as president of the Motion Picture Association of America.

Last year, we reported here that the Federation was founded in Manila in November, 1953, with provision for an annual film festival under its auspices. This festival was restricted to pictures of member producers in Formosa, Hongkong, Indonesia, Japan, Malaya, Philippines and Thailand. Indonesia was the only country not having entries in the Festival.

Altogether, 26 features and shorts competed, with Golden Harvest awards going to top places for best picture, performance, direction, etc., etc.

The entry of the Daiei Co. of Japan, "The Golden Demon," was voted the best picture. Far East Film of Thailand received two Golden Harvest awards (best photography and best art direction) for its entry, "Santi-Vina," which also won the special prize (a Mitchell 35mm. camera) presented by Director Frank Borzage in the name of the Association of Motion Picture Producers (Hollywood) for the motion picture which best explained the East to the West.

Good Will Tour

The visit of Eric A. Johnston was called a good will tour and his 10 action-packed days in Japan made him the recipient of assorted honors from top sectors of Japanese and American business and government.

Most important trade statement made here by EAJ was that the American industry is interested in putting its frozen funds at the disposal of projects which will profit Japanese economy. After his return to the U. S., Johnston said that the amount of the frozen assets of the 10 major American companies approximated the yen equivalent of $7 million. At the same time he stressed that he had discussed compensation deals with officials of Japan's Finance Ministry. The form these arrangements might take was anybody's guess at this period of the negotiations.

In the meantime, leading elements of the Japan domestic industry were alert to make informal requests of their government that such deals should be related primarily to domestic production.

From one standpoint, the visit of the American leader to Japan just before a change of government took place may turn out to have detracted from full efficiency of his contacts with local officials. However, since it was noted that he spent considerable time with Hisato Ichimada, then Governor of the Bank of Japan and now Finance Minister, it may be assumed that the present so-called "Caretaker Government" may be in complete possession of Johnston's views on the problems connected with distribution of Hollywood pictures in Japan.

New Import Policy

Of prime importance to distributors of foreign product was the new import policy which came into effect April 1. It was in substantial agreement with the recommendations of the industry-governmental group which advised the Finance Ministry in shaping the new policy.

The following summarizes the principal points:

1. Currency areas (dollar, sterling and open account) were made the basis for allocations, instead of per-country definition, as had obtained in previous years.

2. Basic number of imports was set at 160, with 121 allocated to the Dollar Area, 15 to the Sterling and 24 to the Open Account. (Total number of import licenses was 208 in '53.)

   Four additional licenses were reserved for importers of record in '51 and '52, but not in '53; six as bonuses for "supperior" pictures; and 10 to encourage export of Japanese films (one extra import license to each exporter of a Japanese film, which returned the equivalent of $30,000 or more).

3. Allocation of the 160 licenses were made to importers of record in 1953, based on quotas held in fiscal '53 and revenue gained from distribution of imports during calendar '53.

For the first time the Finance Ministry gave fractional shares to the various importers, who eventually exchanged their fractions in such a way that single licenses were created. This gave the 10 American majors a total of 102 licenses and other importers the remaining 58.

Reduction

A surprise feature of the import policy was the reduction in remittance rates. It provided that 25 per cent could be remitted when the non-resident share was less than 60 per cent and 20 per cent (which applies to U. S. companies) if over that amount. The rate had previously been a straight 3 per cent.

Contrary to the previous year when certain permissive uses had been spelled out, no definite provisions were okayed in advance by the Finance Ministry for utilization of frozen yen. However, in practice, it is understood that essentially the same permissive uses have been allowed as in the previous year with the exception of large-scale donations to charitable institutions.

Finally, the new pact decreed that a new license would be required for a picture which had not been reissued for two consecutive years following its original release.

Sales Conventions

Any listing of top events in Japan during the past year must include for the record the fact that two major American companies, Universal and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, staged the first international sales conferences ever held in this country by film companies. The U-I convention took place in mid-August and brought to Japan managers of all the company's branches in Asia. Metro's PEP meetings were staged in October and included all executive sales personnel in the Near and Far East.

Other headlines that claimed local and overseas attention during the year:

On May 18, announcement was made of revisions in admission taxes. The old rate of a straight 50 per cent (in effect since Jan. 1, 1953) was revised to allow for a charge of 10 per cent on tickets up to 50 yen; 20 per cent, 51-80 yen; 30 per cent, 81-130 yen; 40 per cent, 131-150 yen; and 50 per cent over 150 yen.

In July, Daiei President Nagata said Japan will soon become Hollywood's best foreign customer.

In the same month, announcement was made of Columbia Pictures winning that company's world-wide sales contest.

More Headlines

Maurice King, King Bros. Prods., Inc. of Hollywood, spent the first week of August in Tokyo talking over the possibility of a co-production with Shintoho.

Arthur H. Krim, president, and Arnold M. Picker, vice-president of United Artists, spent a week here in September, announced that company is anxious to make a joint picture with Shochiku.

During September and October, a production crew from Gloria Films, Munich, West Germany, was in Japan making background shots for a feature on Soviet Russia's top wartime spy in Japan, Richard Sorge.

In the same month, announcement was made that Toho would open "This Is Cinerama" around year-end in Tokyo and Oska, and Nikkatsu widely publicized the fact that its 38 theaters would not depend upon foreign product throughout 1955; instead, would play films from its own new studios.

In October, production units from 20th-Fox and Columbia arrived in Japan to scout locations for two new pictures, both to be filmed in 1955.

On October 30, Shiro Kido was elected president of the Shochiku Company and veteran Takejiro Ohtani, one of the founders, became chairman of the board.

William Goldman, American film magnate, left Japan on Nov. 2 after a one-week good will mission. The Philadelphia exhibitor stressed his interest in a possible co-production with a Japan studio, revealed his Hollywood pact with Paul Gregory.

The sudden death in Bangkok on December 20 of Robert G. North, shocked his many local friends in domestic and foreign film circles.

Final plans were made here in the last month of the year for an active start early in '55 of the first Sino-Japanese co-production "Yung Kwei Fei," by Daiei of Japan and the Shaw interests of Singapore and Hongkong. The first Indian-Japanese co-production was slated for early '55, principals being Toei of Japan and A. J. Patel of Bombay.

Domestic

The most important ingredient injected into Japanese production this year has been pure and unadulterated hope, mainly born of the success which Japanese films have had in international film festivals. Perhaps it would be more fitting to say the success that the Daiei Company has had, for, with the exception of the Venice award to Toho's "Seven Samurai," it was this studio that produced winners at Cannes in April ("Gate of Hell"), at Tokyo in May ("Golden Demon"), and at Venice in Septem ("Sansho Daiyu"). It is believed that three top winners at three important festivals, all within six months, establishes a new world's record for one film company.

The driving force behind this successful effort is Daiei's Masaichi Nagata, who has been first to scent and first to exploit the possibilities of Japanese pictures on overseas screens. This statement is not meant to disparage the foresight of other Japanese majors which established offices abroad during the past two years. However, it is intended to focus attention on the one man in the Japanese industry, from or about whom all major steps to build bridges abroad emerge or revolve.

So far, the five major Japanese producers (and now a sixth, Nikkatsu, which came into being during the year) have had a policy of going it alone in advancing their pictures in foreign markets. This may be smart business from a sales standpoint, but there's a big publicity job to be done on Nippon films in foreign markets that could be accomplished at less expense on an industrial level.

The one big bold fact is that of all the nations in Asia, Japan is the one that has proven herself capable of making motion pictures which can enjoy at least a measure of success abroad. This is an important step, the significance of which is not even widely comprehended in Japan, let alone other countries of the area and further afield.

With such a start, it becomes apparent that an international publicity job of major proportions is required, if the initial advantage is to be sustained. The main reasons this obvious chore has not been done before can be attributed to several factors, the most important of which are that 1) Japan was isolated from the rest of the world during the greatest period of build-up in public relations techniques and thus does not have the know-how to bring about such persuasion beyond her own shores and 2) the urgency for this indispensable selling effort is not adequately understood by the Nippon industry itself.

Production

During the past 12 months Japanese production has jumped to 367 features, against 302 the year before. Toei showed the biggest increase: from 49 to 101, principally due to this studio's policy of turning out short features almost weekly along with its regular length releases. Nearly half were costumers, up 15 per cent from last year.

Eiren (Japan Motion Picture Producers' Association) reports that the number of producers increased to 36 from 29 a year ago. But this figure includes many companies which are in the one-picture category.

Short subject producton by the majors is relatively insignificant, with Eiren announcing only 57 for the year. The 52 companies of the Educational Motion Picture Producers Association report they turned out about 200 shorts.

Domestic newsreel companies are credited by Eiren with making a total 303 releases.

Exports

Eiren's figures on exports include reexported product originally sold to Japan with "fringe" franchises for nearby countries. The total of all features exported during '54 is 672, with 302 going to Okinawa; 188, U. S.; 59, Brazil; 49, Formosa; 41, Hongkong, and 33, Europe. Total shorts and newsreels were 80 and 291.

Revenue from exports during '54 is expected to exceed last year's $1,125,000 with $980,000 registered by November 1.

Total box office revenue from domestic and imported pictures was estimated to reach the yen equivalent of approximately $135 million compared with last year's $125 million.

Distribution earnings of domestic films are reckoned at about 18.86 yen billion ($52.4 million against $40.3 million '53).

During the last 12 months, theaters reportedly increased from 3,900 to 4,300. Both figures include all types of exhibition halls with some 700-800 once-a-week spots in the total.

This statement is supported by the reported increase in seating capacity of 192,600 (based on 2.580 million in '54 and 2.387 million in '53). Attendance is said to have jumped from about 805 million to an estimated 840 million.

(It must be kept in mind that this article is being written in mid-December, and thus all total figures are partially based upon estimates.)

The five members of Eiren (Shochiku, Toho, Daiei, Shintoho and Toei, finishing in that order) will earn roughly 18 billion yen in '54, up nearly 5 billion yen from the year before. Nikkatsu was in full operation for only half a year turning out 11 features and earning an estimated 500 million yen.

The Red Line

Some two dozen features made during the past 12 months could be called out-and-out communist-line productions. They were either directly or indirectly made by and/or controlled by (man-power, directives, financin, etc., etc.) the Japan Communist Party, Red China or Soviet Russia, and promoted by Red-led unions.

Beyond this total there were many "shadow" films, generally showing such subjects as the sordid side of life, alleged social persecution, Japanese militarism, etc., etc., produced by a wide variety of do-gooders, starry-eyed idealists, pseudo-intellectuals, communist sympathizers and don't-care guys in pursuit of a fast yen.

One of the top labor executives of a Japanese major told this writer that this "grey" area of Japanese production is the central battle-ground of the motion picture interests of the two persuasions, democratic capitalism and international communism.

Subjects which have been fodder for both camps were the H-bomb hysteria, Japanese rearmament, and furtherance of a lovey-dovey attitude toward Red China and U.S.S.R. An old favorite of the subversive during the past several years—picturing the U. S. GI as the founder and chief supporter of prostitution in Japan—lost its b.o. zest in '54.

Financial Failure

Not being able to gauge this fed-up attitude on the part of the public has been given as one of the reasons for the financial failure in July of one of the chief communist film set-ups. This resulted in the dissolution of the Hokusei Co., an essential distribution agent for some 10 or more lefty independents. JCP members and others charged with keeping the Red movie mills going in Japan were publicly reported as being embarrassed by this economic collapse, which forced this one unit into a reorganization. The subsequent threatened firing of a large number of employees backfired, with the dismissed help calling the toppers nasty "imperialist" names.

The foregoing should not be taken to mean that the Red Star on Japanese screens has gone into permanent eclipse.

Indeed, quite the contrary is true. For instance, three of the former production sources for Hokusei have combined into one company with a well-known card carrying communist as chief representative. The same person is the president of Dokuritsu, successor to Hokusei. Generally speaking, the reshuffling of the corporate setup of the commie companies appears to be more or less a paper manipulation and face-saver, following the economic collapse of Hokusei.

According to current press accounts, there are some 25 lefty productions now in planning stages, before the cameras or about to be released, with themes running the gamut from "The Miserable Life of a Spinning Wheel Operator" to three lambasting various phases of nuclear warfare.

Political Climate

If the new political trend in Japan, urging close ties with Red China and the Soviet, continues, history may well record 1955 as a year of great growth of communist film interests in Japan. This will be particularly true if so-called "cultural" relations are developed between Nippon and the two curtain countries.

In the final analysis, Red influences in the Japanese motion picture industry will be decided on levels considerably apart from the film business. In other words, if the Soviet co-existence notion continues to be nurtured in Japan, the commies in films here can just about write their own ticket for 1955. On the other hand, if Japan finally decides to stake her future entirely with the West, then the commies will have tough sledding.

Masaichi Nagata was reported in the Nov. 8, 1954 issue of Time magazine as holding the opinion that "if the U. S. market proves profitable" (that is, for Japanese films), studios (which do so) would stop distribution of communist films. "They might even make some with a pro-American slant," Time concluded the indirect quote.

In the same article Time said "The worst blight on Japan's movie industry is still the glut of pro-communist films financed by left-wing unions, the Japanese Communist Party, Red China and Russia (which often buy them for cash in advance)."

Imports

Imported pictures have had a good year in Japan, with estimated distribution revenue rising from 8.3 yen billion ($23 million) in '53 to nearly 10 billion yen (almost $30 million) in '54 (about 80 per cent or some $22 million for U. S. majors against $18.5 last year, an increase of 19 per cent.

There is always a give-and-take of five to 10 either way in the number of pictures actually distributed during any given calendar year. This is due to the fact that even one re-issue date, merely to keep the picture alive, is considered by some as a legitimate release and not so by others.

Therefore, FEFN's estimate indicates that some 200 foreign pictures were distributed in '54, about the same (198) as last year. This total breaks down roughly into: U. S., 141 (109 and 32 by U. S. majors and independents, respectively); Britain, 15; France, 15; Italy, 12; West Germany, five; Denmark, two; India, two, and others, eight.

Bonus import licenses for "superior" films shown during the first half of the fiscal year went to Paramount ("Stalag 17"), Towa Eiga ("The Little World of Don Camillo") and Shingaiei ("Therese Raquin"). Three more are to be issued for films released before April 1, 1955.

Nine months' totals for the 10 American majors found Paramount in the lead with 1,090,598,181 yen, followed by MGM's 970,296,415 yen. The other companies registered the following totals for the period: Warners, 768,563,136 yen; Fox, 754,005,140 yen; U-I, 625,695,003 yen; RKO, 446,294,349 yen; Columbia, 428,891,096 yen; Republic, 245,838,296 yen; UA, 200,503,514 yen; and AA, 101,592,447 yen.

Only two companies were off in total revenue at the three-quarter mark in '54. They were Warners (about 11 million yen) and RKO (some 40 million yen). Overall increase was 14.5 per cent.

Compilation of results during the first half of the fiscal year (April-October), showed the average return per new U. S. Majors' release was 69,497 million yen against 60,156 yen for the same part of '53, or an increase of 15.5 per cent.

At this writing, best-informed thinking on fiscal '55 is that the Japanese import policy will be essentially the same as that now in effect; however, with a national election due before April, anything can happen from the continuation of the present regulations to an extremely severe cut in imports and remittances. There is not much chance of a more liberal attitude toward imports and remittances.

ITALIAN FILMS IN 1954

By Dr. Eitel Monaco
President of ANICA

ROME

IN 1954 film business in Italy had a further increase in respect to the previous year. The number of tickets sold, increased seven per cent, totalling about 800,000,000 lire. There was also a slight increase in the average price of admission and consequently grosses at the nation's theaters show, between 1953 and 1954, a 10 per cent increase, totalling more than 100 billion lire, equivalent to about $160 million.

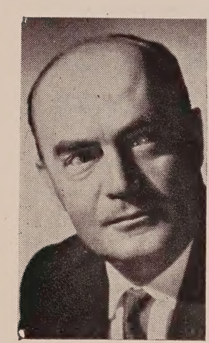
The reasons for this favourable situation are mainly three:

(a) —the continuous development both in number and in efficiency of theaters that, with an increase of 400 per year, have reached in 1954 the number of 11,000;

(b) —the liberal policy of the Government and of the motion picture dustry with regard to the exchange of films, which has allowed the market to be supplied with a great number of new films;

(c) —the growing interest of our audiences in Italian films.

Also, the number of wide screen and stereophonic installation is steadily increasing There are already 460 theaters with CinemaScope operating in Italy. Also orders for the above mentioned equipments are becoming more and more frequent, and we presume that by next year their number will be tripled.



MONACO

Box office grosses of CinemaScope films are definitely higher than those totalled by films of the same artistic value produced with normal systems. The percentage of increase may be reckoned to date as of 40 percent.

We deem that the number of theaters will further increase about 300 next year. On a 47,000,000 population, the 11,000 theaters with their 4,535,695 seats, average one seat per 10 persons.

With regard to censorship, there has been no change in Government regulations, but the provisions now in force were brought into effect more strictly than before. In this field, a new organization was created this year within ANICA, on a basis which is similar to the Production Code of MPAA, for the voluntary control of film production.

So far, no code has been drawn up, but an office has been established and a committee appointed to examine treatments, scripts and prints of Italian films to which the "marchio ANICA" is to be granted; and to reject applications of those films that violate the fundamental principles of ethics or the law.

National Production

One hundred and sixty Italian films were produced in Italy in 1954 and 80 of them were in color. Two thirds of the color films are produced in Ferraniacolor, an excellent Italian system; the remaining third in Technicolor, Eastman-color or Gevacolor.

The average cost of production has increased to about 150,000,000 lire, equivalent to about $260,000. This increase is not due, as erroneously written by some American press, to an increase of unit costs (salaries have increased only five percent) but rather to the new kind of production that requires more expensive means, both technical and artistic.

Co-productions were widely developed last year: the number of films co-produced with France, after the ratification of the first agreement, namely from 1949 to December 1954, was 130, 65 of which were shot in Paris and 65 in Rome. Two films were made in coproduction with Germany, four with Spain and one with the Argentine. There are no official co-production agreements with the United States, but two films produced in Italy in 1954 have been made with the financial and artistic participation of American companies.

Italians productions grossed better in 1954 than in the previous years. Box office grosses on the domestic market, relating to Italian films rose from the 15 percent of total grosses in 1948, to 37 percent in 1954. Box office receipts for Italian films in 1954 were therefore of 40 billion lire, equivalent to about $64,500,000.

Also, exports have definitely increased. About 1,800 sales contracts have been made with 86 different countries.

Exports towards Central and South American countries and the Near East have shown a remarkable increase. Satisfactory, but not remarkable, are the earnings of the exploitation of our films in the United States.

We have much better prospects for 1955, concerning the American market. Meanwhile the commercial organization in the export section for the assistance of Italian producers has been developed.

The Italian Film Festivals organized by Unitalia Film have been very successful. An unprecedented success, from which derived immediate commercial advantages, was the Italian Film Week in London. In 1955 Italian Film Weeks will be held in Djakarta, Manila, Sydney, Tokyo and Cairo.

In 1954 we saw the results of a new tendency in our production: besides the neo-realistic films and those of a popular character—the latter mainly meant for the domestic market—the exploitation was started of big spectacular films of a cost above a million dollars, and whose casts included famous foreign stars. The results were most favourable, as the sales of films on foreign markets have been made on a far superior basis than usually averaged by Italian films, and the first earnings were considerable. Some uneasiness was to be noticed in the field of production in the last months of this year, since the Government provisions regarding cinamatography are expiring as at December 31, 1954. In the fear that the above law would not be extended or renewed, the rhythm of production underwent a slow-down; but if, as it is likely, such law will be timely extended, the rhythm of production will return to normality.

Studios, laboratories and the like have worked with a normal rhythm. Laboratories, however, have shown a reduction in work, owing to the ever increasing number of foreign films produced with color systems that cannot, to date, be processed in Italy. These laboratories are now planning new equipments that will allow them to print and develop color films, at least those of the Monopack system.

Import and Distribution

In 1954, 450 new films were released in the Italian circuits, which means a decrease of five per cent in respect to the previous year. The decrease refers only to foreign films. The first runs of Italian films, were 156 and 294 of foreign films, divided as follows:

Country	Year 1953	Year 1954
United States	223	207
France	41	35
Great Britain	22	24
Spain	7	7
Germany	4	5
Other countries	19	16
	316	294

Total grosses are thus divided:
for Italian films 37 per cent
(instead of 34 per cent of last year);
for American films 55 per cent
(instead of 58 per cent of last year).

Box office grosses for Italian films were of 40 billion lire and for American films of about 60 billion lire.

Theaters

We have already pointed out the growing increase in the number of theaters, which are presently 11,667. We have also seen that the total box office grosses have shown a further increase. We cannot state, however, that theater owners have drawn advantages from this situation: during the year, in fact, the entertainment tax rose again.

The Government taxes on admission prices were increased since September last by 20 per cent; besides, an extra tax for the unemployed was levied and extended to all holidays. The present tariffs of Government taxation vary according to the prices of admission. After the recent increases, their average incidence on grosses is of about 30 per cent; the total incidence of entertainment tax, admission tax and tax for the unemployed on the net price, is of more than 80 per cent. All categories concerned have asked the Government to be relieved from this excessively onerous fiscal pressure, and there is hope for a revision of the present entertainment tax.

New theaters are being opened throughout the country, increasingly in small towns and rural districts, whilst theaters in all cities are being modernized. All this is a guarantee for the future of film activity in Italy.

A HOPEFUL TREND

By EMIL ZUBRYN

Staff Correspondent, THE FILM DAILY

MEXICO CITY

WHILE the 1954 film year in Mexico was marked by the same blundering tactics of the past five years, a hopeful trend manifested itself during the closing quarter. The revived hope for a stronger industry is due to aggressive tactics of Mexico's film czar Eduardo Garduño, head of the National Film Bank.

A dynamic Garduño, alarmed at further sliding off in receipts from national and export markets, has initiated reorganization moves summed up in three major points: improvement of artistic and commercial qualities of films by limiting production; an all out bid to develop new markets; and regulation of production financing. The republic is also moving toward greater collaboration in co-production, principally with the U.S., France, Italy and Spain.

ZUBRYN

Evaluating conflicting reports, production for 1954 stands at 110 feature-length films, with seven of this total U. S. produced. The 103 Mexican films are broken down to 76 "standard" films; 15 two-week quickies and 12 so-called super-productions. It should be noted here that a vast majority of the standard productions, about 60 per cent, were completed within three weeks, with the rest taking a month or five to six weeks; with only some of the super productions having shooting schedules of two months and more.

Average costs of black-and-white films in Mexico have run roughly $500,000 pesos ($40,000 dollars) per picture. Production investment has been nearly 60 million pesos ($4,800,000) for an approximate 25 per cent boost over the 40 million pesos investment in 1953.

Exhibitors and distributors are not talking about gross receipts but unofficial sources estimate that there has been a recovery from the republic-wide gross of 215,000,000 pesos ($25,003,000) in 1953, which represented a 20 per cent fall-off from 1952 figures as a result of the crippling summer film strike.

The effects of the three-month 1953 film strike were reflected in the fall off in export markets. Figures are a closely guarded secret, but it is known that receipts from Puerto Rico, for example, fell off by 40 per cent. During 1953, Mexico sent 83 films to Central and South America whereas the total for 1954 only reached a vaguely given 56, with probabilities that actual figure is much lower.

Quality Alarms

The strong resistance to bad films by the general public and the box office popularity of good Mexican and Hollywood product has alarmed distributors and exhibitors alike. And it is they who have put the pressure to bear on producers, through the film bank, that necessary measures be taken to improve national films. It is estimated that the domestic market can absorb perhaps 90 films a year, with higher production than this harmful to the industry as a whole. Exhibitors are also clamoring for "new faces" to replace the top dozen stellar players who have been a fixture in films for decades, in some instances.

Morality and quality were the theme words for 1954 production but, on the whole, this ideal has not been lived up to. However, in the New York, this is to be the main spoke in the revitalization drive. A commission of key individuals of the industry has been busy since mid-year on plans to improve national films. Export films to Central and South America have only had exhibition dates of two and three days, a new low. A real fear has developed here that if films are not improved then European and U. S. producers will reconquer markets which Mexico built up in Latin America. There is increasing talk that Mexico should produce but 70 films a year, but that these should all be of international character as well as suitable for home movie theaters.

The "two-week" quickies, sanctioned by the Federal Film Bureau earlier in the year will probably be done away with in 1955. It was pointed out that the "quickies" were a good investment for some producers for they received official loans of 340,000 pesos ($27,600). Actual costs averaged 320,000 pesos ($25,600), thus guaranteeing a $1,600 dollar profit before exhibition. Even if the quickies are permitted, it is certain they will not obtain Film Bureau financing.

Push Film Weeks

To offset noticeable losses in Central and South America, Mexico embarked on the exploitation of a series of Mexican Film Week festivals south of the border, with notable success in Chile, Brazil and the Dominican Republic. This program is to be expanded during 1955, with a Mexican Film Week to be celebrated early in January in Panama.

Pulido Islas, head of Cimex, Mexican official export distribution set-up, said recently: "Mexican films must not only have strong folklore themes of worldwide appeal, but must also stress Mexican themes with universal meaning." In this way, with production aimed at world distribution, the industry will be able to assure a steady flow of foreign exchange into its coffers. Mexico has never been particularly fortunate in foreign exports but Islas said that producers have had an extraordinarily good year in U. S. markets. Whereas formerly U. S. distribution bought an average of $10,000, the take is now $30,000 per film, and it can be increased.

The local industry is also making strong efforts to promote wider co-productions. During 1953 co-production accounted for 11 Mexican-Spanish films; two Mexican-Brazilian joint ventures and one each with Argentina and Cuba. Co-productions are seen here as the key to opening foreign markets and while only hesitant steps were taken in 1954, with deals falling through, the prospects for 1955 are much brighter. Cimex has organized two subsidiary foreign setups: in Italy with Goffredo Lombardo, Head of Titanus Films, Rome; and in France with George Lourreau president of Unifrance Films. The existing contract for European distributing with William Karol must first expire (he is Peliculas Mexicanas representative in Europe) before the new set-up can begin functioning.

The ambitious foreign plans will give Mexico distribution in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Africa through the French subsidiary and in Greece, Turkey, Syria and other Middle East countries through the Italian firm. The European distributors guarantee that they will organize an exhibition chain for suitable Mexican product and a deal is under way to rent the Raimu movie house in Paris to show Mexican products. Apart from regular showings this house would have a Mexican Film Season four times a year each lasting four weeks.

Mexico's top stars will be cast in strong stories in national and co-productions to cement the foreign market. Such names as Arturo de Cordova, Pedro Armendariz, Maria Felix, Katy Jurado, Dolores del Rio, Carlos Lopez Montezuma, Sarita Montiel, Maria Elena Marques, among other top draws, will appear in Mexican spectacles aimed at world film fans. On the basis of former experiences, Mexican-foreign co-productions will be on a 50-50 basis, about equally dividing the financial burdens, talent and teaching skills. Aside from usual collaboration with Spain, Mexico is now negotiating for continuous, and not one-shot deals, with Italian and French film producers although talks have not reached contract stages as yet.

The co-production plan has the unlimited backing of the "big three of Mexican films"—Eduardo Garduño, Gregorio Wallerstein and Mario Zacarias. The feeling in film circles here is that they are all go-getters who will push the program through to a successful conclusion.

Cimex, in its drive to consolidate foreign distribution, acquired Azteca Films and entered into negotiations with Clasa-Mohme, the other major U. S. distributor. Gustavo Mohme has been playing his cards close to his chest and is not disposed to sell out. Cimex officials have argued that they are not interested in controlling Mohme's distribution outlet but that they want to have "unnecessary inermediaries" done away with so that producers receive fair profits on productions. Nothing is known at this writing, but there is a possibility of a compromise whereas Clasa-Mohme may sell or distribute Mexican films at reduced percentages "for the good of the national industry."

Meanwhile, Peliculas Mexicanas, which formerly was a closed distributionship for producers such as Filmex, Rosas Priego, Raul de Anda, Reforma Films, and others, has been transformed into a general distributorship agency with all Mexican producers now able to use this outlet to reach Central and South American markets. The new organization has a capitalization of 16 million pesos ($1,280,000) with the Film Bank increasing its controlling interest from 5 to 25 per cent. Eduardo Garduño heads the new board for Peliculas Mexicanas.

New Finance Policy

Most striking announcement for the entire year was made around mid-December when Garduño, Wallerstein and Zacarias as heads of the commission working for the reconstruction of the industry announced that a new financing policy would be inaugurated in January or February of 1955. Briefly stated, the plan is to set up five classes of films: A, B, C, D and E. The first category includes the best films from story, star, direction and technical standpoints, and these will receive up to 80 per cent of production costs from the Film Bank. B category will get 70 per cent paid; C, 60; D, 50 and E 40 per cent. The lower the quality of films, the lower will be the financial aid, with poor product only assured about 20 per cent of costs.

The new financial plan is hailed as the first real stimulus in Mexico for the production of good films, with merit rewarded through higher financial aid. Further, a provision has been made that Mexican historical films or those with purely national interest (almost never a box office success) will receive 100 per cent aid, with at least five super-productions of this type financed annually.

Long Way to Go

Mexico has a long way to go to rehabilitate its ailing film industry, but apparently now, at long last, the proper steps are finally being formulated. There are hundreds of problems still to be ironed out, with labor difficulties, low pay for actors, authors, etc., and the elimination of disunity within the industry still to be achieved. Writers, for example, are assured a minimum of 12,000 pesos ($960) per shooting script, but they have won the provision that producers can only have exclusive rights for five years. The National Association of Actors wants to see fees boosted around 24 per cent, with this meaning 13,640 pesos ($1,091) for stellar parts, per film, while supporting players would get from 402 ($32) daily down to 174 pesos ($14) for bit routines. By Hollywood standards this still is not a lot of money. Incidentally, these are not prices paid to the Mexican film aristocracy whose salaries assure them enough to buy several Cadillacs and own haciendas all over the country, as well as homes abroad.

Best break for Mexican players has been activity of Hollywood units. Seven U. S. films were made in Mexico during the year "A Case of Life or Death," "Sitting Bull," "White Orchid," "Vera Cruz," "Bandit's Cave," "White Feather" and "The Magnificent Matador." Producers, while not paying premium rates in Mexico, did leave an average of 2,000,000 pesos ($160,000) per film, with this shared by studios, technicians and players. The trend toward Mexico will apparently continue for three new productions are scheduled for January and February shooting, with the most important being a life of Pancho Villa, with the son of Wallace Beery being approached for the starring role.

By year's end, some 360 films were exhibited in Mexico with 225 of this total U. S.; 76 Mexican, 28 French, 27 Italian, 13 Spanish and 3 British with other nationalities making up the rest, including eight Russian films. These figures are unofficial for actual tallies will not be released, together with box office breakdowns until around July of 1955. Generally speaking about 2/3rds of box office revenues have been earned by U. S. product.

Trend to Nabe Houses

In new construction, the trend has been to neighborhood houses with Gabriel Alarcon, the Granat Brothers and Manuel Espinosa chains highly active; the latter leading all the rest. Industry investment, although no one will pin down an accurate estimate, is now in the neighborhood of a billion pesos ($80,000,000), with $850,000,000 representing investment in more than 2,180 theaters, including open air theaters in tropical areas (roughly 500, with top capacity of these around 100 seats).

While comparative construction figures are not available, Espinosa, for example, has invested from one million ($80,000) to over four million ($320,000) in construction of neighborhood houses, with these real cinema palaces ranging in seating capacity from 2,500 to over 5,000. Bill of fare roughly offers a 50-50 ration between Mexican and U. S. products, the latter sometimes 15 to 20 years old, with episode epics the rage. In the first-run houses, with the failure to enforce the 50-50 ratio after a court edict ruled it unconstitutional it has approximated 2/3rd U. S. to 1/3rd Mexican product.

Neighborhood independents, around 600 of them, are finding the going rough, squeezed by major exhibitors on the one hand and labor demands on the other. With top prices still maintained by city authorities, small neighborhood houses cannot make ends meet with 1 peso (8 cents) and 1.50 (12 cents) box office admission. Added to which they have no choice in product they receive for exhibition. A few houses have shut down and this trend may continue during 1955.

CinemaScope finished its first anniversary toward the close of the year, the Mariscala Theater in Mexico City inaugurating this system with the showing of "The Robe." CinemaScope productions are popular in Mexico and in January of 1955 a CinemaScope color epic, in English and Spanish "The Monster of the Mountain Cave" is scheduled to start shooting with Guy Madison starred and Mexican actor Eduardo Noriega in a featured role.

Miguel Bujazan is leader in the CinemaScope production movement in Mexico and has announced plans to make four films a year. He is offering CinemaScope lens to brother producers but in a recent interview he lamented that he has had no requests, even though he is offering them at low prices ($10,000 per picture).

Three-D, CinemaScope and other systems are not stabilized in Mexico as yet, and there is a lack of information in installations and box office returns. During 1955 further expansion on a major scale is indicated, with theaters in the provinces installing one or another of the new ssytems competing in Mexico.

Plan Color Films

Mexico is planning color production for 1955 as well, with three color laboratories set to begin operations in the first quarter of the year. The reopened Tepeyac Studios will have Eastman color laboratories in February while Churubusco Studios will have color facilities in April or May; the third laboratory is owned by Salvador Rosas Priego, brother of the producer of the same name. At least 15 Mexican color films will be exhibited nationally during 1955.

Mexican producers get a break in use of CinemaScope lens, with the royalty being $10,000 a film, in comparison with the $25,000 paid by Hollywood. CinemaScope and color are looked upon as two good bets to boost sagging box office receipts. But so far no great rush, because of heavy costs, is apparent.

In resume, the Mexican film industry is showing the strongest signs of revival in the past decade, with intelligent planning working toward conquest of world markets, an improvement in quality of products and a better financial set-up. Censorship will be no problem under the new financing regulations where stories must be submitted to the Film Bureau for okay—the standard obpectionable themes, too scantily dressed gals and anything deemed derogatory to the honor of the nation will be frowned on by film censors as in the past.

The Hollywood tide appears to be growing for at least five Califronia producers have filed notice to use Churubusco facilities alone next year, including Wayne-Fellows Productions, Warners, 20th-Fox and Abbott and Costello who plan to co-produce a film in the republic too.

Year of Progress

It will be a year of progress, said Eduardo Garduño at a recent banquet, commenting on 1955 prospects, and a real forward march so that the industry can surge to the forefront as an important part of Spaish language production. Garduño is confident, but there have been rumors that he and the Film Bureau are in disagreement about phases of the rehabilitation plan for the industry. This has, of course, been strenuously denied on both sides.

The final trend for 1955 is that Mexico will open its doors to eight television film producing companies as a means to bring dollars into the republic and provide work for hundreds of employees. Plan is to film in English and Spanish, with themes to cover musicals, dramas, comedies, etc. for U. S. and Spanish-speaking markets. Churubusco, Azteca and possibly Tepeyac facilities will be used, with films to be produced in series of 13, 26 and 52 weeks. TV producers have long had an eye on Mexico due to savings which can be effected here.

All in all, the film industry is optimistically crossing its fingers for a banner 1955 as the first twelve-months in a major advance out of the depression doldrums.

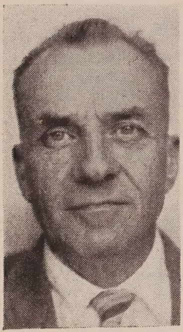
PROGRESS IN FRANCE

By P. A. HARLE

PARIS

FRANCE last year continued to make progress, both in the amount of income received by theaters and distributors, and in the quality of pictures turned out by the French producers. Almost all theaters destroyed during the war have been rebuilt, and the facilities offered by theaters have been improved.

Further, the financing of both theater improvements and production has been facilitated by the easing of public and bank credits.



HARLE

Industry receipts were swelled in 1954 by a permitted increase in seat prices, authorized for approximately 20 big films per quarter. Move is said to have resulted in a 10 per cent increase in overall receipts in the past year, and is expected to increase general receipts by 20 per cent in 1955.

According to 20th-Fox, 450 French theaters were equipped for CinemaScope projection by December, 1954, and the list is growing by about 50 theaters per month. Last year saw the release in France of 13 CinemaScope productions and one in VistaVision.

Exports of French films increases steadily. It is estimated that earnings of French films abroad have increased five times since 1948.

While censorship of French films takes place twice—one prior to filming, and again upon completion, the authorities remain liberal in their decisions.

REPORT FROM BRAZIL

By L. M. PEPPERCORN

Rio de Janeiro

THE PAST YEAR was a less exciting year for the American film companies in Brazil as no major changes occurred, neither regarding the film industry in particular, nor regarding the general situation inasmuch as it would affect the American film industry in a way different from any other industries.

Not even the sudden death of President Getulio Vargas towards the end of August nor the new administration under his successor, Joao Café Filho, altered the course of the 10 American movie companies' position. This of course proves that the film industry here has neither special privileges nor special risks, but is merely a link in the chain according to the general financial and economic situation of this country.

PEPPERCORN

After past frozen accounts, included in the $300 million Ex-Import Bank loan, were finally remitted at the end of 1952, the industry, in a general optimistic attitude, turned to lighter matters and gave their attention to the First International Film Festival at Sao Paulo, which took place at the end of February and which continued in Rio de Janeiro during the first days in March.

A sizable American delegation, headed by Eric J. Johnston, MPEA president, participated at the festivities which, though often thought confusing, actually could hardly have brought about a better result, considering the size of the city of Sao Paulo. The large contingent of different foreign language speaking delegations (not familiar with Portuguese) and the novelty for this country to stage and handle such a gathering.

Whether such festivities help the American industry in the particular country in which such festivals take place, is a matter of speculation, since, actually, international festivals, can hardly be expected to be looked upon as a promotion for any of the foreign groups that partake. Nevertheless, perhaps the most outstanding event of the entire Film Festival was a gala show—though not included in the official Festival program—of 20th Fox', "The Robe" which thus marked the first CinemaScope presentation in Brazil with which an invited public was made acquainted. "How to Marry a Millionaire," offered a few days later, was on the agenda of the festival's program.

Turning again to more serious matters, the film industry here learned early in 1954 that their remittances were established inasmuch as the 30 per cent of American earnings were to be remitted at the free exchange rate and the 70 per cent, called the New York production cost at the official, plus seven cruzeiros rate, also called the cost of the official exchange rate, as the seven cruzeiros represent the average of the bonuses paid to Brazilian exporters.

After this favorable decision, the industry, which had tried for some time to obtain higher theater admission prices for standard screen shows, felt rather optimistic towards this matter, since in March the Federal Price Control Board—COFAP granted an increase from 10 to 18 cruzeiros for CinemaScope screenings, which the industry believed to be the first step towards a general admission prices increase, although the latter had not been decided by the middle of November.

During that same month, Rio de Janeiro had its first look at a 3-D picture, a matter which had been greatly delayed owing to the unresolved question of fixing prices for 3-D viewers. Sao Paulo had a short run of 3-D pictures in 1952. Three-D attractions, however, expanded to other Brazilian cities, and even to a continuous series in Rio by all the 3-D distributing companies, after the viewers price sales and rentals question was finally settled by the COFAP in August, 1954.

During that same period the companies here were also informed by official quarters, that although the import of films will be on the same basis as before, that is without foreign exchange coverage, the companies must now adhere to the regulations that 50 per cent of all black and white prints be made locally. Although this was accepted by the industry, it turned out that a further postponement soon proved necessary, because of an increasing lack of rawstock in Brazil.

Still outstanding, however, had been the earnings prior to Feb. 21, 1953 which amounted to about $5.5 million. By the middle of April the industry was informed that these would be remitted in monthly installments of $300,000 at the official exchange rate of Cr. 18.82 and the companies participation in this remittance arrangements would be chronologically according to the application made in Brazil.

In view of the fact that eventually the companies would have to make their black and white prints here, the industry considered an offer made to them by one of the Brazilian laboratories which suggested a participation of 49 per cent by the Americans and 51 per cent by the Brazilian side. The industry, however, had their reasons to decline the offer.

By the middle of June, the financial situation in Brazil, which many had viewed rather optimistically, had actually not improved, on the contrary, had worsened. The agios for import certificates had continuously climbed, the cost of living and the general inflation had gone on. Exports had dropped and the May 1 decree which increased minimum wages by 100 per cent, began to be felt throughout the Brazilian economy.

The immediate consequence was that larger rawstock companies felt hesitant to acquire greater amounts of stock and to make long term engagements, while smaller firms, including Brazilian laboratories, were not inclined to take any risks. The matter was finally settled by authorities, who granted manufacturers' representatives certain quotas —both for an emergency, as well as, for long range importation—which took control of the situation, though the availability of stock was again postponed for a few months until the first consignments were to arrive in Brazil.

While Paramount's VistaVision was presented for the first time to Brazilian exhibitors in a special Sao Paulo screening at the end of July, the general situation in Brazil was becoming increasingly alarming, both politically as well as economically.

Changes in the coffee and general export policy at the middle of August, naturally reflected themselves not only on the film industry's position regarding future remittances, but on all financial set-ups in Brazil. The higher cruzeiro revenue which exporters obtained through the new measure, resulted, only a few weeks later, in the fixing of a higher cost of exchange rate, affecting a number of industries.

Thus, the film industry's remittances of the 70 per cent New York share, up to that time, made at Cr. 25.82, was for the time being, fixed at Cr. 33.82. Though dissatisfaction was first expressed by the companies here, they finally took this in stride, considering that they most likely would have to face even stronger restrictions in the near future, as would have every commercial enterprise in Brazil.

This became true only a short while thereafter. A monthly limit of $600,000, payable in weekly installments of $150,000 was fixed, in which the companies will partake either at a pro rata arrangement, or in a chronological order. The continuous dollar shortages also made itself felt by a notice given the film companies early in November, that the monthly installment of $300,000, covering earnings prior to Feb. 21, 1953 would have to be suspended temporarily.

THE GERMAN SCENE

BONN

THE GENERAL BUSINESS TREND in the West German motion picture field is still pointing upwards though the pace of the annual increase in box office grosses is slowing. Grosses in 1953 were about $149,000,000, and the 1954 figure is estimated as being about 10 per cent higher. Such a rate would follow the pattern set during the past three years when the annual increase in total grosses was 18.6, 15.9 and 13.2 per cent. Nevertheless, the West German expenditures for movie tickets of $149,000,000 compare favorably with the total sum spent for entertainment and educational purposes, namely $1,026,000,000.

TAXES

Excessive entertainment tax rates are an unsolved problem in West Germany. They have increased to the almost unbelievable 484 per cent of the 1938 level. In the same time admission prices went up a mere 26 per cent, while the total number of admissions is up by only 53 per cent against the 1938 figure.

These figures indicate that West Germany could be one of the most rewarding markets on the Continent if it were not for the excessive entertainment tax rates.

All attempts by German industry circles to fight the trend towards even higher taxes have, up to now, failed. This is due mainly to the fact that the tax is assessed and collected by different local authorities, not by the Bonn Federal Administration. There is little chance that the coming 12 months may bring a change to the better. Annual entertainment tax is now $31,000,000.

Feature Films

Feature film production in West Germany in 1954 again reached the pre-war level of slightly more than 100. Trend points to an even higher total of 110 to 120 in 1955, with German-foreign co-productions making up about 13 per cent of the total, thus providing German companies with both additional financing resources and a wider field of exploitation.

GENSCHOW

The Bonn Government is endorsing the trend and is trying to get co-production provisions written into all of its international film agreements. Most of the co-production projects are being planned by German and European producers, while few companies are considering German-American co-production deals.

The number of active producers is now at about 70 with only four of them turning out more than four feature films each per year. Most of the German producers belong to the independent category and make only one picture annually. In fact, the latter applies to more than 70 per cent of all German production units. There are fewer than 4,000 employes in the studio and production field.

Subsidies

West German feature film production relies heavily on Government subsidy money. Buergschafts Gesellschaft (Guarantee Co.), a Bonn Government agency, having a capital of $14,300,000 available for guaranteeing feature film projects is supporting at least 60 per cent of the area's motion picture industry, according to conservative estimates.

A newly introduced Government plan provides additional money coming as cash awards of $600,000 annually for the best films. Latter plan underlines the fact that the Bonn Government decided to actively participate in film financing rather than to lower tax rates, a move that has been proposed by the German industry repeatedly.

Theaters

The theater construction boom in West Germany has been levelling off during the past 12 months, but is, compared with the German pre-war situation, yet of significant size (about five new theaters per week).

Total of operating houses is now at about 5,200 representing a total seating capacity of about 2,100,000. There are no major circuits except the Ufa chain which controls, according to official data, 40 to 50 key situations.

The Ufa circuit is the only one, too, having broader financial ties to the production field. Almost all of the rest of the motion picture houses are operated independently, the situation mainly stemming from the introduction of rigorous anti trust laws after the war. The trend in this field points, however, to the formation of new combines allowed again under new and less tight regulations.

Distributors

Distributors in West Germany offered 128 German feature films (21 of them being international co-production projects) for the 1954-1955 period. A relatively small share of 33 of them will come in color, while 21 will be produced in a variety of wide screen processes (but all of them being made in standard process versions, too). The major share in the 1955 total of new process films will be provided by American companies in Germany. There will be 33 CinemaScope pictures, one VistaVision film and 11 in SuperScope among the 171 new process pictures.

Television

At the start of 1955 there were slightly more than 100,000 TV sets in operation in West Germany, and there have been no reports indicating that the impact of TV is felt at the box office. Industry circles, however, are aware of the fact that such an impact might be felt as early as at the end of 1955. Theater owners are actively planning introduction of theater TV and chances are that the upcoming fight against increasing competition from TV will find theaters well prepared to meet the challenge.

Investments in West German TV station and network facilities are, after two years, at a total of about $10,000,000. Stations are operating on a non-commercial basis and are almost completely relying on their own filmed programs thus preventing establishment of a specialized TV film industry. Stations are operated on a semi-official basis, and there are no privately owned stations.

Restrictions Looming

There are some pressure groups aiming at an early introduction of motion picture import restrictions. Some of the arguments are that West Germany's film industry cannot survive without Government protection from international competition, that it has lost 30 per cent of its pre-war market now located in the East Bloc area, that the West German market is overloaded (about 500 pictures offered annually, imports included), that subsidies should be terminated and be made unnecessary by securing a larger share for German product in the German box office take.

While the Bonn Government is still endorsing a policy of free international film trade, it has to meet severe opposition from the Bundestag (Lower House) where even most of the Government party delegates are voting in favor of import restriction proposals. Among the recently proposed restrictive measures are: a five per cent duty on film imports, a new release tax, a quota. Latter provision would be, however, contrary to regulations of the GATT to which West Germany is a signatory.

MPEA companies are still exporting their product to Germany under a voluntary "gentlemen's agreement" closed with the Bonn Government, which provides for an annual maximum total of slightly more than 200 feature films.

Transfer and use of earnings in West Germany are now practically free of all restrictions since blocked Sperrmark accounts were abolished in the latter half of 1954.

Russian Zone

The Russian Occupation Zone of Germany is practically closed for motion pictures from Western countries, save occasional imports from European countries. The East German motion picture industry is controlled by Defa and its subsidiaries, a state-owned motion picture monopoly. Defa is actively negotiating film exchange plans with West German companies offering co-production deals with very generous terms including distribution of West German films in all of the East Bloc countries.

Ufa Problem

Ufa, the onetime German motion picture monopoly, now under Bonn Government administration, is set for dissolution and sale in 1955. Sale of Ufa had been requested by American, British and French occupation authorities on grounds that Ufa because of the large size of its organization would dominate and control the German motion picture market if allowed to start motion picture production again which in fact had been suspended in 1945.

At present, it is still uncertain whether the Ufa problem will be solved in 1955 due to the lack of sufficient capital on the side of prospective buyers and due to the yet undecided, or at least not made public attitude of the Bonn Government.

CUBA IN 1954

By MARY LOUISE BLANCO

HAVANA

OPTIMISM always has been the prime characteristic of Cuban. But the very essence of the people lies in faith in the future. With a restriction on the sugar crop, which is the economic weather vane of Cuba; a drop in sugar price; the decline of Cuba's tobacco industry, at one time so prosperous, and which has reached a point of acute crisis; the uncertain politic situation that have been prevailing here since the army seized power in March, 1952; Cubans' traditional love for a democratic form of government and the feeling of uncertainty that always exists in a country governed by military regime, without constitutional statutes and constitutional Congress, has caused investments to dry up.

It is said that money is cowardly and carefully kept away from any productive activity when a country is suffering from dangerous turmoil.

BLANCO

Cuba's prosperity depends on sugar prices. Sugar crop in 1954 was 5,000,000 tons at 3.25, while in 1948 was 7,825,985 tons at four cents a pound, a considerable drop. Since sugar prices and crop have dropped, the sums of money which entered in Cuba were smaller than in 1953. Government revenue has declined and it was necessary to cut the salaries of Government employes and to reduce expenditures in all departments. $100,000,000 of salaries was the reduction in 1954.

Cuba with its 44,164 square miles of territorial extension, is one of the large islands of the world. Havana has about one sixth of the total population of the country, that according to the last census has 5,526,871 inhabitants and it is increasing at a tremendous pace, faster than all the countries of the world. Cuba is an agriculture country and is not equipped with heavy industries. Being the sugar the key to our economy. Without sugar there is no country. It is not a surprise that we have more than a million of unemployed.

In conclusion, with this terrible economic situation it is obvious to say that Cuban exhibitors and distributors had a bad year in 1954.

Theaters

There are 500 motion picture theaters operating in Cuba, of which about 150 are located in small communities and open their doors three days weekly. Seating capacity of Cuba theaters is put at 365,833. There are 164 16mm operations.

Just seven theaters were built as the capitalists prefer to invest their money in apartment buildings. Being a tropical country you would expect that in this day and age all theaters here would be air-conditioned. but due to the high cost of it and poor attendance, very few have, about 100.

Exhibitors are willing to install air conditioning and CinemaScope, but the fact is that they had to reduce salaries twice and admission price scale, due to a 30 per cent drop of attendance from 1953 levels.

Cuban artists are still fighting for legislation imposing the so-called "shows in the cinemas," against the exhibitors who were unable to fulfill the decree imposing shows even during the most prosperous period of the wartime and sugar boom. It is not possible that they can present them now, when business has fallen off considerably. Distributors and all sections of the industry rejected and condemned this measure, which will worsen the financial difficulties of the exhibitors.

Distribution

The economy of the country was reflected in the 15 per cent less obtained by American distributor companies during 1954; despite the substantial profits made with the CinemaScope pictures.

There are no quota or contingent measures in effect in Cuba which might reduce or prevent the distribution of United States motion pictures; remittances of current film earnings and no such measures are contemplated. No protection in the exhibition of Cuba films has been issued by the Government as production here is scarce. More than a 90 per cent of Cuba's theaters use an entire program of English dialogue pictures with super-imposed titles in Spanish. There are about 15 theaters in Havana which use an all Spanish movie program. Cuban theaters are just about 100 per cent double features. Audiences want three hours of entertainment and like a good story. Stars are important, but Cubans demand more than stars.

Features released during 1954 totaled 545; 319 U. S. A. short subjects, Western, cartoon, documental are not included; 20 from England; 56 Italian; and Franco-Italian; Cuban, 12; 10 Argentine; Mexican, 64; 15 Spain; 33 French; Germany and Franco-German, 14; one Brazilian and one Sweden.

The most outstanding developments in the dsitribution field was the introduction in Cuba of the CinemaScope with "The Robe," which opened simultaneously in two theaters, Payret and Trianon. High cost of the installations, $50,000 was cited as one factor of its slowness at the beginning and the exhibitors were cautious.

The role CinemaScope has played in aiding first-run theaters is emphasized in the fact that two of the nine theaters equipped have already paid the installation with the grosses obtained by the exhibition of five CinemaScope pictures, although they were not top pictures.

Strong Upsurge

The rapid rise in orders at the end of 1954 is attributed to the box office success of CinemaScope pictures, providing that the investment in the equipment was economically wise. The upward trend in CinemaScope installation orders in 1954 is expected to continue in 1955.

Censorship

The Cuban Censorship Board examined 1,000 films during 1954, of which only two were banned. One from the Soviet, "The Downfall of Berlin" and the Mexican film "Mulata," which contained scenes of an African dance presented as a Cuban dance.

All pictures exhibited in Cuba must be reviewed by the Censorship Board, which is under the Government control. Few are rejected, even the nude films, which are approved for adults only. But, when the Board recommends a picture for adults only, no minors are allowed to attend even if they are accompanied by their parents. A great quantity of films are not approved for minors here. The board rejects murder, brutal killing, robbery, scenes of passion. There is no appeal against the decision of the Board.

Cuban Production

Many foreign producers have discovered a movie paradise in Cuba, where the cost of production is extremely reasonable, with the exception of the musicians. More co-productions, 12, were made in 1954 here than ever before. Top attractions were "Casta de Roble," produced by Manuel Alonso and distributed by Columbia Pictures, and "La Rosa Blanca."

The Cuban industry is getting on its feet slowly, although the Commission of the Film Industry, which controls the Film City Studios at the Reparto Biltmore, has done little for Cuban producers.

Facilities and subsidies were offered by the Cuban Government for 1955. It is reported that Manuel Alonso will produce three pictures. Jose Guerra Aleman, who included a weekly news story in Eastman color in Cineperiodico, newsreel, will produce two pictures in 1955.

The production company Cub-Mex headed by Dr. Roberto Martinez Rubio y Felix Caighnet, produced five pictures in 1954 and planning 10 films in 1955. There is a movement toward the production of 20 pictures in the next year, despite the lack of studios that prevail here.

AUSTRALIAN PROGRESS

By PETER MORRISON

SYDNEY

THE STORY of the Australian motion picture industry in 1954 is a cheerful one. It is a story of progress in every department, and of dramatic development in some. It is a story of fresh and vigorous growth and it is a story which must give rise to almost unbounded optimism for the future.

Although up-to-date figures are not available, it has been authoritatively predicted that 1954 would be the biggest year ever for the industry Down Under. Box office reports covering the key city releases week by week appear to substantiate this, for they have shown a succession of record-breaking seasons even in the usually tough trading periods of mid-Winter and pre-Christmas.

MORRISON

Many factors have contributed to box office buoyancy. Economic conditions have been favorable, with Australia enjoying a stable period in which the post-war inflation has been checked, wages are still high and there is every reason for confidence in the future. There has been remarkably little industrial unrest. The population has grown steadily (from 8,431,391 in June, 1951 to 8,917,763 in December, 1953) and is still growing, as a result of the Government's long-range immigration policy.

Within the industry itself, there has been a higher proportion of blockbuster product than ever before. Further, advent of the new screen techniques, particularly CinemaScope, has focused public attention on the movies and has stimulated more virile and creative showmanship thinking among the general run of exhibitors, irrespective of whether they have adopted the new systems.

Exhibition

MUCH of the nation's key playing time is cornered by the two major circuits, Hoyts Theaters, Ltd. and Greater Union Theaters

Pty., Ltd. Hoyts, operating 183 situations, is controlled by 20th-Fox in America, while Greater Union is half-owned by the J. Arthur Rank Organization, and operates 128 houses.

Aside from the introduction of new techniques, both chains spent freely on general renovations to raise the already admirable standard of operation and housekeeping that applies in most of Australia's theaters. Greater Union in particular allocated hundreds of thousands of dollars to a rebuilding program encompassing its Sydney suburban group. Many of these houses, which had been somewhat down-at-the-heel when GU acquired them, have been given a facelift at cost far exceeding the original price of construction.

M-G-M during 1954 added one more theater to its circuit, bringing the total to 12. This includes five nabes, though all are operated on first-run policy.

Australian theaters in the past financial year (ended June 30, 1954) absorbed 333 new features, lowest tally since 1948-9 (308), and a drop of 40 from 1952-3 (373). Of the 333, all but 69 were from the American distributors.

Latest figures released by the Commonwealth Government show that in the financial year ended June 30, 1952, picture theater attendances on which entertainment tax was paid totalled 140,085,000, an increase of more than 6,000,000 on the previous year — 133,959,000. Going back another year, the tally was only 129,028,000. These figures, outdated as they are, are the best available pointer to box office trends. It would be unwise to predict just how far the upbeat would have continued through 1952-3 and 1953.4.

Australia has one of the world's highest ratings of seats per unit of population, with 1,186,719 for just on 9,000,000 people. Compiled at September, 1954, the seating figure is slightly less than previously, though the population has increased. The number of 35mm theaters also dropped from 1,730 to 1,728. This does not indicate a lowering of the effective coverage. On the contrary, there were during the 12-month period a number of theater closures — mostly in situations which ought never to have carried a theater anyway — while other, better theaters opened in areas where the need was greater.

Exhibitors have found a new source of revenue in foreign-language films, which hitherto had been confined to a few art houses. They are now being shown sporadically in theaters throughout the country. They've been accepted even by patrons in industrial areas and in the sticks.

Upbeat in this type of product is no doubt largely due to large numbers of Continental folk among immigrants, but Australian nationals, too, have developed a taste for the European pix, which are more often than not sexy in theme.

Hoyts has switched one of its Sydney city theaters to a Continental policy, re-naming it the Paris Cinema (it was the Park); and Greater Union is operating a nabe on first-run foreign policy. Even M-G-M, which normally runs only its own product through its circuit, has screened a Festival of Foreign Films, and has booked at least one foreign picture for an individual run.

New Techniques

CinemaScope has dominated the Australian scene over the past 12 months. Tradeshown in Sydney on Nov. 20, 1953, it was launched publicly via "The Robe" on Dec. 9, at the Sydney Regent Theater, flagship house of the Hoyts Theaters circuit, which is controlled by 20th-Fox.

Impact of both the film and the medium was immediate and spectacular here, and in subsequent debuts in key cities around Australia. After playing only five theaters, "The Robe" had drawn a total attendance of more than 1,500,000.

Hoyts proceeded with a million-dollar program of converting most of its 183 theaters to the new medium, and for some months was the only company showing CinemaScope. M-G-M later began converting its 12 houses, and in the latter half of the year independents and small circuits followed suit. Today there are almost 300 theaters throughout Australia geared to show CinemaScope.

By no means all have adopted stereophonic sound. Hoyts and 20th-Fox have strenuously endeavored to influence exhibitors towards buying four-track magnetic, but several of Hoyts' own installations of late have been with single-track.

M-G-M is espoused to Perspecta, but very few indies have bought this system. Trade opinion seemed highly favorable at Perspecta demonstrations, but local equipment houses have not been licensed to manufacture the necessary integrator units, and exhibitors have askewed imported gear in view of cost factor and currency difficulties.

While CinemaScope has made great progress Down Under, 3-D has become almost a thing of the past. It has been making good money still in northern Queensland, but elsewhere is no longer thought worthwhile. Finis has been written to the deepies even in the north by the distribs' decision not to import any more 3-D prints, claiming it's uneconomical to do so.

Wide-screen, on the other hand, is becoming accepted as virtually a necessity. For months past, exhibitors in all types of situations have been installing bigger screens of various ratios, and now a definite trend is emerging. Showmen believe that in the future they will be wise to screen pix of any ratio that comes along. Those who choose CinemaScope as their primary medium are masking off the sides for "blow-up" and normal-ratio showings. A large section of the industry on the other hand sees VistaVision as a happier medium, and they're using 1.85:1 screens, which would then be masked down for CinemaScope.

Greater Union has announced that it is installing 1.85.1 throughout its circuit, and that it will show films in whatever ratio they are delivered by the distributor. It is therefore believed that GU has variable anamorphic lenses; but to date the chain has given no indication that it will show CinemaScope pix, and it has shown a definite preference for VistaVision. The first VV feature, "White Christmas" was released through GU.

In respect of all the new techniques, rate of conversions has been retarded by the inability of the equipment houses to keep pace with demands. Suppliers have in fact done a magnificent job in handling orders of many times normal volume, but their best efforts have not satisfied exhibitor interests. Delivery delays on many components are to the tune of three months, some have been quoted as high as 12 months.

Distribution

AUSTRALIA is largely an American market, with trade here dominated by the eight majors who are members of the local Motion Picture Distributors' Association. They are Columbia, M-G-M, Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, United Artists, Universal and Warners.

Twentieth-Fox in addition to its own product distributes for Republic, Associated British-Pathe and Independent Film Distributors, each of which has its own representative, working in association with 20th.

Universal distributes for London Films, which also has its own head in Sydney. United Artists has during 1954 distributed a group of 26 Allied Artists-Monogram pix, and a deal is pending for a further group. AA-Monogram had for some years been without substantial representation on the screen here.

Notwithstanding the three groups of British product released via the American companies, Britain's major outlet here is through a subsidiary of Greater Union Theaters — British Empire Films — which handles primarily the Rank output. UK films have over the past year enjoyed striking success at the box office. The biggest of the British pix have rivalled anything from America, in first release houses. In many suburban and country areas the public shows some antipathy towards UK product, which however is protected tradewise through legislation. The standard film contract provides for rejection by the exhibitor of 25 per cent of American pictures, whereas there is no rejection right for British product. Exhibitors have repeatedly objected to this, but it's unlikely that the position will change.

A notable development in distribution during 1954 has been the rise of the independents. The importers of foreign-language films have benefited from the strong upbeat in box office potential of this type of product, while two small-time companies are now rapidly growing and are turning more and more to English and American product. They are Ray Films and Independent Film Distributors Pty., Ltd. (which is not related to the British company of the same name). They have both received allocations to import films from dollar areas and to remit dollars to America, a benefit previously enjoyed only by the American distributors. Both Ray and IFD have exploited the so-called product shortage, which has meant, in reality, a temporary shortage of immediately available A features, and an overall shortage of supports.

Despite restrictions on dollar remittances, the American distributors have very little frozen currency in Australia. They have found ways of diverting the money or of using it in soft-currency areas. Co-production has been one of these ways.

Drive-ins

AUSTRALIA's first drive-in worthy of the name was opened in the Melbourne suburb of Burwood in February, 1954. Called the Skyline, and accommodating 654 cars, it was built by a company in which Hoyts Theaters holds a substantial interest. It was an instant success, and business has continued at a gratifying level. Result has been an outbreak of "drive-in fever" across Australia, with plans set for each of the mainland capitals, and for one or two key country centers.

Several of the new drive-ins should be in operation early in 1955, despite difficulties associated with licensing authorities and civic ordinances. Hoyts is interested in at least one of the new plans, and other film companies are reportedly affected by the "fever." However, many of the al fresco shows will be built by business interests outside the industry.

Distributors will welcome the drive-ins as an added source of film hire, whereas exhibitors are apprehensive of the effect on established theaters, even miles away.

Production

AFTER a year or two of quiescence, Australian feature film production has gotten into top gear, and is going ahead with perhaps more momentum than ever before. Already this year two local pix have been successfully released. They are the Government's FeraniaColor production, "The Queen in Australia," and Southern International's "King of the Coral Sea" (starring and produced by Chips Rafferty).

In addition, a feature-length documentary, "Back of Beyond" (Shell Company), won first prize in the documentary section of the Venice Festival.

Two more films have been completed and are set for release within a matter of weeks. "Long John Silver" (Treasure Island Productions) was made at Pagewood Studios, Sydney, produced by Joseph Kaufman and stars

Robert Newton. It is in Eastman Color and CinemaScope. "Jedda" was made by local talent and with local capital, was shot in Gevacolor by Charles Chauvel Productions. It is a dramatic story of Australian aborigines.

There is every sign that next year will see even greater studio activity here. Joseph Kaufman has a two-year lease on the Pagewood Studios, and plans to make a series of features there.

Owners of the studios (Associated TV, Ltd.) are building new sound stages so they'll be able to continue their own production program, comprising documentaries and a variety of TV shorts.

Chips Rafferty's Southern International has two more features slated and leading French producer Paul-Edmond Becharme envisages Sydney as the hub of a whole sphere of co-production activity encompassing the South Pacific zone. Becharme visited Sydney recently and will return early in 1955 with at least two stories and half the capital to make the pictures. He will produce in wide-screen (maybe CinemaScope or VistaVision) and in color. Becharme said European producers had exhausted the backgrounds and ideas of their own countries and would turn to the South Pacific for further production.

Taxation

THE paying public has been granted a considerable alleviation of entertainment tax, which, until Oct. 1, 1953, operated uniformly throughout Australia on practically all theater admissions. As from that date, the Federal Government abolished its ticket tax. However, the individual states immediately investigated the possibility of imposing taxes themselves, and three states — Victoria, Tasmania and West Australia — brought down an entertainment levy almost immediately. Even so, the new rates are not excessive and the other three states remain free of this imposition.

Total entertainment tax collected by the Federal Government for the year ended June 30, 1953, was $14,400,000, of which some 66 per cent would have come from picture theaters.

Television

AUSTRALIA has over the years had a healthy and progressive radio-electronics industry, but until this year the necessary Government legislation was lacking to permit introduction of TV. It was considered that TV was not of suffiicent national importance to warrant large-scale expenditures, while such matters as housing and water conservation were wanting attention.

However, the omission has been rectified and the Government's Broadcasting Control Board will soon hear applications for two commercial TV licenses in Sydney and two in Melbourne. Powerful syndicates have been formed to apply for the licenses, and Greater Union Theaters and Hoyts Theaters are members of a Melbourne group. Circuit's apparently believe it's better to get with TV than try to fight it.

In addition to the commercial licenses, the Government's own Australian Broadcasting Commission, which now operates a network of non-profit radio stations, will set up a number of telestations. Estimates vary, but it is probable the first telecasts will be made early in 1956. Initially, Australian TV will be black-and-white.

NEW ZEALAND ATTENDANCE UP

ALTHOUGH the British Dominion of New Zealand already boasted one of the world's highest ratios of movie attendances per unit of population, the box office here took a spectacular leap in the past fiscal year, ended March 31, 1954.

An authoritative estimate places the rise at 4,000,000 admissions, bring the 12-months' tally to 46,000,000. This represents an enormous climb from the 36,353,000 total of 1949-50.

Increased trade over these recent years is the more remarkable since there has been no corresponding jump in the New Zealand population figures, which still rest at almost exactly 2,000,000. Trend has continued into the 1954-55 fiscal period, and trade leaders attribute the upbeat simply to better product from New Zealand's two main sources of supply, Britain and America.

No Limit

There seems no limit to the potential attendances a film can draw in N. Z. Until recently, J. Arthur Rank's "A Queen Is Crowned" held the national box office record with the fantastic achievement of 1,530,000 paid admissions, of a 75 per cent coverage of the entire population. But even this film's performances have been topped in latter months, in the key releases at least.

New Zealand's picture going public is served via 110 seats per thousand of population and one theater for every 4,000 people. There are 531 35 mm commercial theaters with a seating capacity of 221,166. There are in addition 83 16mm shows with a seating capacity of about 11,500.

£3,386,000 Revenue

Gross revenue, including entertainment tax, was £3,386,000 in 1951-52, latest year for which an accurate figure is available. This of course would have increased greatly over the past two years, in view of the mushrooming admission total, plus the fact that there have been some slight admission price rises.

Of the 1951-52 gross, £2,911,000 was absorbed by theater expenditure, of which film hire accounted for the largest single amount —£826,930. Amusement tax represented £205,467. Average admission price in New Zealand is considerably lower than in Australia, although the two markets are in many ways comparable. N. Z. figure is about 22d, calculated by dividing the total number of paid admissions into the total admission receipts (estimated).

Two Groups Dominate

The film industry in N. Z. is dominated by two theater groups. By far the larger of the two is Kerridge-Odeon, which is in partnership with the J. Arthur Rank Organization, and is headed by managing director R. J. Kerridge K-O is known to operate 121 theaters, but the circuit's ramification probably extend to 150. In addition, the K-O outfit encompasses J. Arthur Rank Film Distributors, International Film Distributors, Gaumont-Kalee (theater equipment), Photographic, Wholesalers (small-gauge equipment) and N. Z. Screens Ltd. (screen advertising).

Smaller of the two dominant circuits is Amalgamated Theaters Ltd., operating 50 houses and linked financially with 20th-Fox in America. Company is headed by Michael J. Moodabe, governing director.

The two chains together not only operate some 200 of the nation's 531 theaters, but they have virtually a monopoly on key situations. Their revenue would be far greater than the 200/531 ratio would suggest.

U.K. Pix More Important

Though American pictures still occupy the bulk of New Zealand's playing time, British pix are of increasing importance here. New Zealanders, coming largely of British stock, have strong ties of sentiment with the Old Country, and their tastes in film entertainment, as in other matters, are basically British. It has been estimated that British pictures now account for 45 per cent of total revenue in N. Z., and that the box office potential of each British production is at least 10 per cent higher in N. Z. than in Australia.

There are some few independent exchanges in the Dominion, but the vast majority of business is recorded by eight American majors and two British companies. Most of these are controlled from Australasian headquarters in Sydney. Rank, 20th-Fox and Warners are exceptions.

1954 Changes

In recent months there has been a series of upsets in disposition of product between the two circuits. M-G-M switched from Kerridge to Amalgamated, Columbia then moved over to replace M-G-M, and later United Artists also joined Kerridge. K-O now releases pix from these companies and Universal, Paramount and Rank. Amalgamated has: M-G-M, 20th-Fox, RKO, Warners and London Film.

The world-wide revolution in screen techniques has not passed N. Z. by. Indeed, it is believed that the M-G-M switch to Amalgamated was motivated largely by fact that K-O had spoken out in favor of VistaVision, while Amalgamated offered an outlet for M-G-M's CinemaScope product. Amalgamated has for the past year been showing 20th-Fox Scopers, and has equipped most of its key theaters for the new medium.

Kerridge-Odeon meantime has declared that it is happy with returns from current "flatties" in normal ratio, but is installing wide-screens of VistaVision (1.85:1) ratio, with variable anamorphic lenses and mechanical screen masking. Circuit has declared it will show films in whatever form they are delivered by its suppliers. K-O however maintains its preference for the VV ratio.

Price Controls

Though enjoying an all-time high of box office buoyancy, the trade in New Zealand nevertheless has at least one major problem, that of price control. Increases over the years have not been anyway commensurate with wage and cost of living rises.

Showmanship in New Zealand is virile and efficient, despite the slow tempo of life there, and the industry has just won its fight for display advertisements in N. Z. newspapers. Hitherto, ads have been typeset and restricted as to size, position and typography.

General pattern of programs is to run single-feature bills, with newsreels and shorts, plus a long intermission. Refreshment concessions are an important adjunct to the business.

Native film production is almost non existent, though the Government Film Unit continues to make good-quality documentaries and independents make some commercials and non-theatrical pix. Recent appearance of New Zealand's first locally made feature film, "Broken Barrier," failed to stimulate the production industry to any marked degree. The film had some success, though it dealt with the touchy subject of inter-racial marriage, and had commentary, but no lip-synch.

BOMBAY

By S. S. PANI

Staff Correspondent, THE FILM DAILY

DRASTIC TIGHTENING of censorship, institution of State awards for Indian films, disillusionment that has followed the visit to Russia, and renewed efforts to have curbs placed on the foreign films — these are the chief landmarks in the Indian film world in 1953.

The domestic product has shown no improvement worth mentioning. If anything, rivalry between chief producing centers to consolidate and preserve exclusive "linguistic markets" seems to be more accentuated, while the quality of pictures has shown deterioration all round.

PANI

"If you have a hopeless case, abuse attorney for the other side." This describes the attitude of the "spokesmen" of Indian films towards the foreign product. Like the Bourbons, the Indian producers will learn nothing and forget nothing. It is no surprise he finds himself in a worse predicament at the end of the year than at its commencement.

The Indian film industry has no statistics, for very excellent reasons connected with payment of income tax. Again, associations purporting to function on behalf of the industry are scarcely representative in the true sense of the term.

On a rough estimate between 225 to 250 pictures have been made and released during the year. About the same number remain incomplete and 80 per cent will never be completed.

In South India, the market for Hindi films has contracted, while pictures in local languages are increasing in number. There is a fresh spurt of activity in Mysore making films in Kannada and these have a market in Bombay State and Central India as well. Towards the southern extremity, more and more films are being produced in Malayalam and new studios have sprung up in that area. All these South Indian films are just as bad in quality as the Hindi films made in Bombay, but now linguistic affinities and parochial patriotism outweigh all other considerations; again the Hindi film has no superior virtues. Films in Hindi, made in Madras, have ceased to be cause for concern to Bombay.

In Bombay, not one outstanding picture has been made. The financier has tightened his shackles, the censor is using his scissors in a more businesslike manner and, the star, who could no more aspire to 20 contracts at the same time, now insists on being paid in good silver coin. Others, such as dialogue writers, authors, musicians and technicians, no more willing to be cheated out of their legitimate dues by the producer, are forming themselves into defensive associations to reckon with him.

In Bengal, there is a plea that film studios must be placed under the purview of the Factories Act when producers will have to pay salaries in time. There is also another request, said to be engaging the sympathetic attention of government, that censor certificates should be issued only after producers submit clearance certificates to show that every one associated with the making of a film had been paid to the last cent. Madras and Bombay are expected to follow suit; in the latter centre, three studios have been taken over by workers' co-operatives.

Sharp practices by the Bombay producer in selling distribution rights for the same area still continue unabated; the number of law suits arising on this account is increasing.

During a recent debate in Parliament on censorship, all speakers barring one — and he is an actor nominated to the Upper House — condemned the Indian film in no uncertain terms; as a matter of fact the discussion was ushered in on a non-official resolution condemning "Indian imitation of foreign films." The resolution was carried.

In spite of a pious resolution by IMPPA (Indian Motion Picture Producers' Association, Bombay) placing an embargo on export to Pakistan, at least three Bombay producers have had their products smuggled into that country. The slogan to which every Indian producer subscribes is, "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Charges laid by the Central Board of Censors at the door of the film industry in Bombay, in a note circulated to members of Parliament, are: "Objectionable exploitation of the female form, indecent exposure of certain parts of the human body, vulgarities such as peeping through a keyhole and watching a girl change her clothes, indecency in dress, dialogue, dance and song, glamorous portrayal of vice and crime, derogatory reference to certain communities, scenes of passionate cuddling and intimate physical contact, depiction of gross torture, brutality and violence, and picturization of gruesome scenes."

While the president of the Film Federation fulminated against this charge-sheet and said censors were "terrorizing" the producer, the censors stand more than vindicated — nay, exonerated and justified — by the voluntary pronouncements of Sohrab Modi, producer of "The Tiger and the Flame," whose picture "Mirza Ghalib" had just then been dealt with drastically by the censors, and B. N. Sircar, president of the federation last year. Sircar clinched the issue in favor of the censors saying that he had himself made 125 pictures without the censors interfering once.

Inter alia, unwholesome tendencies in South India, according to the censors are: "wounding the religious susceptibilities of particular communities, formenting class hatred, a marked tendency to preach atheistic doctrines and a general revolt against tradition and established institutions." Rank communal bodies, in cohort with the Reds, are making their presence felt in South India. Under Red inspiration, these communal bodies have become such a great menace that the State Government has had to enact special legislation to control dramas which have been used for propaganda purposes.

Bengal is putting on a brave fight for recovery and the Governor of West Bengal is sympathetic. He has appealed to Bengali artists in Bombay to come back. Bengal has a reputation for making Indian pictures for the Indian people.

With a view to encourage the production of good films, the Government of India this year instituted State awards for the best feature film, the best documentary and the best film for children. Award for the feature went to a rank outsider in Marathi, much to the chagrin and disappointment of the Bombay and Madras stalwarts. That is a well deserved slap in the face. It is felt there is no point in Government patting a Government department on the back by awarding a prize for a documentary as this is a monopoly. There was no children's film found worthy of an award.

The Government is also sponsoring the production of films for children and subsidies have been announced. The commercial producer is not interested in that, as the British expert, Mary Field, has made it abundantly clear there is no money in it. Competent observers are of the opinion that the experiment is destined to fail even if such films are produced; first there is the difficulty of producing one film which would appeal to children all over the country and, dubbing will not do. Second, a mere fraction of children go to school as facilities are very limited. Exhibitors will not screen these pictures on percentage basis and will ask for fixed hire which government will not pay. Very few schools have 16 mm. projectors, assuming that these films will be made in 16 mm. also. And, if children are to be compelled to see these films by paying for them, not only will parents protest as they already pay a visual education fee but the object will defeat its own purpose.

Flirting with Russia

Much store was set by the invitation extended to visit Russia to a Bombay group of film people to attend an "Indian Film Festival" at which five Indian films bought for about Rs. 30,000 ($7,000 approx.) were to be exhibited. Those who went with golden dreams of selling their masterpieces for fabulous prices to a very "friendly" Russia — and then there would be plenty of opportunities to crow over it to the discomfiture of Hollywood. Although it was called a delegation, the government was in no way associated with it. One of the delegates, Raj Kapoor who had known what American hospitality was, made grand use of the occasion to hurl abuse at the U. S. from Moscow and, was sharply reprimanded by the Indian press.

The high hopes appear to have petered out with the Soviet Ministry of Cultural Affairs sitting tight over the roseate proposals made by the Indian producer. So much piqued is the Bombay "film merchant" that he has had his favorite mouthpiece say that Russia will no more get Indian films on the advantageous terms of the first lot. The threat apparently, has not worked.

A Bombay distributor has contracted to exhibit 60 odd films, from Russia and satellite countries, in this country and has made elaborate arrangements in Calcutta, Bombay and Madras. The first few pictures exhibited are innocuous and are mere entertainment. If Russia tries to send in propaganda pictures, the censors will do their job manfully — there is no doubt about it — and then there will be another outcry rising in sharp crescendo.

"Foreign" Films

In view of the fact that very few films come from other countries than the U. S., the campaign that has once again raised its ugly head may be interpreted as one against Hollywood films; as a matter of fact, the term "foreign films" is an euphemism used deliberately to avoid the charge of discrimination against Hollywood exclusively.

On the average between 250 to 300 films come to India from Hollywood and there has been no dimunition. Censoring, however, has become more drastic. The Minister, Dr. Keskar, said recently in Parliament that the rule now is to censor all films, Indian and foreign, with reference to the same factual standards, without distinction or reference to the "climate" in which foreign films are made. There are facts to prove that this method has been brought into force and even the beginning has been disastrous to foreign films.

While, out of 1,028 Indian feature films censored between January 15, 1951 to November 30, 1954, only two have been refused certificates, out of 1,200 foreign films censored, 90 have been refused certificates and, the number of refusals have increased progressively. The censors apparently are not concerned whether what remains over makes a film worth the name. Ceylon, which generally gets her supply of foreign films, from India, has openly said that the mutilation renders films unfit for screening and has asked foreign distributors to send films direct and NOT from India.

In spite of this, Hollywood films have been doing very well, as a matter of fact better than last year, chiefly as the result of CinemaScope. Box office revenue in theaters equipped with CinemaScope register increases from 25 to 50 per cent.

The Indian producer tried to pooh-pooh CinemaScope. In a moment of inspired wisdom, the president of the Film Federation suggested there was no need for such processes in India, while they were indispensable to the U. S. where films were fighting a losing battle with TV. His smug self-complacency ought now to have been shaken, as more and more exhibitors are modernizing their theaters with this equipment; if more have not changed over it is due to lack of finance. Opposed to an ordinary film from Hollywood exhibited on the wide screen, the Indian "masterpiece" has failed to draw. Against an Indian film opposition has been completely routed.

That is why, the Producers Guild of Bombay, a compact and powerful body consisting of the top producers and studios-owners, very recently submitted a memorandum to the Government urging that the import of foreign films must be regulated on a reciprocal basis. The Guild has also prayed that theaters now screening foreign films exclusively must be compelled to set apart a prescribed portion of screening time for Indian films.

In order that the Indian market may become less attractive to Hollywood, there is the further suggestion that a substantial percentage of the earnings of foreign films should be frozen and used for the benefit of the "local industry."

The Guild recently turned down an offer to affiliate with the Film Federation. The Federation charges the Guild with cooperating with the Government. On this issue of curbs on foreign films, they are both agreed. For this reason, it is felt that Government may bestow some thought on these suggestions. There are however legal difficulties in compelling exhibitors as has been proved in the case of compulsory exhibition of "approved" films.

The Minister, Dr. Keskar has made it clear that he would consider introducing a new bill to tighten censoring in order that Constitutional hurdles may be cleared. He has also said that in the matter of legislation with regard to film he would be largely guided by the wishes of the people and there is ground for thinking that the people in this case will be the spokesman of the film industry in India.

The superiority of the Hollywood product has never been in doubt and, if anything, CinemaScope has emphasized it. The Indian producer is panicky after having read in the Indian press of the assessment by Eric Johnston of the potentialities of the Indian market, a revenue of 20 million dollars, dubbing of the Hollywood film in Indian languages and building more theaters. With these done, he knows he would be rubbed out.

It stands to reason that he will leave no stone unturned to achieve his object. 1955 will be a year of great decisions.

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION in 1955 is expected to play an increasingly vital role in furthering the interests of the film industry.

Under the leadership of President Eric A. Johnston, the association has greatly widened the scope of its activities. In the foreign field, this meant a change over of the association's International division into the Motion Picture Export Association in 1954. Expansion and streamlining of foreign activities are expected to help the industry meet its overseas problems.

On the domestic front, the association is placing greater accent on programs designed to bolster the box office and better the industry's public relations; and the year's end intensified efforts were made to establish an industry arbitration system. Increased activities are expected in the field of economic and technical research, as well as in self-regulation and community-exhibitor relations programs of the association. A long-time fighter for freedom of the screen, Johnston is also expected to intensify association activities designed to bring motion pictures under the full protection of the Constitution. Victories in censorship cases before the Supreme Court of the United States and in state courts during the year gave this program new impetus.

Expansion of the association's visual education program is also expected during the year. The association has worked closely with leading educators to develop the maximum usefulness of motion pictures in education. In the theatrical entertainment field, Johnston is studying plans to strengthen the Children's Film Library program, which has had a wide measure of success in assuring the availability of films specifically suitable for children.

PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

SELF-REGULATION of motion picture production evolved gradually from early beginnings in 1922 when the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was founded. Several progressive steps to establish higher standards of distribution culminated in the adoption on March 31, 1930, of the Production Code, which continues as the basic document in the industry's policy of self-regulation.

This Code, a voluntary agreement entered into by the member companies, acknowledges the producers' responsibility to the public and asks in return "a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people."

The Code machinery of self-regulation operates at four points:

1. The original story or play is submitted to the Production Code Administration for suggestion and criticism before the first screen adaptation is written.
2. When the script is completed, it is submitted for a check with Code requirements.
3. In the early stages of production, members of the Production Code Administration staff are often called in to discuss sequences that present problems.
4. After this careful reviewing all along the way, the finished picture is reviewed and, if it meets Code requirements, a certificate of approval is issued.

The Code machinery is available to all producers, foreign or domestic, whether or not they are members of the Association, a service increasingly utilized.

How well the Production Code Administration has performed its functions in maintaining both Code Standards and the integrity and vigor of the screen as a medium of entertainment is evidenced by the steady stream of high quality pictures that continues to flow from the studios.

ADVERTISING CODE ADMINISTRATION

AS WITH all forms of self-regulation in the motion picture industry, the efforts of the member companies of the Association, through the provisions of the Advertising Code (adopted June 10, 1930), are directed toward promoting and maintaining a high standard of advertising throughout the industry. This cooperative effort brings into conformity with the requirements of good taste all press books, newspaper advertising, trailers, outdoor displays, novelties and other forms of publicity and exploitation.

All motion picture producers, whether or not they are members of the Motion Picture Association, who accept the Production Code seal on their product thereby agree to conform also to the Advertising Code.

To insure uniform interpretation of the Code, all advertising material is submitted in advance to the Advertising Code Administration at the Association's office in New York or its branch in Hollywood.

TITLE REGISTRATION BUREAU

IT IS GENERALLY BELIEVED by motion picture executives and theater managers that an appropriate and intriguing title that arouses public curiosity, or a title that has achieved fame and wide popularity as a book or play, has a profound influence on the success or popularity of a motion picture. Numerous examples of distinctive and unusual titles on widely popular pictures support the theory. For this reason more and more attention is being given to titles by the producers and distributors of modern motion pictures.

The difficulty of protecting valuable property rights in motion picture titles in the absence of copyright protection on the title itself and the expense and delays of litigation, to establish usage rights brought about the gradual development of a voluntary method of title registration in a central agency by the members of the Association. The present procedure for the registration of titles was established by the Association in 1936 for its members and such non-member producing and distributing companies as desire to use the service.

In all the years the title registration service has been operating few companies once using the registration service for its titles have ever requested it be discontinued for them. Now 223 motion picture companies use the services of Title Registration Bureau, submitting for registration an average of 4,500 titles a year. Each company using the Bureau receives a daily report of all title registrations.

The registration of motion picture titles to prevent duplication and harmful similarities serves a dual purpose: first, it enables the theater going public to readily identify the motion pictures it wants to see without confusion or misleading similarity between titles; and second, it protects the valuable titles of published books and plays acquired for motion picture production, and original titles with popular appeal, against the use of identical or unfairly similar titles by any producer or distributor that is a party to the title registration voluntary agreement. By such agreement each participating company undertakes to refrain from using such registered title until the prior registration is terminated or otherwise released for use.

Titles that are considered to be salacious, indecent, obscene or otherwise offensive are not accepted for registration. Differences of opinion on similarities and other title controversies are adjusted first by direct negotiation and discussion between the registrants involved, but may be referred to the Association for possible mediation.

If this fails to adjust the dispute it is then referred to arbitration for a final decision. In the past year 611 formal protests were filed with the Bureau against the registration of titles deemed to be too similar to a title already registered. All but 16 of these protests were adjusted by friendly negotiation between the companies and by mutual agreement without resorting to an arbitration of the dispute.

By agreement the producers and distributors who participate in title registration limit the number of original titles which any company may have in registration at one time, so that an unreasonable number of titles will not be reserved indefinitely but not used on a produced picture. Of course as the pictures are produced and released the titles are taken off the "priority registration" and placed on the release index or list of produced motion pictures.

Whenever movies are produced under titles based on a copyrighted work, such titles are automatically placed on a permanently protected list. In addition to these, any studio may ask permanent protection for up to 250 original titles. Beyond these, all titles registered and used for released pictures are protected for a four-year period. During the period of such protection, no other company may use the title unless it obtains clearance from the prior registrant.

Titles of pictures intended for production are granted indefinite protection if affixed to copyrighted material. Otherwise, if in an original title classification, a one-year period of protection is afforded. Each registrant is limited to one hundred original feature titles and 200 original short-subject titles at any one time. If an original title is not used within the year and the registrant cannot show evidence of intention to produce the subject within the succeeding six months, the title becomes available to any other company which has expressed interest in the identical title.

The indexes of titles of motion pictures produced and released by member companies keeps growing every year. In 1937 there were 36,000 titles of feature pictures and short subjects registered on the release index, today there are over 50,000 titles registered, and the index file used to call attention to similarities with titles previously registered, based upon the use of key words, now has over 150,000 cards in it.

For those companies who do not register titles with the Bureau, titles are considered and approved for suitability in connection with the Code of Production Standards. Last year 90 titles were thus approved and since 1937 over 4,930 such titles have been considered by the Bureau for use on pictures that have received Code approval.

MOTION PICTURE EXPORT ASSOCIATION

AMERICAN motion pictures constitute one of this country's leading export commodities. They are widely exhibited in every country of the world with the exception of the Soviet Union and its satellite countries.

Monetary returns from motion pictures in foreign markets account for a substantial portion of the American film industry's total revenue. Few other American industries rely on foreign markets to such an extent.

In addition to their commercial importance, American films—more than any other medium of mass communication—are recognized as a powerful influence in fostering democratic attitudes and in conveying to peoples abroad an understanding of American life, customs and institutions. While American movies are popular primarily because of their superior entertainment values, the social and ideological by-products which they carry have had a tremendous impact on film-goers of every nation in which American films are exhibited.

The heavy reliance of the American film industry on revenues from abroad and the increasingly vital role its product is playing as ambassadors of democracy have invested the Motion Picture Export Association with important responsibilities.

Constant objective of the Division's efforts is to hold down to a minimum, through negotiation, the restraints officially imposed by many foreign governments on the free distribution of American films, and to eliminate these curbs wherever possible. Typical of the barriers placed in the path of American films abroad are limitations on film imports, screen quotas, excessive import duties, dubbing taxes, and substantial levies on theaters, admissions and earnings.

Gains in the box office volume of American films and monetary returns from overseas markets paralleled the recovery of Europe and Asia from the economic and political disruptions of the post-war years.

By the end of 1951, a resurgence in the popularity of American films abroad increased aggregate business volume enough to neutralize the serious monetary losses that ensued from the spate of currency devaluations which jolted the American film companies in 1949-50. Overseas business and remittances have increased steadily since then.

Even though there has been little abatement in the obstacles that impede American film operations overseas, business volume and remittances from foreign markets showed further gains in 1954, topping even the high figures of the preceding year. Revenues from abroad last year are estimated to have reached a record total during the 12-month period.

Through MPEA efforts and negotiations, following are some of the noteworthy developments overseas in 1954.

Large amounts of member company film earnings, accumulated in Brazil since 1951, continued to be unfrozen and transferred. Current earnings also continued to be remitted on favorable terms.

A new agreement was negotiated in Paris by Eric A. Johnston covering film imports to France for 1954 and 1955.

A two-year pact with Italy, also negotiated by Mr. Johnston, authorized American film companies to remit a portion of their earnings at the official rate of exchange and provided for remittance of additional balances through compensation deals.

A substantial portion of 1953 blocked funds were transferred from Indonesia following extensive negotiations with officials of that government.

The agreement with Norway was renewed on favorable terms for an indefinite period. An understanding also was reached with Germany for another year and the agreement with the Netherlands was renewed.

From Argentina in 1953 came the first remittance of blocked member company earnings in many years. Additional amounts were transferred in 1954. The sums were relatively small compared with the amount still frozen, but it spurred MPEA hope for a return to more normal trading conditions with that country.

In the Fall of 1954 the film agreement with the British Government was renewed with slightly improved terms, thus continuing the excellent British relationships of the industry.

New understandings also were reached with Spain and Pakistan.

The distribution functions and responsibilities of the original MPEA which was created in 1945 to operate on an interim basis in eleven foreign countries have now largely been discharged. Except in one country, Yugoslavia, member companies have resumed individual operation and the unified distribution set-ups under MPEA have either been liquidated or are now in the process of being liquidated.

MPEA outposts abroad are located in London, Paris, Frankfurt, Stockholm, Rome, Rio de Janeiro and Tokyo. In addition, new representatives were designated in India and Indonesia.

MPEA's field representatives serve as liaison with foreign film distributors and with member company distributors and report to MPEA headquarters on all matters relating to motion picture interests in their respective areas. Presence of these men in the field enables the MPEA to take prompt action on matters requiring remedial attention. Not infrequently, when adverse legislation is anticipated, speedy appeal and negotiation by MPEA have been successful in delaying and discouraging enactment.

Film Boards of Trade composed of local representatives of American motion picture distributors are maintained in 29 foreign countries. They operate under the general guidance of the Association and their activities, reported regularly and in detail, are shared with member companies.

The Advisory Unit for Foreign Films, created by Johnston in 1950 as an integral part of MPEA, continued its program of assistance to foreign film producers who seek its services.

The unit was set up for the purpose of making available to foreign producers or their representatives the information, knowledge and merchandising experience needed to help them market their product in the United States. Its basic objective is to encourage the importation of more good foreign films in this country, thereby helping to stimulate the flow of dollars to film-producing countries abroad.

The Advisory Unit is essentially consultative in character. Statitsics on the American film market compiled specially by the Unit for foreign film producers are readily available. The Unit gives information on the clearance of films through U.S. customs; on standard distribution and exhibition practices; the operation of the Production Code; state and local censorship regulations, and other items—all calculated to smooth the path of the overseas producer who has a film to sell here.

COMMUNITY RELATIONS DEPARTMENT

THE Community Relations Department provides information and assistance to civic, cultural and educational community leaders who are interested in directing the attention of the public to worthwhile current motion pictures presented in theatres. The department also assists theatre managers to adjust their entertainment programs to the needs of the entire family and the interests of important groups in their communities. Among the activities to which the department gives its cooperation, or sponsors, are the following:

Preview Services

The department, through the cooperation of motion picture distributors, provides previewing facilities affording the following national groups opportunity for early screenings of pictures:

American Association of University Women
American Jewish Committee
American Library Association
Children's Film Library Committee
National Society Daughters of the American Revolution
National Federation of Music Clubs
General Federation of Womens Clubs
Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.
National Council of Women of the U. S.
Protestant Motion Picture Council
United Church Women
National Congress of Parents and Teachers
Schools Motion Picture Committee

Each of these national organizations designates a national motion picture chairman who in turn appoints a preview chairman and an editorial chairman. The preview committees vary in size, having from ten to fifty reviewers.

Each national organization distributes its own preview reports directly to its members, either through mimeographed or printed bulletins or in their national house organs or magazines.

The preview chairmen also make their reports available to the Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation where they are compiled in a four-page printed bulletin titled "Unbiased Opinions." "Unbiased Opinions" are mailed largely to exhibitors but in addition reach a large number of special contacts interested in the points of view of the different national organizations.

Joint Estimates of Current Entertainment Films

For the larger national distribution, concerned rather with a joint estimate of motion pictures than with the point of view of the individual organization, the preview chairmen, sitting as an editorial board, compile reviews published as the JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT ENTERTAINMENT FILMS. This semi-monthly report is popularly known as the "Green Sheet." JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT ENTERTAINMENT FILMS provides three basic appraisals.

Audience suitability classifications:

F—Family.
YP—Young People.
A—Adults.
MYP—Mature Young People.

In addition, the "Green Sheet" provides an appraisal of each picture's content as to entertainment value, moral acceptability, and educational merit.

As the audience classifications are not to be interpreted as merit classifications, the reviews of the pictures undertake to express the editorial board's judgment. Photoplays held to have outstanding merit are awarded the distinction of a star. Where the opinions of the editorial chairmen are not in agreement, the estimate of the majority is reflected in the appraisal, and the exceptions, either in audience classification or general ratings, are noted.

The Motion Picture Association prints and distributes JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT ENTERTAINMENT FILMS for the national groups doing the previewing.

Subscriptions to JOINT ESTIMATES are available to individuals identified with some organized group in their community and to interested exhibitors. Requests to obtain the "Green Sheet" should be addressed to the Joint Estimates of Current Entertainment Films, 28 West 44th Street, New York 36, N. Y. Upon receipt of such request, a questionnaire will be mailed to the applicant asking what type of materials is desired, and what affiliations with public activities each applicant has in his or her community. Upon receipt of the questionnaire, the applicant will be placed on the mailing list to receive not only the JOINT ESTIMATES but other material related to specialized phases of motion picture art or industry applicable to the indicated interest or activity of the recipient.

Children's Film Library

In the brochure—available on request—explaining the Children's Film Library, Eric Johnston placed this introduction:

"The Children's Film Library has but one aim and purpose: to keep constantly available for Saturday showings the finest possible films for the children of America.

"Ageless stories by Mark Twain, Robert Louis Stevenson, Lewis Carroll, James Fenimore Cooper and Booth Tarkington take their place in the Library beside modern tales of stirring historical happenings—life in foreign lands—diverting situations that lead to laughter.

"In undertaking this project, the motion picture industry is proud to have a part in preserving for younger audiences the photoplays which the children love and have made their own.

"If parents will encourage the screening of these pictures at their neighborhood theatres on Saturday shows, their children, I believe, will be enriched in literature, advanture, fantasy and fun. We present the CHILDREN'S FILM LIBRARY with that in mind."

In the Children's Film Library, there are now thirty-five pictures; additional photoplays in current release are available to exhibitors for children's programs; the key to these pictures are ratings which appear in the semi-monthly JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT ENTERTAINMENT FILMS. Two ratings are made: CPR (Recommended for children's programs) and CPA (Acceptable for Children's Programs).

All the films in the Children's Film Library are previewed by groups of children as well as by the National Children's Film Library Committee; this dual appraisal and selection guarantees both the moral and age classification suitability and the entertainment acceptability of these pictures for special children's programs.

Organizations participating in the National Children's Film Library are:

Protestant Motion Picture Council.
United Council of Church Women.
American Library Association.
National Congress of Parents and Teachers
National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.
Parents' Magazine.
National Federation of Music Clubs.
Schools Motion Picture Committee.
American Association of University Women.
General Federation of Women's Clubs.
International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.
Girl Scouts of America.
National Council of Women of the U. S.

For advice and guidance in the initiation of special children's programs or cooperation from exhibitors, address Marjorie Granger Dawson, director, National Children's Film Library, 28 West 44th Street, New York 18, N. Y.

In the transition from the use of inflammable film to non-inflammable film, a number of the pictures in the Children's Film Library were withdrawn from the Library. For information on pictures now available, inquiry should be made to the director.

Photoplay Appreciation

IT is estimated that not less than 6,000,000 students in elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities receive more or less detailed guidance from their teachers in the appreciative study of appropriate motion picture feature and short subjects currently offered in the theaters. This technique is rapidly spreading, especially in high schools and junior high schools. These progressive teachers use the local motion picture theater for illustrative material just as they use the public library for collateral reading. Also, they have found it practical to mould the taste of their pupils toward the development of discriminating habits of choice in the selection of motion picture entertainment. In these activities teachers use study guides, a number of which are published during each school year, classroom bulletins mailed by the Community Relations Department, selected still pictures chosen with special reference to their educational value and research photograph exhibits which are regularly displayed in about 6,500 public libraries and school libraries. Interested teachers are usually able to obtain this material through local exhibitors who secure it from the distributors of the pictures; where this is not possible, teachers may contact Motion Picture Association Inc., 28 W. 44th St., New York 36, N. Y., direct.

Exhibits Available to Schools and Libraries

DISPLAYS of various types, research exhibits, and brochures featuring the historical background, literary antecedents and technical data concerning production are available from the Department of Community Relations without cost. The research exhibits —approximately 20″x30″ and including from three to 12 posters—present source materials utilized in designing costumes, sets, properties, story sources and other collaterals used in the process of translating fiction, biography, history, etc., to motion pictures. The brochures covering much the same field are usable for intimate classroom study as well as display.

The Community Relations Department, in cooperation with educational groups and librarians, selects the pictures to receive this treatment. The cultural, social and educational as well as entertainment values of the pictures are the determining factors. The interest in and desire for mutual collaboration on the part of the producer-members of the Association makes this service possible.

Exhibitors, where it is known that these materials are not locally used, should feel no hesitancy in approaching school administrators or librarians concerning their value. They are now regularly in use by more than 6,000 high schools and 4,000 libraries. While many schools and libraries have limitations and restrictions inherent in the public character of their institutions, once they have realized that these display materials have been designed with a knowledge of their problems, welcome them. Only mutual respect can grow from the realization that many current photoplays have great educational value and that filming of the classics greatly extends the public's reading of them. These materials enhance the value of both and attract the public to those photoplays which, because they contribute constructive ideas and ideals as well as entertain, should be universally seen.

Speakers Bureau

The Community Relations Department does not maintain a formal Speakers Bureau but is prepared to cooperate wherever possible in providing speakers for programs concerned with the moral, social or entertainment value of motion pictures. Requests for speakers should be made as far in advance as possible to the Community Relations Department, Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., 28 West 44th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

The MPAA Library

The MPAA Library was established nine years ago, to serve as repository and reference for information on matters pertaining to film industry activities.

The informational services of the Library are available not only to MPAA staff members and member companies, but as well to non-members, exhibitors, educational institutions, civic groups, etc. The MPAA librarian each year answers by mail and phone hundreds of individual requests for information from industry as well as non-industry sources.

Compactly set up along institutional lines, the Library today has on its shelves some 1,600 texts on practically every phase and aspect of the film business. Supplementing these are thousands of pamphlets and clippings which have been carefully catalogued and cross-referenced. In addition, the Library keeps a running file of nearly every periodical in the film field and maintains bound volumes of the more important motion picture trade publications.

Another important service of the Library is to keep industry executives abreast of current comment on the motion picture business through the preparation of resumes and digests of significant new texts and published materials.

From its vast store of information the Library supplies, on request, basic materials for speeches and articles on motion picture topics to people within and without the industry. Scores of such requests during the past year have come from teachers and students.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

THE EDUCATIONAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT, established in 1946, functions as the liaison between the motion picture industry and educational agencies and organizations.

This is a two-way program, through which

1. The industry makes contacts with educational leaders for cooperation in the exploitation of feature films and shorts which have educational application, and
2. Extends to educational agencies such services of the industry as will contribute to educational objectives.

Through this Department, the industry is able to render a variety of services to education. These services greatly expand the use of the motion picture in schools and colleges, and give to the motion picture an increasing function within the educational world.

This program of educational services is based largely on the program of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc., the non-profit distribution affiliate of the industry, organized in 1938 to make short subjects available to schools. These short subjects, not available from other sources, were selected by groups of subject matter specialists, and are licensed on a long-term basis to educational film libraries maintained by state, county and city school systems.

The program is carried on without compensation to the producing companies and without profit to any education institution responsible for implementing this service. This program implements the statement, "developing the educatioal, as well as the entertainment values and general usefulness of the motion picture," which was included in the purposes for which the Motion Picture Association was formed in 1922.

Under this program, nearly 500 non-current theatrical short subjects were made available in 1939. These were selected from about 15,000 short subjects, then in the vaults of the member companies, for use in educational institutions in strictly classroom work.

The selections were made under the supervision of the Advisory Committee on the Use of Motion Pictures in Education.

For the purpose of handling the physical distribution of the films, the educators who were members of this Advisory Committee formed themselves into a non-profit corporation known as Teaching Film Custodians, Inc.

In 1943 the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America authorized Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. to excerpt non-current feature pictures in the interests of making classroom verions for study in classes of English Literature, social science and other curriculum areas. The excerpted versions of feature photoplays are distributed for classroom use under the same licensing terms which govern the distribution of short subjects.

Under the terms and conditions of the contracts with the producing companies, the trustees of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. are permitted to license non-current short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures to schools for limited periods with stated limitations as follows:

> "Prints will be furnished only to bonafide educational institutions and agencies; the exhibitions shall be before classroom or kindred groups composed only of bonafide students or enrolled members of such educational institutions or agencies, and such exhibitions shall be an integral factor of class or group study and discussion.
> "Admission fees, directly or indirectly, shall never be charged or permitted to be paid for admission at the door or otherwise in advance or afterwards, for the right to attend either single exhibitions or a series of such exhibitions."

Under the contract, these classroom pictures must be projected without change or alteration. The unauthorized copying of these films is a violation of the United States copyright law. Any unauthorized exhibition of these pictures would also be a violation of the copyright law.

The advisory committee has prepared a Handbook of Films for Classroom Use, listing and describing the short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures which, under this plan, are made available for educational purposes.

The Advisory Committee wishes to emphasize the experimental nature of this work and invites the cooperation of all teachers who use these films. It is hoped that records of the responses of pupils will be kept and that copies will be sent to the office of the Managing Trustee. These reports will be used as guides to the selection of additional pictures which are not now available. Schools of education and other research agencies are invited to send in the results of any investigations that they may make on the educational value of these pictures.

All funds over and above actual handling and distribution costs which accrue from rental fees for Teaching Film Custodians pictures are devoted to the further development of audio-visual education. Among the experimental and research projects to which Teaching Film Custodians has contributed are the following: The Motion Picture Research Project, Yale University; the Commission on Motion Pictures, American Council on Education; The Division of Audio Visual Education, National Education Association; and the Research Project in Film Evaluation in cooperation with the Adult Education Association, and regional audio-visual conferences in New York City; University of Syracuse; Atlanta, Ga.; University of Kansas; Los Angeles, Calif. (2) ; Sacramento, Calif.; University of Oklahoma; Hood River, Oregon; Indiana University (2); University of New Hampshire (2) ; University of Florida; Virginia State College at the request of the Conference of Presidents of Negro Land Grant Colleges; and the State University of Iowa. In conjunction with the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Teaching Film Custodians has been co-sponsor of the Curriculum Enrichment Program in Rural High Schools, State Department of Education, Nebraska, and The Evaluation of Teacher Training Activities in Audio-Visual Education, State College of Washington. The Nebraska Program, based on a 4-year comprehensive study, is described in the book, "Enriching the Curriculum Through Motion Pictures," by Dr. W. C. Meierhenry.

The authorization by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association to excerpt non-current feature pictures has resulted in the expansion of the educational services program in the preparation of films to meet specific educational objectives. National organizations of teachers in specialized subject-matter areas seek the cooperation of the Educational Services Department, and appoint collaborating committees to assist in preparing useful materials excerpted from feature picture footage.

In 1946, the National Council for the Social Studies appointed the following committee:

Dr. William H. Hartley, Chairman, Associate Editor for Social Education; Dr. W. Kenneth Fulkerson, Director of Social Studies, Rochester City Schools; Dr. Frederick H. Stutz, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Dr. Lewis Paul Todd, Editor, "Social Education," Washington, D. C.; and Dr. Richard E. Thursfield, Chairman of the Department of Education, University of Rochester.

This committee, working closely with the staff of Teaching Film Custodians, and with the Educational Services Department of the Motion Picture Association, has prepared subjects for use in world history classes, a series of subjects for use in classes on the problems on democracy and subjects on United States history.

The costs of this excerpting program are paid by Teaching Film Custodians, and the films when completed and approved are distributed by Teaching Film Custodians.

Teaching Film Custodians also sponsors and collaborates with audio-visual committees representing national associations of educators in preparing excerpted versions of feature pictures for classroom use. Among the organizations participating in this program are the Music Educators National Conference, the National Council for the Social Studies, the National Council of Teachers of English, National Science Teachers Association, American Vocational Association, American Home Economics Associations, Department of Home Economics of the N. E. A., and American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

A committee of the National Council of Teachers of English is now in the process of developing a program to expand the series of excerpted films in the field of English literature. A 17-minute motion picture, "Understanding Movies," has been completed for use in English, speech, dramatics and motion picture appreciation.

Other subject matter area interests are in the process of negotiation with the Educational Services Department for participation in the excerpting program.

This program has made the motion picture industry a very useful ally to education, and has developed common interests between the industry and educational leaders which results in a clearer understanding of the problems of both groups.

The series of informational and vocational films on the motion picture industry is distributed by Teaching Film Custodians, as produced by the member companies of MPAA: Let's Go to the Movie (RKO); The Art Director (20CF); The Soundman (COL); This Theater and You (WB); History Brought to Life (PARA); Screen Actors (MGM); Movies are Adventure (U-I); The Costume Designer (RKO); The Screen Writer (20CF); Moments in Music (MGM); The Cinematographer (PARA); The Screen Director (WB).

The Educational Services Department is active also in cooperating with various national and international groups in developing the educational usefulness of motion pictures and particularly those which are produced by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America. These cooperative agencies include many cooperative projects with Government agencies, with professional organizations in the visual education field throughout the United States, and with such international organizations as UNESCO, the American Friends Service Committee, and the Departments of Education of various foreign countries.

Since its inception, the services of the board members of Teaching Film Custodians and each of the cooperating committees have been rendered on a volunteer basis.

The negatives from which the prints are made have been made available by the members of the Motion Picture Association without compensation.

Sets of stills have been assembled, suitably selected for school and library display, from over 100 photoplays which are based on standard works of literature and other similarly important productions. These stills are provided at $1.00 per set on request of librarians and teachers of photoplay appreciation classes. A list of pictures on which sets of stills are available may be had on request to the Educational Services Department, MPAA.

TECHNICAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT

THIS department of the Association was organized primarily for maintaining adequate fire and personnel safety in domestic film exchange operation. In recent years, its functions have been steadily expanding. They now include the supervision of logistical problems that occur in the distribution of films to the nation's theaters and providing technical services that pertain to the distribution, servicing, handling and storage of films, particularly of original negative material and film subjects archival in character.

The Association's safety program, developed along self-regulatory lines, has served ably to minimize losses by fire in domestic film distribution facilities. Evidence of the close adherence to the program by the Association's members is the steadily decreasing annual fire loss record, which now totals less than $180.00 per annum for the past 27 years.

In large measure, the striking success of this program is attributable to the thoroughness of the department's field work. This phase of its activities has as its goal the instilling of fire prevention consciousness among film exchange personnel, perfection in maintenance and housekeeping standards and the surveillance of regularly scheduled exchange inspections. Integrated with the field service is the continuing program of employee education in film methods required by new film basis, and practices developed toward absolute safety.

Other functions of the department include:

1. Maintaining close liaison with the national and international bodies interested in reducing fire waste. These groups consist of the National Fire Protection Association, Fire Protection Association of England, National Board of Fire Underwriters, National Fire Waste Council, National Safety Council, Bureau of Explosives, the National Association of Fire Chiefs and the various Federal departments similarly interested.

2. Providing technical assistance and encouragement toward the erection and maintenance of adequate facilities for the distribution and storage of motion picture films.

3. Extending cooperation to film groups outside of the United States for the purpose of acquainting them with the latest methods perfected for film servicing and handling efficiency and sharing the most recent thoughts for the protection of films held in storage.

Under the self-regulatory system, each of the nation's exchanges are inspected on a strictly adhered to monthly basis by a rotating group of area branch managers in each distribution center. These men are appointed for a period of six months service and are assisted in this work by the Conservation Department's director, who travels regularly to all of the various domestic exchange areas. During 1954, in excess of 4,560 exchange inspections were made of distribution facilities in this country.

Another phase of the protective activities of the Conservation Department is its continued survey of all non-theatrical institutions to obtain information on:

(a) Type of equipment used for the exhibition of motion pictures.
(b) Type and construction of projection booths.
(c) Experience and qualifications of projectionists.
(d) Whether or not the institution has the approval of a recognized public or state fire official.

Purpose of these investigations is to assure motion picture distributors that the service of films to these places of exhibition will be in conformity with local law and in accord with the industry's desire for maximum audience safety at all times.

CODE OF PRODUCTION STANDARDS

As Enforced by the Motion Picture Association

MOTION picture producers recognize the high trust and confidence which have been placed in them by the people of the world and which have made motion pictures a universal form of entertainment.

They recognize their responsibility to the public because of this trust and because entertainment and art are important influences in the life of a nation.

Hence, though regarding motion pictures primarily as entertainment without any explicit purpose of teaching or propaganda, they know that the motion picture within its own field of entertainment may be directly responsible for spiritual or moral progress, for higher types of social life, and for much correct thinking.

During the rapid transition from silent to talking pictures they realized the necessity and the opportunity of subscribing to a Code to govern the production of talking pictures and of reacknowledging this responsibility.

On their part, they ask from the public and from public leaders a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people.

General Principles

1. No picture shall be produced which will lower the moral standards of those who see it. Hence the sympathy of the audience shall never be thrown to the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil or sin.

2. Correct standards of life, subject only to the requirements of drama and entertainment, shall be presented.

3. Law, natural or human, shall not be ridiculed, nor shall sympathy be created for its violation.

Particular Applications

I. Crimes Against the Law

These shall never be presented in such a way as to throw sympathy with the crime as against law and justice or to inspire others with a desire for imitation.

1. Murder.
   a. The technique of murder must be presented in a way that will not inspire imitation.
   b. Brutal killings are not to be presented in detail.

   c. Revenge in modern times shall not be justified.
2. Methods of Crime should not be explicitly presented.
   a. Theft, robbery, safe-cracking, and dynamiting of trains, mines, buildings, etc., should not be detailed in method.
   b. Arson must be subject to the same safeguards.
   c. The use of firearms should be restricted to essentials.
3. Neither the illegal drug traffic, nor drug addiction, must ever be presented.

II. Sex

The sanctity of the institution of marriage and the home shall be upheld. Pictures shall not infer that low forms of sex relationship are the accepted or common thing.

1. Adultery and illicit sex, sometimes necessary plot material, must not be explicitly treated, or justified, or presented attractively.
2. Scenes of Passion.
   a. These should not be introduced except when they are definitely essential to the plot.
   b. Excessive and lustful kissing, lustful embraces, suggestive postures and gestures, are not to be shown.

Special Regulations on Crime in Motion Pictures

Resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., hereby ratifies, approves and confirms the interpretations of The Production Code, the practices thereunder, and the resolutions indicating and confirming such interpretations heretofore adopted by the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., all effectuating regulations relative to the treatment of crime in motion pictures as follows:

1. Details of crime must never be shown and care should be exercised at all times in discussing such details.

2. Action suggestive of wholesale slaughter of human beings, either by criminals, in conflict with police, or as between warring factions of criminals, or in public disorder of any kind, will not be allowed.

3. There must be no suggestion, at any time, of excessive brutality.

4. Because of the increase in the number of films in which murder is frequently committed, action showing the taking of human life, even in the mystery stories, is to be cut to a minimum. These frequent presentations of murder tend to lessen regard for the sacredness of life.

5. Suicide, as a solution of problems occurring in the development of screen drama, is to be discouraged as morally questionable and as bad theater—unless absolutely necessary for the development of the plot. It should never be justified or glorified or used to defeat the due process of law.

6. There must be no display, at any time, of machine guns, sub-machine guns, or other weapons generally classified as illegal weapons in the hands of gangsters, or other criminals, and there are to be no off-stage sounds of the repercussion of these guns.

7. There must be no new, unique or trick methods shown for concealing guns.

8. The flaunting of weapons by gangsters, or other criminals, will not be allowed.

9. All discussions and dialogue on the part of gangsters, regarding guns should be cut to the minimum.

10. There must be no scenes, at any time, showing law-enforcing officers dying at the hands of criminals unless such scenes are absolutely necessary to the development of the plot. This includes private detectives and guards for banks, motor trucks, etc.

11. With special reference to the crime of kidnapping—or illegal abduction—such stories are acceptable under the Code only when the kidnapping or abduction is: (a) not the main theme of the story; (b) the person kidnapped is not a child; (c) there are no details of the crime of kidnapping; (d) no profit accrues to the abductors or kidnappers; and (e) where the kidnappers are punished.

It is understood and agreed that the word kidnapping as used in paragraph (11) of these Regulations is intended to mean abduction, or illegal detention, in modern times, by criminals for ransom.

12. Pictures dealing with criminal activities in which minors participate, or to which minors are related, shall not be approved if they incite demoralizing imitation on the part of youth.

13. No picture shall be approved dealing with the life of a notorious criminal of current or recent times which uses the name, nickname, or alias of such notorious criminal in the film, nor shall a picture be approved if based upon the life of such a notorious criminal unless the character shown in the film be punished for crimes shown in the film as committed by him.

Special Resolution on Costumes

RESOLVED that the provisions of Paragraphs 1, 3 and 4 of Sub-Division VI, of the Production Code, in their application to costumes, nudity, indecent or undue exposure, and dancing costumes, shall not be interpreted to exclude authentically photographed scenes photographed in a foreign land of natives of such foreign land showing native life if such scenes are a necessary and integral part of a modern picture depicting exclusively such land and native life, provided that no such scenes shall be intrinsically objectionable nor made a part of any motion picture produced in any studio, and provided further that no emphasis shall be made in any scenes of the customs or garb of such natives or in the exploitation thereof.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS:

RESOLVED, by the Board of Directors of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., that

(1) Hereafter, in the production of motion pictures there shall be no use by the members of the Association of the contrivance or apparatus in connection with animals which is known as the "running W," nor shall any picture submitted to the Production Code Administration be approved if reasonable grounds exist for believing that use of any similar device by the producer of such picture resulted in apparent cruelty to animals; and

(2) Hereafter, in the production of motion pictures by the members of the Association, such members shall, as to any picture involving the use of animals, invite on the lot during such shooting and consult with the authorized representative of the American Humane Association; and

(3) Steps shall be taken immediately by the members of the Association and by the Production Code Administration to require compliance with these resolutions, which shall bear the same relationship to the sections of the Production Code quoted herein as the Association's special regulations re: Crime in Motion Pictures bear to the sections of the Production Code dealing therewith; and it is

FURTHER RESOLVED, that the resolutions of February 19, 1925 and all other resolutions of this Board establishing its policy to prevent all cruelty to animals in the production of motion pictures and reflecting its determination to prevent any such cruelty, be and the same hereby in all respects reaffirmed.

1. Theatrical motion pictures, that is, pictures intended for the theater as distinct from pictures intended for churches, schools, lecture halls, educational movements, social reform movements, etc., are primarily to be regarded as ENTERTAINMENT.

Mankind has always recognized the importance of entertainment and its value in rebuilding the bodies and souls of human beings.

But it has always recognized that entertainment can be of a character either HELPFUL or HARMFUL to the human race, and in consequence has clearly distinguished between:

a. Entertainment which tends to improve the race, or at least to re-create and rebuild human beings exhausted with the realities of life; and
b. Entertainment which tends to degrade human beings, or to lower their standards of life and living.

Hence the MORAL IMPORTANCE of entertainment is something which has been universally recognized. It enters intimately into the lives of men and women and affects them closely; it occupies their minds and affections during leisure hours; and ultimately touches the whole of their lives. A man may be judged by his standard of entertainment as easily as by the standard of his work.

So correct entertainment raises the whole standard of a nation.

Wrong entertainment lowers the whole living conditions and moral ideas of a race.

Note, for example, the healthy reactions to healthful sports, like baseball, golf; the unhealthy reactions to sports like cockfighting, bull-fighting, bear baiting, etc.

Note, too, the effect of ancient nations of gladiatorial combats, the obscene plays of Roman times, etc.

2. Motion pictures are very important as ART.

Though a new art, possibly a combination art, it has the same object as the other arts, the presentation of human thought, emotion, and experience, in terms of an appeal to the soul through the senses.

Here, as in entertainment: Art enters intimately into the lives of human beings. Art can be morally good, lifting men to higher levels. This has been done through good music, great painting, authentic fiction, poetry, drama.

Art can be morally evil in its effects. This is the case clearly enough with unclean art, indecent books, suggestive drama. The effect on the lives of men and women is obvious.

Note: It has often been argued that art in itself is unmoral, neither good nor bad. This is perhaps true of the THING which is music, painting, poetry, etc. But the thing is the PRODUCT of some person's mind and the intention of that mind was either good or bad morally when it produced the thing. Besides the thing it has its EFFECT upon those who come into contact with it. In both these ways, that is, as a product of a mind and as the cause of definite effects, it has a deep moral significance and an unmistakable moral quality.

Hence: The motion pictures, which are the most popular of modern arts for the masses, have their moral quality from the intention of the minds which produce them and from their effects on the moral lives and reactions of their audiences. This gives them a most important morality.

1. They reproduce the morality of the men who use the pictures as a medium for the expression of their ideas and ideals.
2. They affect the moral standards of those who, through the screen, take in these ideas and ideals.

In the case of the motion pictures, this effect may be particularly emphasized because no art has so quick and so widespread an appeal to the masses. It has become in an incredibly short period the art of the multitudes.

3. The motion picture, because of its importance as entertainment and because of the trust placed in it by the peoples of the world, has special MORAL OBLIGATIONS:

A. Most arts appeal to the mature. This art appeals at once to every class, mature, immature, developed, undeveloped, law abiding, criminal. Music has its grades for different classes; so has literature and drama. This art of the motion picture, combining as it does the two fundamental appeals of looking at a picture and listening to a story at once reaches every class of society.

B. By reason of the mobility of a film and the ease of picture distribution, and because of the possibility of duplicating positives in large quantities, this art reaches places unpenetrated by other forms of art.

C. Because of these two facts, it is difficult to produce films intended for only certain classes of people. The exhibitor's theaters are built for the masses, for the cultivated and the rude, the mature and the immature, the self-respecting and the criminal. Films, unlike books and music, can with difficulty be confined to certain selected groups.

D. The latitude given to film material cannot, in consequence, be as wide as the latitude given to book material. In addition:

a. A book describes; a film vividly presents. One presents on a cold page; the other by apparently living people.

b. A book reaches the mind through words merely; a film reaches the eyes and ears through the reproduction of actual events.

c. The reaction of a reader to a book depends largely on the keenness of the reader's imagination; the reaction to a film depends on the vividness of presentation.

Hence many things which might be described or suggested in a book could not possibly be presented in a film.

E. This is also true when comparing the film with the newspaper.

a. Newspapers present by description, films by actual presentation.

b. Newspapers are after the fact and present things as having taken place; the film gives the events in the process of enactment and with the apparent reality of life.

F. Everything possible in a play is not possible in a film.

a. Because of the larger audience of the film, and its consequential mixed character. Psychologically, the larger the audience, the lower the moral mass resistance to suggestion.

b. Because through light, enlargement of character, presentation, scenic emphasis, etc., the screen story is brought closer to the audience than the play.

c. The enthusiasm for and interest in the film actors and actresses, developed beyond anything of the sort in history, makes the audience largely sympathetic toward the characters they portray and the stories in which they figure. Hence the audience is more ready to confuse actor and actress and the characters they portray, and it is most receptive of the emotions and ideals presented by their favorite stars.

G. Small communities, remote from sophistication and from the hardening process which often takes place in the ethical and moral standards of groups in larger cities, are easily and readily reached by any sort of film.

H. The grandeur of mass settings, large action, spectacular features, etc., affects and arouses more intensely the emotional side of the audience.

In general, the mobility, popularity, accessibility, emotional appeal, vividness, straightforward presentation of fact in the film make for more intimate contact with a larger audience and for greater emotional appeal.

Hence the larger moral responsibilities of the motion pictures.

1. No picture shall be produced which will lower the moral standards of those who see it. Hence the sympathy of the audience should never be thrown to the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil or sin.

This is done:

(1) When evil is made to appear attractive or alluring, and good is made to appear unattractive.

(2) When the sympathy of the audience is thrown on the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil, sin. The same thing is true of a film that would throw sympathy against goodness, honor, innocence, purity or honesty.

NOTE: Sympathy with a person who sins is not the same as sympathy with the sin or crime of which he is guilty. We may feel sorry for the plight of the murderer or even understand the circumstances which led him to his crime. We may not feel sympathy with the wrong which he has done.

The presentation of evil is often essential for art or fiction or drama.

This in itself is not wrong provided:

a. That evil is not presented alluringly. Even if later in the film the evil is condemned or punished, it must not be allowed to appear so attractive that the audience's emotions are drawn to desire to approve so strongly that later the condemnation is forgotten and only the apparent joy of the sin remembered.

b. That throughout, the audience feels sure that evil is wrong and good is right.

2. Correct standards of life shall, as far as possible, be presented. A wide knowledge of life and living is made possible through the film. When right standards are consistently presented, the motion picture exercises the most powerful influences. It builds character, develops right ideals, inculcates correct principles, and all this in the attractive story form.

If motion pictures consistently hold up for admiration high types of characters and present stories that will affect lives for the better, they can become the most powerful natural force for the improvement of mankind.

3. Law, natural or human, shall not be ridiculed, nor shall sympathy be created for its violation.

By natural law is understood the law which is written in the hearts of all mankind, the great underlying principles of right and justice dictated by conscience.

By human law is understood the law written by civilized nations.

1. The presentation of crimes against the law is often necessary for the carrying out of the plot. But the presentation must not throw sympathy with the crime as against the law nor with the criminal as against those who punish him.
2. The courts of the land should not be presented as unjust. This does not mean that a single court may not be represented as unjust, much less that a single court official must not be presented this way. But the court system of the country must not suffer as a result of this presentation.

1. Sin and evil enter into the story of human beings and hence in themselves are valid dramatic material.

2. In the use of this material, it must be distinguished between sin which repels by its very nature, and sins which often attract.

a. In the first class come murder, most theft, many legal crimes, lying, hypocrisy, cruelty, etc.

b. In the second class come sex sins, sins and crimes of apparent heroism, such as banditry, daring thefts, leadership in evil, organized crime, revenge, etc.

The first class needs far less care in treatment, as sins and crimes of this class are naturally unattractive. The audience instinctively condemns all such and is repelled.

Hence the important objective must be to avoid the hardening of the audience, especially of those who are young and impressionable, to the thought and fact of crime. People can become accustomed even to murder, cruelty, brutality and repellent crimes, if these are sufficiently repeated.

The second class needs great care in handling, as the response of human nature to their appeal is obvious. This is treated more fully below.

3. A careful distinction can be made between films intended for general distribution, and films intended for use in theaters restricted to a limited audience. Themes and plots quite appropriate for the latter would be altogether out of place and dangerous in the former.

NOTE: The practice of using a general theater and limiting its patronage during the showing of a certain film to "Adults Only" is not competely satisfactory and is only partially effective.

However, maturer minds may easily understand and accept without harm subject matter in plots which do younger people positive harm.

Hence: If there should be created a special type of theater, catering exclusively to an adult audience, for plays of this character (plays with problem themes, difficult discussions and maturer treatment) it would seem to afford an outlet, which does not now exist, for pictures unsuitable for general distribution but permissible for exhibitions to a restricted audience.

I. CRIMES AGAINST THE LAW

The treatment of crimes against the law must not:

1. Teach methods of crime.
2. Inspire potential criminals with a desire for imitation.
3. Make criminals seem heroic and justified.

Revenge in modern times shall not be justified. In lands and ages of less developed civilization and moral principles, revenge may sometimes be presented. This would be the case especially in places where no law exists to cover the crime because of which revenge is committed.

The illegal drug traffic, and drug addiction, must never be presented.

The use of liquor should never be excessively presented. In scenes from American life, the necessities of plot and proper characterization alone justify its use. And in this case, it should be shown with moderation.

II. SEX

Out of regard for the sanctity of marriage and the home, the triangle, that is, the love of a third party for one already married, needs careful handling. The treatment should not throw sympathy against marriage as an institution.

Scenes of passion must be treated with an honest acknowledgment of human nature and its normal reactions. Many scenes cannot be presented without arousing dangerous emotions on the part of the immature, the young or the criminal classes.

Even within the limits of pure love, certain facts have been universally regarded by lawmakers as outside the limits of safe presentation.

In the case of impure love, the love which society has always regarded as wrong and which has been banned by divine law, the following are important:

1. Impure love must not be presented as attractive and beautiful.
2. It must not be the subject of comedy or farce or treated as material for laughter.
3. It must not be presented in such a way as to arouse passion or morbid curiosity on the part of the audience.
4. It must not be made to seem right and permissible.
5. In general, it must not be detailed in method and manner.

III. Vulgarity; IV. Obscenity; V. Profanity, hardly need further explanation than is contained in the CODE.

VI. COSTUME

General principles:

1. The effect of nudity or semi-nudity upon the normal man or woman, and much more upon the young and upon immature persons, has been honestly recognized by all lawmakers and moralists.
2. Hence the fact that the nude or semi-nude body may be beautiful does not make its use in the films moral. For, in addition to its beauty, the effect of the nude or semi-nude body on the normal individual must be taken into consideration.
3. Nudity or semi-nudity used simply to put a "punch" into a picture comes under the head of immoral actions. It is immoral in its effect on the average audience.
4. Nudity can never be permitted as being necessary for the plot. Semi-nudity must not result in undue or indecent exposures.
5. Transparent or translucent materials and silhouette are frequently more suggestive than actual exposure.

VII. DANCES

Dancing in general is recognized as an art and as a beautiful form of expressing human emotions.

But dances which suggest or represent sexual actions, whether performed solo or with two or more, dances intended to excite the emotional reaction of an audience, dances with movement of the breasts, excessive body movements while the feet are stationary, violate decency and are wrong.

VIII. RELIGION

The reason why ministers of religion may not be comic characters or villains is simply because the attitude taken towards them may easily become the attitude taken toward religion in general. Religion is lowered in the minds of the audience because of the lowering of the audience's respect for a minister.

IX. LOCATIONS

Certain places are so closely and thoroughly associated with sexual life or with sexual sin that their use must be carefully limited.

X. NATIONAL FEELINGS

The just rights, history, and feelings of any nation are entitled to most careful consideration and respectful treatment.

XI. TITLES

As the title of a picture is the brand on that particular type of goods, it must conform to the ethical practices of all such honest business.

XII. REPELLENT SUBJECTS

Such subjects are occasionally necessary for the plot. Their treatment must never offend good taste nor injure the sensibilities of an audience.

Resolution for Uniform Interpretation

1. When requested by production managers, the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, shall secure any facts, information or suggestions concerning the probable reception of stories or the manner in which in its opinion they may best be treated.

2. That each production manager shall submit in confidence a copy of each or any script to the Production Code Administration of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated (and of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., California). Such Production Code Administration will give the production manager for his guidance such confidential advice and suggestions as experience, research, and information indicate, designating wherein in its judgment the script departs from the provisions of the Code, or wherein from experience or knowledge it is believed that exception will be taken to the story or treatment.

3. Each production manager of a company belonging to the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, and any producer proposing to distribute and/or distributing his pictures through the facilities of any member of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, shall submit to such Production Code Administration every picture he produces before the negative goes to the laboratory for printing. Said Production Code Administration, having seen the picture, shall inform the production manager in writing whether in its opinion the picture conforms or does not conform to the Code, stating specifically wherein either by theme, treatment or incident, the picture violates the provisions of the Code. In such latter event, the picture shall not be released until the changes indicated by the Production Code Administration have been made; provided, however, that the production manager may appeal from such opinion of said Production Code Administration, so indicated in writing, to the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, whose finding shall be final, and such production manager and company shall be governed accordingly.

REGULATIONS FOR ADMINISTRATION

(The following regulations were adopted by the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., April 22, 1948, and amended June 21, 1950.)

1. These regulations are applicable to all members of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as the "Association"), subsidiaries of a member producing or distributing motion pictures, and to all producers and distributors of motion pictures with respect to each picture for which the Association has granted its Certificate of Approval, pursuant to an application therefor.

2. The term "advertising" as used herein shall be deemed to mean all forms of motion picture advertising and exploitation, and ideas therefor, including, among other things, but without limitation thereto, the following: press books; still photographs; newspaper, magazine and trade paper advertising; publicity copy and art intended for use in press books or otherwise intended for general distribution in printed form or for theater use; trailers; posters, lobby displays and other outdoor displays; advertising accessories, including heralds, throwaways, etc.; novelties; copy for exploitation tie-ups; radio and television copy.

The term "Company" as used herein shall be deemed to mean any person, firm or corporation.

3. All advertising shall be submitted to the Advertising Code Administration of the Association for approval before use, and shall not be used in any way until so submitted and approved as hereinafter set forth. All advertising shall be submitted in duplicate with the exception of press books, which shall be submitted in triplicate.

4. The Advertising Code Administration shall proceed as promptly as it finds feasible to approve or disapprove the advertising submitted on the basis of whether it complies with the Advertising Code.

The Advertising Code Administration shall stamp its approval on one copy of all advertising approved and return such stamped copy to the company submitting the same. If the Advertising Code Administration disapproves of any advertising, there shall be stamped the word "Disapproved" on one copy thereof, which shall be returned to the company submitting the same; or, if the Advertising Code Administration so desires, it may return the same with suggestions for such changes or corrections in the advertising as will cause it to be approved.

5. After advertising (as defined in Section 2 above) for a motion picture shall have been approved by the Advertising Code Administration, if circumstances arise, either before or after the picture's release, which in the judgment of the Administrator seem to require the withdrawal of all, or any portion of such previously approved advertising, then, after consultation with the Advertising Advisory Council, he shall immediately file a written report with the President and Secretary of the Association (a) setting forth the situation existing at the time such prior approval was granted for such advertising, (b) reciting the intervening circumstances with resultant changes in the situation, (c) listing the reasons why in the opinion of the Administrator all or a designated portion of the advertising previously approved should be withdrawn and (d) certifying that if such advertising were then being presented to him for the first time, it would not be approved by him under the Advertising Code for stated reasons.

If the President of the Association (or a Vice-President of the Association in the absence of the President), upon receipt of such report from the Advertising Code Administration, is of the opinion that the situation presented is sufficiently serious to justify consideration by the Board of Directors, the Secretary of the Association shall be instructed to call immediately an emergency meeting of the Board, at which meeting the Board shall sit as a Board of Appeal with adequate opportunity for the producer and/or distributor of the motion picture to appear in person or through a duly authorized representative and present reasons orally or in writing, or both, as to why the prior approval of the advertising should be affirmed, and with adequate opportunity for the Administrator of the Advertising Code to appear and present reasons, either orally or in writing, or both, as to why in his judgment all or a designated portion of such previously approved advertising should be withdrawn.

Thereafter, the Board, meeting in executive session with the producer and/or distributor of the picture not voting, shall determine by vote of a majority of the Directors present and voting, whether all or any portion of the previously approved advertising shall be withheld from use and/or withdrawn, and such action of the Board of Directors shall be final and binding upon the producer and/or distributor of said film.

When any previously approved advertising for a motion picture is withdrawn pursuant to action of the Board hereunder, the company withdrawing same shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board. The amount of such reimbursement shall be prorated among all members of the Association including the company affected on the same basis as dues to the Association are currently paid.

If neither the producer nor the distributor of said film is a member of the Association, then the non-member withdrawing such advertising shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising by the members of the Association to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board.

6. Appeals. Any company whose advertising has been disapproved may appeal from the decision of the Advertising Code Administration, as follows:

Within 10 days after its advertising has been disapproved it shall serve notice of such appeal in writing on the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and on the Secretary of the Association. Said notice of appeal shall set forth the grounds upon which the appeal is taken. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of such notice by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and the Secretary of the Association, the President or, in the event of his absence from the country or his inability to act, a board consisting of three members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Association appointed by him, shall hold a hearing to pass upon the appeal. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had at the hearing and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. The President or said board, as the case may be, may admit such evidence as is deemed relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted. The President, or said board, as the case may be, shall decide the appeal as expeditiously as possible and shall notify the company and the Director of the Advertising Code Administration in writing of the decision. Such decision shall be final.

A company appealing from a decision of the Advertising Code Administration under Section 14 of the Advertising Code shall have the right, by written notice to the Secretary of the Association, to appeal directly to the Board of Directors of the Association, whose decision shall be final. The provisions relating to evidence, argument and written memoranda or briefs, set forth in these Regulations, shall apply to such appeals.

7. Any company to which these regulations are applicable, which publishes, or makes available for sale or lease, or which in any way uses advertising without prior approval as hereinabove provided, may be brought up on charges before the Board of Directors by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration, or by any of the following officers of the Association, viz.: the President, a Vice-President, the Secretary or the Treasurer. The company shall be entitled to receive a written statement of the charges and to a hearing before the Board of Directors. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of said statement of charges by the company, the Board of Directors of the Association shall meet in a Special Meeting to hear and pass upon such charges. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and by the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and by the Advertising Code Administration. The Board of Directors may admit such evidence as it deems relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted. The Board of Directors, by a majority vote of those present, shall decide the matter as expeditiously as possible.

If the Board of Directors finds that the company has published, or made available for sale or lease or in any way used advertising without prior approval as hereinabove set forth, the Board may take one or more of the following actions:

a) Direct the Production Code Administration to void and revoke the Certificate of Approval granted by the Association for the picture so advertised and require the removal of the Association's seal from all prints of said picture, and the Production Code Administration shall thereupon do so;

b) Require the company, if a member of the Association, to pay to the Association as and for liquidated damages, not more than $100 for each publication, lease, sale or use of an unapproved item of advertising which has been published, made available for lease or sale or used, provided, however, that the total sum assessed for advertising relative to one motion picture may not exceed the sum of $25,000. The amount so assessed and collected shall be used by the Association for expenses incurred in the administration of the Advertising Code. It is recognized that any violation of the Advertising Code will disrupt the stability of the industry and cause serious damage to the Association and its members which cannot be definitively computed.

The decision of the Board of Directors shall be final.

8. Each company shall assume responsibility for seeing that all its employees and agents comply with these regulations.

THE COMPO STORY FOR 1954

By ROBERT W. COYNE

Special Counsel, Council of Motion Picture Organizations

THE MANY INDUSTRY ORGANIZATIONS that created and directed the operation of COMPO may justifiably claim credit for three major accomplishments in 1954.

COYNE

First, of course, was the success of the national tax campaign which resulted in the lowering of the Federal admission tax from 20 to 10 per cent, with the complete elimination from Federal admission taxes of all admissions of 50 cents and under. Second, was the development of a more cordial relationship between the industry and the Federal Government, including high Administration officials, members of Congress and key employees of the Government agencies. And third was the establishment of a better climate in and a more cooperative attitude by the nation's press.

Freed 9,000 Theaters

When the Federal Excise Tax bill was passed, more than 9,000 theaters, which charged a maximum admission of 50 cents or less, were freed of all Federal admission taxes, and by maintaining their overall price of movie tickets were entitled to keep all of the 20 per cent tax savings. At the time, COMPO estimated that because of the tax relief, U. S. theaters would have at their disposal $122,250,000 they never had before. The actual figure may be much larger because as a result of tax relief and increased 1954 attendance, and on the basis of June-September, 1954 earnings, theater gross for 1954 was estimated at $1,192.2 million, which would be $183.7 million more than for 1953, or an increase of 18.2 per cent. From preliminary figures, it appears that the increase would be divided as follows: $124.4 million, or 68 per cent, from Federal admission tax relief, and $59.3 million, or 32 per cent, from increased attendance.

One of the most heart-warming effects of tax relief, however, was the fact that thousands of small theater operators, who were faced with the loss of their life's savings and only means of livelihood if the high taxes were not repealed, were given a new lease on life, and enabled to face the future with hope and confidence. And many others, who had become tax and television casualties and left with idle theaters on their hands, were able to reopen and given an opportunity to rebuild their fortunes in a business to which they had devoted their lives.

Won Respect

Through its frank disclosure of theater earnings, its assembly and presentation of a mass of industry statistics compiled by an independent research organization and its willingness to cooperate with all government agencies, not only in the tax matter but in making available its personalities, screens and other facilities for the promotion of any worthy government project, COMPO won the respect and admiration of Congress and of high Government officials from President Eisenhower down to the administrative officials and technical experts of governmental agencies. So fair and thorough was its factual presentation of the economic condition of the industry that in the face of Treasury opposition to a general cut in excise taxes, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey specifically mentioned only the motion picture and fur industries as in need of immediate tax relief.

While COMPO was the rallying point for the campaign, great credit is due to Col. H. A. Cole of Dallas and Pat McGee of Denver, co-chairmen of the national tax committee, who spearheaded the drive, and to the scores of exhibitors, distribution representatives and others who served on state, regional and local tax committees. Many of these men went to Washington at great personal inconvenience at critical stages of the campaign to keep their Congressmen and Senators in line and to obtain pledges of support from those who had not previously committed themselves. The big job was done, however, at the grassroots, where sufficient pledges of support were obtained to assure a favorable vote when the excise tax measure reached the floor of the House. It was a striking example of what may be accomplished when all elements of the industry work in unison toward a common goal.

I also would like to pay tribute to Charles E. McCarthy, COMPO information director, and the members of the COMPO staff who coordinated the efforts of the local committees, and to Al Sindlinger, research consultant, and his staff, who assembled the statistics and factual information which formed the basis for the briefs were presented to the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees. It was a great cooperative effort in which we may all take pride.

Newspapers

While we did not seek editorial support in the tax campaign, we took special pains to lay before the newspapers of the country, the facts on which we based our plea for relief. Furthermore, we frankly admitted that if relief were granted, our theaters would, of necessity, be compelled to retain all or part of the tax savings in order to stay in business.

This was accomplished by sending a factual bulletin with our arguments to the editors of all daily newspapers throughout the country, through personal visits by members of the COMPO staff and our tax committees to the editors of some of our most influential newspapers, and by publishing a series of advertisements outlining our case in the Editor & Publisher, the leading weekly trade publication in the newspaper field.

This effort paid off, as was evident from the fact that our industry received virtually no adverse newspaper criticism either before or after the 1954 tax bill was passed. Such editorial comment as appeared was overwhelmingly favorable. This was in sharp contrast to the newspaper treatment we received following the passage of the Mason bill in 1953 and its veto by the President.

Relations Bettered

But of even greater importance is the fact that there has been a marked change for the better in the climate of our relations with the press—a more sympathetic understanding of our problems. Our industry has too long neglected the cultivation of friendly relationships with the press. Exhibitors and others have been too inclined to shrug off as "one of those things" the publication of occasional erroneous reports harmful to the industry without taking the time and trouble to answer the charges or lay their side of the case on the editor's desk.

Editors, in general, are fair-minded individuals, willing to listen to complaints and to make amends for errors in fact or in interpretation. I am not suggesting that we ask for special favors of newspapers but that we take the time to meet and know the editors of our local press and to keep them advised of our problems so that we may feel free to call upon them when occasion requires.

I believe that we have convinced many newspaper editors that our industries have much in common, that the local theater is an economic asset to any community, that there is an increasing demand on the part of their readers, who are also our patrons, for more motion picture news, and that our common competitor, television, is just as demanding on their advertising dollars as it is on our entertainment dollars.

When 50 to 80 million people are willing to lay down their money at the nation's theater box offices each week to see a movie it should be obvious to newspaper editors that they are interested in screen personalities, story material and what goes on behind the scenes in the making of a motion picture. No other paid entertainment medium attracts nearly as many people. Major league baseball, which receives columns of free newspaper publicity in the nation's press, has a combined annual attendance of less than 20 million persons, or approximately one-fourth of the number who attend a movie each week during the height of the season. Further proof of the public's interest in movie personalities is the tremendous circulation of the movie fan magazines.

Projects Postponed

Until Federal tax relief was granted and the industry restored to a fairly stable economic basis, COMPO did not feel that it should move ahead with other projects for which it was organized, namely, to increase the prestige of the industry, to foster the common interest of all its branches and branch organizations, to revive the movie-going habit among those temporarily diverted to other forms of entertainment, and to create a new army of movie-goers from among the younger generation.

As soon as the Federal tax campaign was out of the way, we immediately alerted exhibitors to the possibility of revenue-hungry states and municipalities trying to take over the taxing power which the Federal Government had relinquished. COMPO has neither the staff nor the resources to move into local situations where such action is threatened, but it prepared and distributed to its members a booklet, outlining a step-by-step program for exhibitors in combatting the tax at the state or local levels, and in providing statistics and arguments which could be used for that purpose.

Insurance Plan

During the past year we worked out an agreement with the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. whereby group life insurance, heretofore available only to employee groups of 25 or more persons, could be obtained by all industry units, regardless of size, at low premium rates. A questionnaire, outlining the plan and asking whether COMPO members would be interested, brought 1,100 replies to the first mailing, of which more than 700 representing more than 6,000 persons, expressed interest. This was 20 times the number needed to make the plan effective, but execution of the plan has been delayed until all constituent organizations express approval or indicate they are not opposed to the plan being instituted for those who may wish to participate.

At the annual COMPO executive committee and board of directors meeting in November, it was also voted to authorize the appointment of a committee to study the feasibility of a group liability insurance plan for the industry or some pooling arrangement to bring down the abnormally high current rates.

The Audience Poll

A special committee of leading theater adversiting and publicity representatives was set up earlier in the year to study and make recommendations for an audience poll, under COMPO sponsorship. This committee, which was composed, in part, of persons who had conducted such polls at the local or regional level, proposed a national poll to be taken in the theaters early in 1955 with the audience selecting the best picture shown during 1954, the best performances by male and female stars, and the most promising young male and female player.

Complete details had not been worked out at the time this was written. I want to express my thanks to Mrs. Alice N. Gorham of the United Detroit Theaters Corp., chairman of the committee which drew up this plan, and her associates, Ralph W. Russell of the Palace Theater, Canton, O.; Emil Bernstecker, of the Wilby-Kincey Service Corp. of Atlanta; Paul Levi of the American Theaters Corp., Boston; Senn Lawler of the Fox Midwest Amusement Corp. of Kansas City, and William A. Carroll, executive secretary of Indiana Allied.

The concept of the audience poll was twofold: first, that the motion picture audience is the best judge of the pictures and performers it pays to see; and second, that whatever advertising and publicity benefits accrue from the public announcement of such selections belong to the industry and not to some outside commercial enterprise. Such a poll also should give a clearer indication of what type of pictures the public likes and the actors or actresses which most appeal to them.

Audience Campaign

Unless some unforeseen emergency develops, COMPO's major effort in 1955 will be to devise ways and means and to initiate projects to expand the film audience of the country. The excellent quality of the pictures now being produced, plus the extensive and growing use of wider screens and vastly improved technological processes, give the industry an important selling point in reviving the moviegoing habit on the part of the older generation, and creating a new army of movie patrons in the teen-age groups. In order to accomplish this we have set up a committee to draw up the necessary plans, and to set up a budget for that purpose.

Plans to be discussed by this committee include more extensive research studies in movie habits and media advertising, more extensive use of television and other media, and closer cooperation with educational authorities and organizations in developing programs to attract a wider youth audience.

Technical Confusion

We are also endeavoring to set up periodic meetings of the technological experts of the various motion picture and equipment companies in the hope of finding some means of ending the confusion in the industry created by the multiplicity of devices and types of prints used in the manufacture and projection of current product. We are hopeful that we may bring about some method of standardization without in any way retarding the normal development, progress and experimentation that is necessary to maintain our leadership in the field of paid commercial entertainment.

Our series of advertisments in the Editor & Publisher has won such wide acclaim not only within the industry but among newspaper editors and advertising experts that we have embarked upon a second series. And in this connection I think that the industry owes a debt of gratitude to the small group of public relations and advertising experts who have given so freely of their time and services in suggesting themes and preparing the copy for these advertisements. The original series was promoted by a committee composed of Harry Mandel, chairman; Oscar A. Doob, Jerry Pickman, Harry Goldberg and Kenneth Clark, with Charles E. McCarthy, COMPO information director, acting as coordinator. Ernie Emerling and Gil Golden were subsequently appointed to the COMPO Press Relations Committee and succeeded Harry Goldberg and Oscar Doob as members of the special copy committee for the second series of ads, but Messrs. Goldberg and Doob continued as members of the Press Relations Committee.

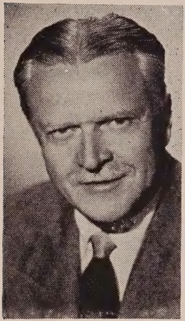
In closing I'd like to state that we have not abandoned our fight for the eventual elimination of all Federal admission taxes. We feel that until a clearer picture is obtained of the Administrator's tax program and its budgetary problems that we should not begin another organized campaign such as we conducted last year. However, we propose to keep in close touch with Congressional leaders and, if and when an opportunity presents itself to obtain further relief, we are prepared to move and to move swiftly in order to take advantage of it. We believe that an organized campaign at this time would only antagonize many members of Congress who gave us their support last year. We worked too hard to establish these friendly relationships to endanger them by any precipitous action on our part. I, therefore, counsel patience on the part of those members of our industry who are in need of further tax relief.

THE ACADEMY IN '54

By CHARLES BRACKETT

President, Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences

THE ACADEMY of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, at year's end, looks back on 1954 as a year of expanding service to an expanding industry, highlighted by the 26th Annual Awards simulcast.



BRACKETT

Every organization quotes its statistics proudly. The Academy feels it carries a particularly dramatic impact: 91,000,000 members of the radio and television audience saw and heard the tense, happy Award winners parade to the stage of the RKO-Pantage Theater in Hollywood to accept their golden statuettes.

Unfortunately, those 91,000,000 listeners and viewers weren't in on all the excitement that we in the industry know so well. It begins in January, when the nominations ballots are sent out to the 13,075 members of the various guilds and organizations. These ballots are mailed in directly to Price, Waterhouse & Company, auditors. We at the Academy wait breathlessly to learn who has been nominated. The results of this vote are given to us on Feb. 15, and on that day we relay the big news to the press. When the names of the nominees hit the papers all over the world, a new excitement stirs in the heart of every moviegoer everywhere. Approximately 1,600 new ballots are then sent out to the Academy members, who notch them and send them back to Price, Waterhouse.

Meanwhile, suspense has been mounting. All moviedom is clamorous with the exchange of predictions and hopes and speculations. It's no wonder that the big revelation scene on the Oscar-studded stage at the RKO-Pantages Theater on March 25 is an occasion.

For the right to sponsor the broad- and telecast of the proceedings accompanying the announcement of the winners, the Academy received a six-figure sum from the Oldsmobile division of the General Motors. The show went out over the 106 TV stations and 195 radio outlets of the National Broadcasting Co. In addition, service men throughout the world caught the sound and excitement of the event through the facilities of the Armed Forces Radio Service.

So much for the Biggest Night of our year.

Now a word about some of the other, less glamorous activities that keep an office staff, board of governors, and several committees busy throughout the year:

In April, on the occasion of its 100th Anniversary, the Boston Public Library included in its round of celebrations a dinner honoring the motion picture industry. As president of the Academy I had the pleasure of accepting the Library's citation from the hands of Mayor Hynes of Boston. At this time I got off a few words rapping the knuckles of the East for a tendency toward disrespect of the motion picture industry.

By way of thank you for the citation, the Academy screened for the New Englanders, and later presented to the Library of Boston, some special films shot in Boston and its surroundings about 50 years ago—the earliest known historical motion pictures in the United States.

This brings us to one of the Academy's newest and most challenging activities, which made great strides during 1954: the transferring back to celluloid of paper positive prints which the law required be deposited with the Library of Congress a half century ago when application was made for copyright. At rather impressive expense the Academy has sponsored the development of a new process, Renovare, for transferring these films of old-time events from paper to celluloid. Thus these enormously valuable records have been restored, and the entire collection, including newsreels of happenings in the United States from the moment motion picture cameras first started grinding, will be made available to the public—as soon as the Academy can afford to complete this involved enterprise.

Late in May, Betty Franklin, chief librarian of the Academy, went to Washington on loan to the Library of Congress, to assist the catalog and card division in matters affecting the motion picture industry. Her mission was a sequel to that of Margaret Herrick, our executive director, in the fall of 1953, when the initial steps were taken toward converting the old paper prints. The work of conversion is still going on, and as soon as each transfer of an old subject to film is completed, both the Academy and the Library of Congress receive a print.

The Academy is glad to report that the Motion Picture Producers Association renewed its agreement on July 22 to make use of the various services offered by the Academy—the theater, the Players Directors, the Credits Bulletin, as well as our production files and film library.

Fifty-three new members were voted into the Academy during the year. The year-end total stands at about 1,625.

During October and November the Academy's Forums were resumed. These showings of unreleased productions which offer special opportunity for discussion, are growing in popularity. The Academy Award Theater is more packed at each of these panel discussions, which explore the behind-the-scenes steps in the film's creation.

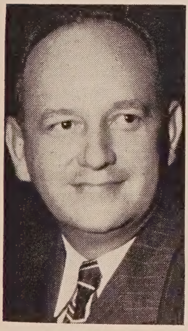
During 1954 the modernization of our theater was completed—in time for the pre-awards screenings last spring, many of which required an expanded screen and new types of sound equipment. Today we can handle any dimension, in film and sound, with the sole exception of Cinerama.

WHAT MOTION PICTURES NEED IN 1955

By ELLIS ARNALL

President, Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY, safely past a crisis in its health, well through a period of convalescence, is now back on its feet. The disorder, which had been variously diagnosed, turned out to be chiefly psychosomatic rather than some dreaded malignancy or some mysterious virus.



ARNALL

Nothing more was required for recovery than a change in attitude and a change in diet. Fed a diet rich in good stories, substantial in ingenuity and originality, recovery began. There will be no relapse if the patient — if the industry — continues what the doctor, meaning the theatergoing public, directs.

There are more theaters now than there were a year ago. There are more people attending them. There are greater profits for the exhibitors. There are greater opportunities for the producers. There is greater challenge.

Technical advances helped. The experiments with three dimensions and the advent of the wide screen techniques were valuable. The laboratory gave the writer, the director, and the players some new stimulus.

The stimulant helped, but credit for the recovery must go to two other factors: the basically sound condition of the industry and its ability to regain an insight into its own function.

The business of the motion picture industry — of the studios, the exchanges and the theaters — is the merchandising of dreams. Not the merchandising of private dreams, but of those that are common to all the men and women of the world. It is not the function of the motion picture industry to do more than this: to make real and living and, above all, true the dreams of men and women and children. That is a rather large assignment, at that.

What do motion pictures need in 1955?

They need the same thing that they have always needed, from the days of the first flickers in converted store buildings. They need good stories, told with clarity and suspense, with simplicity and truth. That is all that they have ever needed, or will ever need — in 1955 and all future years.

To an unusual extent they are providing those stories and that manner of telling today. That was why theaters had more paid admissions in 1954. That is why there will be more paid admissions in 1955.

That is why the motion picture industry has a feeling of greater confidence in itself than in a good many years.

That is why we will have a better product to offer the public.

The role of the independent producer will be greater in 1955 than ever before. The greater car, and the enhancement of the importance of imagination and meticulous preparation before shooting, that goes into the production of 1955 motion pictures will stimulate independent producers. The success of their product in 1954 was an encouragement to their efforts, and the type of pictures that the public received most enthusiastically was the type that lends itself to independent production.

The motion picture industry faces many problems in 1955. Producers, distributors and exhibitors have faced problems every year that the shadows have been moving across the screen. The problems are not more numerous; they are not fewer.

But the motion picture industry is meeting those problems these days with energy and zest. The people in the industry are aware of the vitality of their medium, of the public's quick response to good pictures, and of their own capacity to produce dreams and market them.

SMPTE IN 1954

By JOHN G. FRAYNE

President, Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers

SMPTE IN 1954 continued to grow in importance not only to its widespread and increasing membership but also to the industries which it represents. This past year has by comparison with 1953 been a year of consolidation of some of the rapid advances made in that previous year, but progress and change had by no means ceased in the year just ended.

Two definite trends became firmly established in 1954 motion picture presentation; one, wide-screen and two, multi-channel sound. Predominating has been the remarkable growth of the CinemaScope system of sound and picture presentation throughout the world. Starting with the opening of "The Robe" at the Roxy Theater, New York, on Sept. 16, 1953, a little over a year later saw more than 10,000 theaters equipped here and abroad to handle this new medium. The general acceptance of anamorphic photography by the public baffled the skeptics who said no good could come from the Chretien lens invention.

FRAYNE

The bold decision to use stereophonic sound with the anamorphic 2.55:1 picture has also met with general acceptance, although a concession was made to provide a single optical track with the CinemaScope release print for exhibitors who felt they could not afford the expense of multi-channel sound. From the strictly technical point of view, the successful introduction of magnetic sound on a wide scale into theaters represented one of the greatest strides of the year. An industry that had lived with optical sound over a 25-year period adjusted itself with little effort to the newer and improved medium.

Now where did the SMPTE fit into this year of progress and consolidation? Using its conventions as a national forum, the engineering and scientific phases of CinemaScope in theaters were discussed at length at the New York convention in October, 1953. During 1954 the SMPTE undertook the sale and distribution of CinemaScope test films made in accordance with the recommendations of its committees. In addition, it collaborated with the Motion Picture Research Council and other organizations in getting out instructions to projectionists throughout the world for proper presentation of these films.

During 1954 the SMPTE held two noteworthy conventions; at Washington in April, and at Hollywood in October. At the Washington convention the Society paused briefly to salute its pioneers—those with more than 30 years' continuous active membership in the organization. In all, there were 26 honored who became members between 1916, when the Society was founded in Washington, and 1924. This group included such stalwarts as W. C. Kunzmann, convention vice-president for 37 years; J. I. Crabtree, one of the Society's most influential presidents; and Dr. Mees, the father of modern photographic research.

A demonstration of Perspecta-directed sound was given at this Convention. In this system the standard single optical track is used, and by the addition of three subaudible carriers the sound may be projected at suitable volume levels from three speakers behind the screen, thus giving a pseudo-stereophonic effect. This system has the advantage of low-cost prints by eliminating the magnetic striping and electrical printing used in the CinemaScope system. Since the Washington demonstration, many theaters have been equipped to reproduce Perspecta Sound.

At the October convention in Hollywood, the emphasis was on color, and especially on color television. The convention was noteworthy not only for a fine technical program but for an excellent equipment exhibit at which the very latest in studio and laboratory equipment was displayed, giving suppliers and potential customers an unequalled opportunity to see the newest ideas embodied in physical apparatus. The success of this exhibit may portend the regular addition of this feature to all future conventions of the Society.

In 1954 the Society presented papers and demonstrations on Perspecta Sound and VistaVision to its members. Recognizing that the ultimate form has not yet been reached in either stereophonic sound or wide-screen presentation, the Society has welcomed technical papers and demonstrations of these methods, and its engineering committees stand ready to assist in the drawing up of proposed standards and preparation and distribution of test films as required by the industry.

Another innovation in 1954 was the opening of the pages of the Journal to advertising. This new policy was based not only on a desire to add to the revenue of the Society to meet expanding costs, but to provide still another service to the equipment suppliers and the membership who are eager to learn of the newest devices available to them. The program has only been in effect since July, but increasing popularity and rapid growth augur well for its continued success.

The Society maintained its rapid rate of growth during 1954, reaching a membership of 5,000 by the end of the year, its members coming from many foreign countries as well as from the United States and Canada. As further indication of its growth, a new subsection was organized at Rochester, covering the Western New York State area. Other sections located in New York City, Chicago and Hollywood had very successful years, the attendance at the Hollywood and Chicago meetings breaking all previous records.

The engineering activities of the Society have continued to grow during 1954 under the able guidance of Engineering Vice-President, Dr. Axel G. Jensen, director of Television research, Bell Telephone Laboratories. American standards were being processed for CinemaScope picture and sound parameters. The Society secured active industry help in the preparation of a color TV test film.

The engineering activities of the Society parallel closely the far-reaching developments of the motion-picture and television industries during the past two hectic years. Its committees represented all the organizations involved in the manufacture of equipment as well as in the production of pictures themselves. With a membership widely spread among all segments, the SMPTE is the logical body to assume responsibility for a meeting of the minds on the diverse problems to be faced during the coming period of continued growth and prosperity.

While the Society through its conventions and local section activities renders great value to many of its members in this country, it is through its Journal that the Society reaches members and subscribers throughout the civilized world. This is the only publication dealing directly with the technical phases of our industry and as such is a repository of information not found elsewhere. To our foreign friends it is considered the "bible" on all technical problems and the only real means of keeping abreast of developments in this country. Although some economies had to be practiced in producing the Journal in 1954, the board of governors of the Society favors continued growth in size and content of this excellent publication.

The Society is justly proud of its student chapters and favors the continued increase in their number in colleges of accredited standing. These groups are already proving their worth as an important source of trained specialists for the motion picture industry. The Society is now giving some consideration to enlarging the scope of its educational activities, and a committee of prominent educators as well as representatives of the industry is being formed to review the whole gamut of motion picture educational activities being carried on presently in our educational institutions.

MPIC OF HOLLYWOOD—'54

By LOU GREENSPAN

Executive Secretary, Motion Picture Industry Council of Hollywood

ANOTHER YEAR, another milestone in the path of the Motion Picture Industry Council of Hollywood, which ended 1954 with a note of optimism and determination to keep the MPIC flag flying. The question, "Why do we need an MPIC?" is like asking, "Why do we need a fire department?" It has been kicked around in the industry ever since the Council was formed back in the pre-dimensional days of 1949. In the ensuing years the MPIC has kept punching, sometime like a groggy fighter; often coming off the floor after a nine count to strike back at its adversaries and continue to land telling blows.

The constructive influence of harmonious, inter-industry relationships has been and continued to be one of the prime purposes of the MPIC's existence during the past year. Another, and equally important purpose was its position as a sort of "watch-dog" of Hollywood's public relations, acting promptly and effectively in rebuttal to detractors who, seemingly, find it great sport to make Hollywood their monotonously recurring target.

Perhaps the most regrettable action taken by the MPIC during 1954 was its resignation from COMPO, of which it had been a founder member. In fact, the MPIC provided the blue print for its organization. The MPIC's decision to withdraw from COMPO was made after considerable soul searching and careful deliberation, and was based on the conclusions that a divergence of opinion existed between the two organizations, concerning the solution of problems in areas of mutual interest.

It should be recalled that a cooperative public relations plan, which made the exhibitor, at the local level, the representative of the motion picture industry, and its spokesman, was undertaken by the MPIC in conjunction with United Paramount Theaters. It was the objective of this plan to point the way, in an attempt to stimulate and aggressively support all other P.R. activities throughout the industry, including those of COMPO.

GREENSPAN

Although this plan was discontinued the year before, it nevertheless continued to be discussed in the councils of MPIC throughout 1954 and the possibility of reviving it in 1955 looms larger than ever before. By approaching this project intelligently and realistically, and by consistently keying it to the local level in every community, and with the names of local exhibitors as the authorities for the information presented, the MPIC believes it has a format which, with proof of results behind it, can quickly become national in its application. Towards the accomplishment of this project, or any other serving the best interests of the industry, the MPIC stands ready at all times to cooperate with any industry organization.

The MPIC's range of activities, despite its limited staff and facilities, continued through 1954 to include almost every phase of contact with press, public and other areas of the industry. Its Library of Information continues to provide an ever-flowing source of documented material for dissemination within and without the industry. The MPIC, additionally, is constantly being solicited for speech material, as well as speakers and for general indisputable facts about the industry.

The following represent a sampling of the general activities of the MPIC during 1954:

Supplied information and material for a radio editorial broadcast on the subject of "The Meaning of Tax Reduction to Theaters."

Prepared speech material and provided speakers for PTA programs, civic and service organizations and universities.

Supplied material for speeches and articles on Economic Aspects of the Motion Picture Industry, Value of Motion Pictures as a Cold War Weapon, Motion Pictures' Contribution to Americanism.

Cooperated with Radio Free Europe in obtaining recorded interviews of prominent industry figures for broadcasts behind the Iron Curtain Countries, refuting distortions perpetrated by some of our American-made films in these countries.

Furnished information and material about the motion picture industry to U. S. Information Services abroad for dissemination.

These are just a few examples, selected at random, to indicate the steadily growing importance of the MPIC's comparatively small Library of Information which, nonetheless, continues to provide a flow of constructive material about Hollywood and its people for magazine articles, syndicated columns, books and other media of information, helping to offset some of the false impressions about Hollywood.

Many other aspects of MPIC activities could be mentioned by way of illustrating areas of interest in which constructive benefits have resulted, such as providing a debating forum within the industry, bringing together around a table the accredited representatives of both management and labor groups for free, honest and uninhibited discussions. This phase alone, if nothing else, justifies the existence of the MPIC, its member organizations believe there is nothing like it in any other industry in the world. Promulgating new projects, such as an International Film Festival in Hollywood, and participation in a planned series of industry events in conjunction with educational institutions. This activity will feature in an informal and flexible manner the men and women of the various arts and crafts of the film industry.

In light of what the MPIC has been doing and is trying to do, the following remarks made by Oscar Hammerstein, II, concerning Hollywood, is particularly significant and bears repeating here.

> "If I may temper my praise with some criticism, I would like to suggest that you have been remiss in handling your public relations. Why does only one side of the Hollywood story come out? Why is it not better known that there is such a wealth of technical knowledge here, such groups of exceptional workers under such able captains? I think it is because Hollywood sends out the wrong gags about itself. One hears joke after joke about all the mistakes that are made, professional and social. The eccentrics have been featured. The number of capable people have been thrown out of focus in the background. The Hollywood character has been victimized just as some races have been injured by a recurrence of stereotyped jokes about them.
> "In the past few years we have been doing something about counteracting the impression that all Italians carry stilletos, all Jews are money-lovers, all Negroes shoot craps, and all Irishmen get drunk and want to fight. The campaign shows signs of success. These jokes are becoming recognized as stale and spurious legend. They are fading away.

"The way to counteract the Hollywood stereotype is not to make vociferous denials that there are impulsive and temperamental people out here. There are, and there must be, off-beat personalities in a community devoted to creating entertainment. There are others, however, many others, the majority in fact. They are industrious, educated, well informed, and productive. Let us hear more about them."

The MPIC heartily agrees with Hammerstein's sentiments. In the five years of its existence, the MPIC has established a record of steadily increasing contributions to the industry's progress, strength and unity. For those unfamiliar with its structure, the MPIC is an organization of industry organizations in which all actions are subject to common consent. It was created to serve as a "blue ribbon" body of Hollywood, with broad-scale representation enabling it to speak and act in behalf of the industry's production branches.

Acting as a sort of combination of a little United Nations and a Senate of the Cinema, it is noteworthy that since its formation there hasn't been any major labor strife of any kind due to the MPIC roundtable meetings where common problems are openly aired.

In 1949 it opened its modest office doors with seven member organizations. Today its member organizations number 11, with new membership applications under consideration.

The organizations which now compose the MPIC include the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Hollywood AFL Film Council, Independent Motion Picture Producers Association, Independent Office Workers, Screen Actors Guild, Screen Producers' Guild, Screen Story Analysts' Guild, Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, Society of Motion Picture Art Directors, Unit Production Managers' Guild, Writers Guild of America, West (Screen Writers' Branch).

Its officers are: Kay Lenard, president; John Lund, vice-president; Ronald Reagan, secretary; Cy Baer, treasurer; Lou Greenspan, executive secretary, and Allen Rivkin, chairman, public relations committee.

Its executive committee consists of Y. Frank Freeman (AMPP), Ralph Clare (AFL Film Council), Spencer Lees (IMPPA), Cy Baer (IOW), Ronald Reagan (SAG), Arthur Freed (SPG), Kay Lenard (SAG), Gunther Lessing (SIMPP), Preston Ames (SMPAD), Ruby Rosenberg (UPMG), Ivan Goff (WGA).

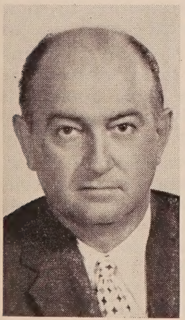
A PROGRESSIVE YEAR

By GEORGE C. HOOVER

Chief Barker, Variety Clubs International

THE YEAR 1954 has been a progressive year for Variety. Three new Tents have been added to the roster — New Orleans, Louisiana, Jacksonville, Florida and Bombay, India.

This great charitable organization comprised of showmen from all over the world is doing an outstanding public relations job for our industry. The story of Variety has been written many times, but it is still just as thrilling as it was the day the idea first came to John Harris.



HOOVER

Our organization has grown from one tent in Pittsburgh to an international organization of 45 tents. There is a Variety Club in practically every large city in the United States and several of the large cities in Europe as well as a tent in Tokyo, Mexico City, and Toronto. Montreal will probably come in sometime during this year and be Tent 46.

The charity job these great showmen do is something to behold. No one could possibly attend a national convention and not get a great thrill out of the Heart Reports as given by the Barkers from all over the world.

Variety has many outstanding charities—our great Cancer Research Hospital in Boston, headed by Dr. Sydney Farber is one of the finest in the world, and the work done at this institute has won recognition throughout the world. As Billy Koster, the executive director of the Variety Club of New England has many times said, "if we can prolong the life of one child for one day we justify our existence, and we have been able to prolong the life of a child for as much as five years." Great progress is being made in cancer research in Boston and the men of the Boston tent are duly proud of the fine job they are doing in New England. This is the only cancer research center for children in the world.

The Heart Hospital built on the grounds of the University of Minnesota is the great hospital built by the Variety Club of the Northwest at a cost running into over $1 million. The job being done there for research in heart disease is an outstanding one. The barkers of Minneapolis are also proud of the fine job being done in their territory.

Dayton is one of our small clubs, but Dayton has an outstanding project in Variety Manor, an institution for emotionally disturbed children. This small club has done an outstanding job in its field and the treatment provided at their clinic may provide the salvation for thousands of children.

The Variety Club of Milwaukee has its Heart Clinic at Marquette University School of Medicine, and last year a delicate heart operation was performed in Milwaukee for the first time, giving a new lease on life to children who otherwise would have faced certain death within a year or so, and the Variety Club Heart Center was responsible for this fine work.

The Variety Club of Southern California received the Heart Award for 1948 for its Variety International Boys Club. They spent $250,000 building and equipping this club which was built in the East Side in the darkest delinquency era in the City of Los Angeles. Prior to the time this Boys Club was built, the police station recorded 103 arrests per month of juvenile delinquents in that area. Since the inception of the Variety Boys Club the arrests have dropped to three or four per month. The late Charles Skouras was a very ardent member of the Los Angeles tent, and much of the progress of this tent must be attributed to his fine efforts.

In Atlanta the Cerebral Palsy School is doing an outstanding job in the education of the cerebral palsy children. The fine work being done at this school has spread over the entire state of Georgia, plans are being made to open schools in Macon, Savannah, Augusta, and Columbus. Last year Atlanta spent nearly $80,000 maintaining this school. In addition to that, this fine tent has many other activities, such as the Mountain View Camp for Girls, Saint Joseph's Orphanage, and the Old Ladies Home.

Our Variety Club of San Francisco maintains the Blind Babies Clinic. Last year 263 blind children were under training, and this fine club spent $245,000 financing this marvelous work.

In Miami, my home town tent, we have our famous Variety Children's Hospital, located just West of Coral Gables. This hospital was opened in 1950, and represents an investment close to $2 million. The public relations job done by this hospital has been an outstanding one, and there is no hospital in the United States which enjoys a finer reputation. Children from all over the world are brought into this institution with all types of diseases. Our main contribution is to polio, but our's is not a polio hospital, it is a general hospital for the care of sick children. On a plaque near the front door are the words "regardless of race, color, creed, or ability to pay, no child shall be turned from these doors," and as long as the fine showmen from Miami live, I am sure this pledge will be fulfilled.

Our Washington tent, truly one of our great tents, does an outstanding job with their Heart of Variety project, the Children's Hospital. Their out-patient clinic known as the Carter Barron Memorial Clinic is one of the most efficient ever constructed, and is considered to be one of the largest in the United States. The number of people benefiting by this out-patient clinic annually numbers over 90,000. In addition to this fine clinic, the Washington club has given funds to a dental clinic, cardiac clinic, and has furnished 15 memorial rooms in memory of their deceased barkers. They also pay for the maintenance of a medical social worker at the Glaucoma Clinic located in the Episcopal Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital.

Last year one of our truly small tents, not in heart, but in number of barkers, won the Heart Award. The Grand Rapids Tent with a membership of only 45, in a City of 160,000 people, did what we the barkers of Variety believe to be the most outstanding job. For eight straight years this tent has constantly gone forward with their charity projects. Local Youth Commonwealth activities enable many hundreds of unfortunate youths to enjoy educational programs in the Youth Centers, and have been able to go to Camp O'Malley, and have had help and guidance in becoming good citizens. The slogan is "give every kid an even break and a good place to live." In 1953 Youth Commonwealth activity was recognized when they were awarded the Freedom Foundation Award for that year. The police departments of neighboring communities in seven states have sought the plan by which Grand Rapids has shown the only decreasing juvenile delinquency and vandalism, where every other city of comparable size shows an increase. A Congressional committee has called on them for information and guidance on a national basis of recognition to show how the juvenile delinquency rates can be decreased.

I could go on for hours telling of the great work the Variety Clubs are doing throughout the world, and I have only mentioned a few of the outstanding projects.

I must mention our great club in Dallas. This tent is one of the finest, and truly enjoys the spirit of variety as it should be. Their Boys Ranch has received national as well as international recognition, and under the guidance of such showmen as Bob O'Donnell, Phil Isley, John Rowley, and Claude Ezell, Variety will always be the outstanding civic organization of Dallas.

Philadelphia, another fine tent where a great humanitarian, Jack Beresin, holds forth, does an outstanding job, and of course the

Chicago with its La Rabida Jackson Park Sanitarium does an excellent job.

No man could possibly belong to Variety without having a feeling of pride in the great work that is done by this fine organization. We are an organization of showmen. A club of men bound together with one purpose in mind, and that is to do a charity job to help those less fortunate then ourselves. I am sure every barker who really works at his job of being a Variety members gets a great deal of satisfaction in the knowledge that he belongs to one of the outstanding charity organizations in the world.

Variety is looking forward to further growth in the years to come and I am sure it will go on to far greater heights.

HCC IN PEACETIME

By GEORGE MURPHY

President, Hollywood Coordinating Committee

TO TELL THE STORY of the Hollywood Coordinating Committee for 1954, we must depart a little from the usual practice; for we have not, this year, been involved in an active war. The Hollywood Coordinating Committee, known through World War II as the Hollywood Victory Committee, was formed Dec. 10, 1941, three days after Pearl Harbor. It was formed so that Hollywood could aid the war effort of the United States in every manner it was able to command.

This rule still guided the work of the Committee during the dark days of Korea following World War II. Now we have been able, at least in part, to turn our efforts in other directions.

MURPHY

Of course, American boys are still in the remote places we visited during the war. And to help bring them a touch of home, to make them feel that they are not forgotten during the monotonous peacetime occupation duties they now fulfill, we sent during the month of December. 1954 some 80 artists to Korea, Alaska, the Northeast Air Command in Iceland and Newfoundland, to Europe, and North Africa and Bermuda and Puerto Rico — wherever America's sons are on duty.

But this was a special feature of the 1954 program; not the year's main emphasis. I don't know to what extent it is realized that actors are called on for aid quite apart from their overseas appearances. Between 1946, when the Victory Committee era ended, and the last quarter of 1954, we received 3,735 requests for aid to worthy causes. We couldn't physically fulfill them all; we didn't even approve them all. But we approved and filled 2,127 of them — an average of 266 a year. This indicates the relative magnitude of our home front effort, apart from what the Committee has been able to do for the armed services.

Among the more important drives we have aided have been Cancer, Cerebral Palsy, Christmas Seals, Group National Charities, Infantile Paralysis, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, United Jewish Appeal, and others.

In the past year Hollywood artists have made 2,196 separate appearances for such organizations and activities as the U. S. Treasury Department, Navy Recruiting, The American Federation of Labor, several I Am An American Day celebrations, The American Legion, Blind Veterans, Sister Kenny, Community Chest, Fire Departments, Easter Seals, USO, Police Shows, United Nations, Children's Service League, Variety Clubs, Defense Bonds, Care, and many, many others.

In other words, the field of work of the Coordinating Committee has been expanding instead of contracting since the war, surprising as that may be to some. The well-known demand for actors to help good causes, and the actors' unstinted willingness to do so, promises to bring us into ever widening fields of this work.

This will surprise no one who knows the heritage of helpfulness we of Hollywood have had from actors the world over. The benefits played by these actors have been as wide and varied as their comparatively small number and limited playing space permitted — a history of beneficence equalled by no other professional group that I know except doctors and ministers of religion.

But for us now the field is wider still and the ability to cover it much greater. Through motion pictures, radio, and television, actors take their talents to the world for good causes.

NUMBER ONE MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

By ARTHUR FREED

President, The Screen Producers Guild

THE SCREEN PRODUCERS GUILD is unique among the arts-and-crafts groups in the motion picture industry. Examine that word 'unique.' My dictionary says: "Unique . . . being without a like or equal."

Obviously the word "equal" is not intended in any comparative sense since no such group or organization should qualitatively compare with its fellow groups. But as regards the word "like," it well designates the unique distinction of the SPG. In the film production field it is like no other congregated clan.

FREED

Why? because from its very inception, at its organizational gathering, its primary purpose was plainly stated to be the establishment of the working producer as an institution in the industry. Certainly there were, and are, many other self-concerning and/or altruistic goals and ambitions, ranging from proper identification of the producer with his little-known responsibilities and achievements, to betterment of the industry's general public relations.

Up to the formation of the SPG the producer's official position was painfully akin to that of the writer many years ago. Then the writer as an institution had no official status, and the individual had only recourse to his private contract when in need of improvement or correction on existing circumstances. Finally the writer won an admitted place in the production of things, and from this first recognition of the writer as an institution has grown its flower, his present place in the sun.

It seems incredible that the working producer had no such status for so long. Why? Because there was no SPG. And why did it take the SPG almost five years to achieve that recognition? Because the SPG uniquely partakes through its members in the responsibilities of management as well as participation in employment. The producer operates and supervises the other elements which go into the making of a motion picture, yet generally speaking, often himself, is a salaried employee of that same studio authority. Such dual unique occupation required long and full discussion before an equitable basis for recognition could be evolved.

But the year 1954 brought the relationship to fruition. The establishment, officially, was accompanied and, as a part of a signed document, a standard of understanding and cooperation has been agreed upon between the SPG and the major studio authorities.

Representatives of the leading studios and the Guild will officially meet on all matters salient to the most equitable relations of each to the other.

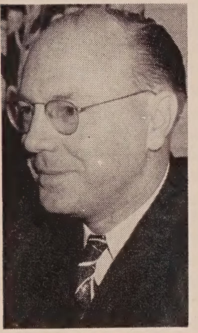
This has made the year 1954 the most significant in our brief but thus brilliant history. Naturally there are many other significant reesults for 1954; the producer grew steadily in stature and identification in trade and public press of the country; the most important metropolitan newspapers acknowledged the producer contributions to the industry as well as to the individual picture; the Guild Journal climbed to new heights, not only in content, significance and format, but in size and dignity of its circulation; "Meet The Press" luncheons have grown in popularity and results until we are hard put to it to handle requests for invitations; the Intercollegiate Film Contest attracted twice as many entries as 1953, the results of this award being shortly due for announcement; quietly unobtrusively, the producer group did its share toward the elevation of the industry in product and prestige; it was a year of practical as well as theoretical accomplishment, but to those of us who have known, and understood, and worked on, the complicated problems involved in our industry negotiations, the year 1954 will be the year of the first great step taken and held —the officially acknowledged new status of the producer as an institution, the acceptance and recognition of the individual who combines creative artistry with constructive management in that unique capacity now officially designated by the industry as: "PRODUCED BY . . . "

ACTORS GUILD GOES FORWARD

By JOHN L. DALES

National Executive Secretary, The Screen Actors Guild

THE YEAR 1954 was one of continued progress for the Screen Actors Guild—the American Federation of Labor organization which represents for collective bargaining purposes all actors, singers and announcers in theatrical and television films and other forms of motion pictures.



DALES

We are glad to be able to report that in 1954 there was some increase in domestic production of theatrical films and this coupled with a continuing, steady increase in the making of television films brought about a substantial rise in employment for motion picture actors in the annual income bracket of up to $7,500 a year. Seventy per cent of the Guild's Class A membership is in this group.

It is interesting to note the great amount of work which filmed television programs are providing for these actors. In the Hollywood area, it is 46 per cent as against 54 per cent for theatrical pictures. In New York, of course, television films provide more work for actors than do theatrical movies.

Signalling the continued progress of the Guild, we announced late in the year the purchase of a fine building site on Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood for the erection of a modern structure to house the Guild's headquarters. This will be the first time since the Guild was founded in 1933 that we have owned our own home.

The building will be of contemporary design and elevated slightly above street level to provide clear under-the-building "sunken breezeway" parking for 24 cars, with parking for an additional 30 cars on an open area at the rear of the structure. Its interior floor area of approximately 8,700 square feet will be air-conditioned throughout. The Guild hopes to complete erection of the building at the corner of Sunset and Genesee and move into it not later than Oct. 31, 1955.

National expansion of the Guild due to television was highlighted during the year with the creation of a new executive position, namely that of Eastern and Midwestern regional director. Mrs. Florence Marston, longtime executive secretary of the Guild's New York branch, was appointed to fill the post. She was succeeded in the New York branch position by Harold M. Hoffman, former Theater Authority and American Federation of Television and Radio Artists executive.

The Guild now has 920 employer signatories to its collective bargaining contracts, including 619 producer signatories and 301 advertising agencies that have signed letters of adherence. In addition to New York and Hollywood, we have membership branches in Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh and San Francisco.

Looking ahead to 1955, the Guild is confident that the production of motion pictures — both for theaters and for television — will continue to increase and that the actors will share in the prosperity of the industry.

A DREAM FULFILLED

By GEORGE SIDNEY

President, Screen Directors' Guild

NINETEEN FIFTY-FOUR has been a year characterized by the fulfillment of many objectives of the Screen Directors' Guild and directors individually.

SIDNEY

First and foremost to those of us striving in an industry which like a growing child is rewarded one day and punished the next, is to place before the public the type of product that brings the greatest entertainment to the greatest number. This year has seen fulfillment of our efforts in that the public, by an overwhelming reception, has marked this year's product as among the finest ever put on film. The director has played an important role in this and shares a sense of accomplishment with his brother artists and craftsmen.

Of principal interest to Guild members is the new home into which we will move on April 15, 1955. This building is the fulfillment of a dream the Guild has had for 18 years, and now, within a few months we will be in our own home.

Not only will the Guild building house offices and conference rooms, but in addition, it will include a luxurious private theater equipped with the finest projection facilities for all screening methods so far developed. Located at the corner of Sunset Blvd. and Hayworth Ave., the building will stand for all to see as a symbol of the director and his work. In serving as a focal point for the directors' activities, this structure also will become a cultural and professional center for the entertainment community.

The Annual Awards Dinner Dance is an evening set aside to pay homage to our film makers and over the years it has become one of the outstanding social events of the industry.

Continuing the policy established in 1953, the Directors' Guild will this year again recognize and honor the outstanding contribution of the director to the making of fine television entertainment.

The film critic, who most constructively analyzes the work of the director, also shares in our common goal, and thereby contributes to better films. Last year, the Screen Directors' Guild successfully inaugurated the Annual Critic's Award. Bosley Crowther of the New York Times was the recipient of the first award. After many months of appraisal and scanning, the Guild again will fulfill its obligation to the industry by presenting its selection of the most noteworthy critic of 1954 at the Annual Awards Dinner.

A real sense of fulfillment is evidenced among the membership. This may be traceable to the satisfactory inter-guild-craft relationship which exists, to successfully concluded contract negotiations for our directors and assistant directors with the industry's major and independent producers; to an improved insurance program; and to the increased participation by the director in the forums, courses, and programs of the universities and societies of the nation.

The collective efforts of the membership, the board of directors, the council, and the individual efforts of the officers of the Guild has made this truly a year of fulfillment, and of great personal gratification to myself as president.

WGA A REALITY

By RICHARD L. BREEN

President, Writers Guild of America

THE WRITERS GUILD OF AMERICA, combining radio, screen and television writers in one national organization is now a reality — and to the members, East and West, who labored so strenously to bring it about, "reorganization" has become almost a dirty word.

Here, in Hollywood, it conjures memories of literally hundreds of committee meetings devoted to delicate planning, valuable arguments, agonizing compromises and complex negotiations across three thousand miles with committees of equally dedicated Eastern members just as anxious as we to affect a reorganization so obviously in the best interests of all writers.

BREEN

Apart from the selfless dedication of those who labored so mightily to bring about this new and stronger alliance, there was a glittering promise that drove them on — a carrot, if you please, dangling in front of them, always just out of reach. . . .

Wait until after Reorganization, was its siren promise. Wait until this is all behind you — then you will be able to relax, take it easy. So, the boards and committees and the executive staff and legal counsel worked just a little longer and just a little harder, dazzled by this promise of a post-reorganization life of pushbutton ease when the writers' every problem would melt away like last week's paycheck.

Came the night of Aug. 25 when, following the intricate techniques prescribed by their legal midwives, the Radio Writers Guild, the Screen Writers' Guild and the Television Writers Group of SWG disaffiliated from the Authors League of America, and, by overwhelming vote, became units operating under the protective canopy of the Writers Guild of America, West, Inc. At almost the same time and under almost the same circumstances, the Writers Guild of America, East, Inc., was born in New York. Reorganization was complete. Now to enjoy the life of honeyed ease that had been promised! But, wait a minute . . . What life of ease?

Even before it had time to elect permanent officers the newborn WGA found itself deep in contractual negotiations on three fronts. As these words are being written months of negotiations with the major studios are drawing to a close and steps are being taken to finalize a new revised agreement with them, including a separate contract for writers employed in television by the major studios. At the same time, now that the Guild has won NLRB certification, preliminary meetings are being held to reactivate negotations for a new live TV contract with the networks—a contract almost concluded two years ago when final signing was interrupted by the appearance of a now defunct organization in the TV writers field. Additionally, committees are meeting to prepare for the negotiation of a new freelance radio contract with the networks as soon as the live TV contract is agreed upon. And radio staff negotiations are right now in session in the West, having just been concluded in the East with the networks.

Even the most optimistic estimator agrees that these three pronged negotiations will keep the lights burning at night in the Guild's Board room for the next six months. By then it will be time to turn to our next problem—the reopening of discussions on our film television agreement with the Alliance producers.

A heavy schedule of committee work? Of course it is. But the Guild committees are tackling it with a new zest. Now, for the first time, all writers in the entertainment field—radio, screen and television—are truly allied, both professionally and economically. Now, for the first time, they can bargain as an entity for the professional prestige and perquisites that are their due.
